REGULARS WIN ADVANTAGE IN MONTGOMERY

Lead in All Except Home District of Jones, Progressive.

ANTIS AHEAD THERE BY MARGIN OF 4 TO 1

Two Groups Evenly Split in Chevy Chase on Early Returns.

ERROR IN ROCKVILLE MENACES BALLOTS

Judge Orders Book Sealed After Numbering Is Done Wrongly.

While returns were just beginning to straggle in from the 25 precincts of Montgomery County shortly before midnight, the Democratic organization appeared to be in the lead in all save the Kensington district, the home of Eugene Jones, Progressive Democratic candidate for State senator. There the antiorganization group held a four-to-one stride.

The two factions appeared about evenly divided in Chevy Chase, the home of E. Barrett Prettyman, Progressive candidate for the House of Delegates, with the odds slightly in favor of the incumbent group.

In the upper section of the county, where the Progressives claimed to be strongest during the campaign, the faction headed by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, claimed to hold a substantial lead.

Rockville Votes Threatened.

A goodly number of votes were threatened in Rockville when it was discovered that a clerk had made a mistake in marking ballots. He had initialed the stubs and numbered the ballots when he should have reversed the procedure.

When the Progressives raised an objection, Judge Robert B. Peter, sr., of the Circuit Court, ordered the clerk's book sealed so the votes could not be identified and then directed that the votes be counted.

At 11 o'clock last night Maj. Lee issued a statement that the incumbents would carry the election by at least 3,000 majority.

The tabulation of votes in Montgomery County was especially slow because of the intense rivalry and the large number of offices being contested. Prince Georges returns came in comparatively rapidly.

Rockville Precinct Reports.

Rockville's Second Precinct, on the basis of early and incomplete returns, gave the Antiorganization forces a slight lead. William L. Aud, Antiorganization candidate, had piled up 83 votes to 60 for Richard H. Lansdale in the race for sheriff. For State senator, Robert H. Hilton had 79 and Eugene Jones 69 votes.

The Second Precinct in Rockville, on incomplete returns in the race for county commissioner, in the Fourth District, gave John Vinson Peter 86 and Ricketts 68. A tie of 78 votes had resulted in the race between John T. Culver and J. Forest Walker for county treasurer.

Chevy Chase, on the basis of incomplete returns, gave Robert H. Hilton 54 and Eugene Jones 69 in the race for State senator. Chevy Chase also had given Marvin Farrington 59 votes and E. Barrett Prettyman 41 votes in selection of members of the House of Delegates.

The organization forces held a slight lead on the basis of incomplete returns at Olney.

At Clarksburg the organization lead by a 2-to-1 margin on early returns.

At Gaithersburg the organization lead by a 1½-to-1 margin, with the antiorganization showing a lead only with its native son, William L. Aud, leading Richard H. Lansdale, 101 to 62, in the race for sheriff.

Chinese Reds Fire On U. S. Gunboat

Tutuila's Machine Guns, Rifles Silence Attack on Yangtse.

Hankow, China, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—A sharp encounter between the American gunboat Tutuila and a band of roving Communists occurred on the Yangtse River 80 miles from Yochow, Hunan Province, late today. Dispatches said the American vessel suffered no casualties.

The Reds fired upon the Tutuila as the warship cruised along the river, using machine guns and trench mortars.

Returning the fire with 3-inch rifles and machine guns, the gunboat quickly silenced the attackers, destroyed their mortars and dislodged them from their position. Dispatches failed to state whether the Reds suffered any casualties.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: President William Green, of the Amercian Federation of Labor, is in a sound position when he opposes saddling the wage earners with a dole system. His suggestion of part time employment for all rather than full time for a part is fair and is the usual practice of employers. But the employer is only an agent. He can not employ unless he can sell his output. To do so would pile up inventories and only prolong the misery of depression. What Mr. Green seems to mean is that at times the employer should operate to give work with little or no profit. The reports of too many industries show they are now operating despite a loss.

The entire progress of our wage earners is toward full cooperation and partnership. They have been raised to new dignity and must themselves assume new responsibilities. The employer can not produce unless they buy. If they will live up to that end of the partnership, they will start a movement that will eliminate the 10 per cent reduction in business that causes our trouble. The buying power of everybody if used is amply sufficient to support everybody. When business is declining the people can not expect to increase savings.

TROOPS IN CHARGE AFTER JAIL LYNCHING

Georgia Governor Decrees Martial Law in Darien as Slayer Is Shot.

SECOND KILLER HUNTED

Darien, Ga., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—This village was under military rule tonight after an exciting day, when a band of armed men lynched a Negro in his jail cell, following upon the slaying of one officer and the wounding of three others.

The militia, under Col. W. R. Neal, of Savannah, took charge of the situation under a proclamation by Gov. L. G. Hardman, who acted at the request of the civil authorities.

Police Chief Robert L. Freeman was killed and R. J. Anderson, deputy marshal; John Fisher, special officer of Darien, and Deputy Sheriff J. H. Collins, of McIntosh County, were wounded when they engaged George Grant and another Negro in a gun battle in nearby swamps. The Negroes were wanted for shooting at a night watchman who attempted to arrest them for loitering near a bank last midnight.

Grant, captured in the swamp, was shot to death in his cell by the men, who disregarded pleas of Col. Neal that the Negro not be slain. Grant's companion, said to be Fred Bryan, escaped and was believed surrounded in a 150-acre territory of swamp.

Col. Neal, with a unit of guardsmen, hurried here today shortly after news of the shooting of the officers was received in Savannah. Later approximately 150 men of the 118th Field Artillery, Savannah, were sent here, but tonight all except 50 men and officers had been returned.

Under the governor's proclamation, described by Col. Neal as "martial law," civilians, who throughout the day searched the swamps and gathered in groups on the street, were ordered to take their arms home. Only a select unit of civilians was allowed to bear arms after 5 p. m.

Meanwhile, the town was peaceful, guardsmen and possemen searching the area where the Negro is believed to be hiding. Bloodhounds were being used. A machine gun, which earlier in the day had been placed at a vantage point near the jail, was dismounted and removed to an improvised armory.

Sheriff Poppell said the lynching of Grant occurred immediately after the Negro had been locked in the jail. A band of men, armed with shotguns and other weapons, rushed into the place and fired a load of buckshot in the Negro's body. Grant was said to

SANTO DOMINGO RIOT FOR FOOD THWARTED

Officers Hold Back Crowd About to Grab Supplies; Canteens Set Up.

WAR WAGED ON DISEASE

(Associated Press.)

The Weather Bureau last night issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory, 7:30 p. m.—No reports tonight from vicinity of tropical disturbance which is probably moving west-northwestward over Caribbean, south of Island of Haiti. Caution advised vessels near path."

By HARWOOD HULL

(Associated Press Staff Correspondent).

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Only the coolness of officers of the Dominican army and of the United States minesweeper Grebe saved hurricane-stricken Santo Domingo from a food riot today.

Hundreds of men, women, and children, many of whom have not had any food since the city was destroyed by a hurricane last Wednesday, tried to seize provisions which were brought by launches and other light craft to wharves along the banks of the river Ozama, which divides the city. The Dominican and American officers quickly posted their men in strategic positions so as to hold back the crowds until speakers could assure them that rations will be distributed as soon as possible.

Government authorities and Red Cross workers took up the difficult task of keeping the hungry people orderly while food was doled out at impromptu canteens set up in churches, government buildings, and some of the old Spanish stone houses which withstood the fury of the hurricane. Rolling kitchens were used for cooking the food, which was brought to Santo Domingo by several vessels that had to anchor in the Caribbean, being unable to dock at the wharves because the Ozama has been on a rampage since the storm of last week.

Food stuffs, medical supplies, nurses, doctors, and relief workers, were brought today by the S. S. Ruth Lykes from Ponce, Porto Rico. The S. S. Tryton arrived with a cargo of rice from Europe. The Genevieve Lykes was expected tonight with provisions and medical supplies from Port au Prince, Haiti, and Guantanamo, Cuba.

The steamship Catherine tried to enter the Ozama today but was forced to return to its anchorage at sea.

A hospital survey completed today

UPRISING SEEN AS GUNS BARK IN ARGENTINE

Buenos Aires Startled by Roar of Cannon From Harbor.

DISPATCHES SUGGEST COUNTER-REBELLION

Censorship Clamped on After First Reports of Disturbance.

MILITARY PRESIDENT ENTERS UPON DUTIES

Capital Declares Holiday When New Officials Take Office.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The city was startled tonight by the roar of cannonading and unconfirmed reports said warships in the harbor were firing at some of the buildings.

The foregoing dispatch indicates to some observeds that a counter revolutionary movement has opened against the new military government, which overthrew the Argentine president Saturday and was itself sworn in yesterday.

Apparently a censorship has been clamped on, because the Associated Press in New York received some brief messages from its Buenos Aires correspondent in rapid succession and then there was ominous silence.

War College Reported Seized.

The first message said that the newspaper Cotritica, had learned of the Eighth Cavalry capturing the military college. This was followed by dispatches reporting that warships had opened fire, but details were lacking.

The regime elevated into power by a military upheaval Saturday officially became the government late today with the administration of the oath to the provisional president and his cabinet.

Great crowds of citizens, happy because of the national holiday which had been proclaimed for formal induction of the government, massed about the historic government house as Gen. Jose Evaristo Uriburu took the oath as provisional President of the Argentine Republic.

Lively Scene Presented.

Parades, in some of which women participated, hailed the revolution which ousted the aging Hipolito Irigoyen. The city was more lively than in one of its famed national fiestas.

Others who took the oath were military officers, provincial officials and soldiers in the ranks.

The government took time out for this ceremony, but was extremely busy the remainder of the day in reorganizing the administrative structure. Gen. Uriburu said that the entire country had swung to the banner of the revolt and that the provinces rapidly were being turned over to picked men, principally high army officers.

Irigoyen Aids Replaced.

Other officers who have been loyal to revolutionary chieftians are replacing those who were Irigoyen adherents. Gen. Jose Marcilese today was given command of the first division of the army, while Capt. Leon Scasso has succeeded Vice Admiral Ramon Gonzales Fernandez in charge of the first naval region.

Many Irigoyen supporters have fled to Uruguay and other neighboring countries. But a large number have been arrested.

The aged Irigoyen still lies ill in an infantry barracks at La Plata. He is not a prisoner, so the government says, and the chief of the seventh infantry today was ordered to give the former president every courtesy and ample medical attention. He also was told to offer the president facilities for removing to any place

Don't Antagonize Voters During Campaign, Campbell Is Warned

Former Director of Dry Bureau Says Lowman Urged Leniency.

'Take Your Men Out of Breweries' Is Order From Capital.

Second of a series of articles by the former prohibition administrator of the Eastern New York district.

By MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL.

"The trouble is you've got it too dry in New York. The people up there on these hot days have their tongues hanging out of their parched throats and a little beer won't hurt them.

"You're doing a fine job—the best that ever was done in New York—but we must remember that this is a presidential election year. We must not do anything to antagonize the voters, and they are complaining in New York that they can't get beer."

The speaker was Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and the remarks were addressed to me. The date was August 10, 1928, and the place was the office of the Assistant Secretary in Washington. Beside me sat Alf Oftedal, acting commissioner of prohibition.

"You must take your men out of the breweries," the Assistant Secretary ordered.

Ordered Out Right Away.

"I don't want to do that," I said, "because I know I have the breweries in New York stopped now for the first time. I want to keep my men in the breweries until September 15, when the beer season will be about over."

"That won't do," the Assistant Secretary argued, "September 15 won't give the breweries sufficient time to get started before election. The politicians up there are complaining that New York is much too dry, especially in beer, and I want the men taken out right away."

You can guess that I looked at the Assistant Secretary in astonishment. I had learned to expect anything in prohibition enforcement by this time, but this was the limit.

"Well," I said, "I suppose I'll have to obey any order I get in writing."

"I think you'll get the order," he shot back at me.

And, sure enough, three days later I received a letter sign-

CAMPBELL EXPOSE AROUSES SENATORS

Wheeler Plans to Request Inquiry by Congress at December Term.

BARKLEY ALSO STIRRED

A congressional investigation may grow out of the amazing story by Maj. Maurice Campbell, former prohibition administrator in New York, which now is appearing in The Washington Post.

The first installment, which appeared yesterday, brought statements from two senators prominent in the prohibition controversy, one a wet and the other a dry.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, declared that Maj. Campbell's revelations about the insincerity of high officials in charge of prohibition stressed the need of a thorough senatorial investigation, and he announced that he would press for one at the December session of Congress.

Senator Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, had this to say: "If Mr. Campbell proves what he says he will prove, it presents a situation that neither the Government nor the country can ignore."

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, whom Maj. Camp-

Lady Horne, Companion Drown in Auto Plunge

Brussels, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Lady Auriol Horne, wife of Sir. Allen Horne, of London, and an unidentified companion, were drowned early today when, dazzled by the beams from a lighthouse, they drove their motor car into the River Scheldt.

They were trying to run the machine onto the ferry boat that plies between Antwerp and Sainte Anne. The chauffeur was rescued unconscious.

Illinois Dry Ranks Split On Rum Poll

Chicago, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The dry ranks in the Illinois senatorial contest today split on the question of the prohibition referendum to be submitted to the voters in the November election.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union and six other dry women's organizations decided to campaign for "no" ballots on the referendum and declined to indorse any candidate. Last Saturday the Illinois Antisaloon League urged voters to ignore the referendum and indorsed the candidacy of Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, ardent prohibitionist and independent candidate.

Mrs. O'Neill opposed Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, who, though personally dry, has announced she would abide by the will of the electorate as expressed in the referendum, and former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, who is running on an antiprohibition platform.

The organizations announced as cooperating with the Women's Christian Temperance Union in its decision to join in the referendum without indorsement of a candidate are the Women's City Club, the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, the Democratic Women's Prohibition Enforcement League, the Methodist Women's Home Missionary Society, the Chicago Women's Church Federation and the Cook County League of Women Voters.

Announcement of the policy was issued jointly by Miss Helen L. Hood, president of the Illinois W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulough, president of the Democratic

WARDMAN IS NAMED IN $14,525,000 SUIT

New Yorker Bases Action on Alleged Agreement for Refinancing.

REALTY MAN'S REPLY

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—A suit for $14,525,000 against Harry Wardman, Washington hotel man and real estate owner, and several other individuals and banking houses was filed today by Gustave Nassauer.

The plaintiff demands, his attorney said, that stock of the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., now held in trust by the Irving Trust Co., be turned over to him, or that the alleged value of the stock, $12,025,000, be paid him. In addition, Mr. Nassauer demands payment of $2,500,000 for the detention of the stock, which he maintains was rightfully due him under an agreement with Mr. Wardman made in 1927.

In connection with the suit, Emil K. Ellis, Mr. Nassauer's attorney, said Supreme Court Justice Hammer has signed an order, returnable October 1, requiring the Irving Trust Co. to show cause why an injunction should not be issued to prevent removal of the securities from New York State.

In addition to Mr. Wardman, defendants are his partner, James D. Hobbs; Thomas Bones, Emery L. Coblentz, Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc.; Wardman Realty & Construction Co., Inc.; Wardman Corporation, A. D. Leach & Co., William R. CAPTAIN, BELLNTE GREETED BY HOOVER

Feats of Frenchmen and American Heroes Held Glory to Race.

PAIR TO QUIT CAPITAL TODAY FOR NEW YORK

Mention of Gen. Pershing by Rickenbacker Brings Cheers at Soiree.

Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte got the American accolade yesterday.

Homage was paid them and a welcome extended them by the two highest figures in the land—by President Hoover in the quiet of a White House rose garden in the afternoon, and by Vice President Curtis in a crowded banquet hall last night.

America's three outstanding air heroes also were here to welcome them—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose New York-to-Paris flight they reversed a week ago; Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who followed Lindbergh, and later carried the French tricolor over the South Pole, and Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker America's ace of aces in the World War.

Depart This Morning.

In between the ceremonies of welcome, the Paris-to-New York fliers visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, held a levee at the French Embassy, called on the heads of various departments, and spent a jolly half-hour at the Zoo. This morning at 8:15 they will go to the Naval Air Station to take off for New York.

In their speeches of welcome to the fliers both President Hoover and Vice President Curtis recalled the flight of Lindbergh. Just as France rejoiced at his success, they said, so now does America rejoice over the success of French wings.

White House Ceremony.

The ceremony in the White House rose garden was simple in the extreme. The stage was a carpet of green, flanked by pink roses; the back drop an ancient magnolia tree. The cast was one such as seldom has been gathered at one time

Facing the microphones of the National and Columbia systems, which were to carry his words across the Atlantic, stood President Hoover. On his right was Coste, on his left Bellonte. Flanking them or behind them were Lindbergh, Byrd and Rickenbacker, Vice President Curtis, Gen. John J. Pershing, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Maj. Gen. Fechet, Assistant Secretary of War Davison, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Young and Jules Henry, charge d'affaires of the French Embassy.

The speech of the President and that of Capt. Coste were "received with complete success" in England, according to a cablegram received last night at the Washington office of the Columbia Broadcasting Co.

Welcome of President.

In welcoming Capt. Coste and Lieut. Bellonte the President said:

"It gives me great pleasure to welcome you here today. Every American recalls the thirty hours of intense emotion that gripped us all while our own Col. Lindbergh was winging his way to Paris, and the sense of relief and joy that swept over the Nation when word came that he had safely landed. Our pride and happiness were redoubled when we heard of the magnificent reception given to him by the government and people of France. Our hearts went out in fraternal warmth to those who had so royally welcomed our national hero.

"Today, therefore every American

Balloonist Prepares to Fly To Twice Heights of Everest

German Physicist Plans Making Scientific Observations in Support of Einstein Theory in Hitherto Unexplored Regions of Upper Air.

Augsburg, Germany, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—A tall, lank, quiet physicist hopes to take off this week in the largest balloon ever built, and fly twice as high as the peak of Mount Everest to make scientific observations in the stratosphere, as the unexplored upper region of the earth's atmosphere is called by scientists.

Auguste Piccard, a disciple of Albert Einstein, will attempt to fly these heights with a companion, Charles Kipfer, and will risk his life to make observations in atmospheric levels never before visited by man.

Most of the knowledge of the stratosphere, the atmospheric regions more than six and one-half miles above the earth's surface, has so far been obtained through use of sounding balloons without passengers, by study of electro-magnetic radiation, and by poring over spectrum photographs of the aurora borealis.

To gain an impression of the size of the balloon Piccard will use it may be stated that it is 30 meters in diameter, whereas the Gordon Bennett balloons are 15 meters in diameter. Piccard's balloon will contain 14,000 cubic meters of gas, whereas the Gordon Bennett balloons contain 2,200.

To replace the customary basket-like gondola, Piccard, who is also an engineer, constructed a hollow aluminum ball seven feet in diameter and weighing 220 pounds. There will be hardly room for Piccard, his companion, and their vast array of scientific instruments, to get inside the gondola.

Piccard, an experienced balloonist, already has made twelve scientific flights. On one of these he tested certain phases of the Einstein relativity theory. Kipfer, on the contrary, has never been in a balloon.

Piccard sharply rejected a sugges-

"Rainy Days" Are Past

During the economic depression thousands of people hoarded their savings for possible "rainy days." This has resulted in increased savings deposits, in banks of the Federal Reserve Board, totaling $282,000,000 over last year's figures of the same date . . . The necessity for restraint in spending has passed and a more liberal attitude will lend new impulse to business activity, solve the unemployment problem and result in definite benefit to every American citizen . . . Pope Displays Amusement About Reports of Sickness

Head of Dominicans Tells of Gossip of Supposed Trouble; Pius Says, "For Past Eight Years We Have Not Had One Hour's Illness."

Rome, Sept. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Pope Pius is apparently rather amused at the constant reports that he has been dangerously ill. During a long interview with the master general of the Dominicans today his holiness asked what people abroad were saying about it. Little by little he drew from his visitor all the gossip about the supposed illness, visits from foreign specialists and surgeons and their diagnoses, and their decisions that an operation was necessary but that it would be imprudent to perform it because of the condition of the patient.

The Pope's face showed considerable amusement during the recital and when the Dominican had said all there was to say about the present rumors, he said:

"We ought to be very ill, or at least believe ourselves very ill, as every day we get letters from all over the world about it. These kind letter writers recommend doctors, surgeons and medicines warranted to heal us. Some even offer free treatment and operations. My son, you may reassure all these anxious people. Neither we nor our personal physicians had any idea we suffered all the disease and pain that is attributed to us.

"Neither he nor we know anything about it. For the past eight years, during which we have occupied the seat of St. Peter, we have not had one hour's illness. We must thank divine providence for this because, although good health is not everything, it helps us in everything."

But although the Pope is amused, the prelates in his entourage are not. They are annoyed at the persistent reports that the pontiff is dangerously knows exactly what pride and happiness possesses every French heart, at the knowledge that these two gallant sons of France stand safely on our soil. We wish the people of France to know that our welcome of their two heroes is warm and spontaneous and universal. We rejoice that this brilliant feat has been accomplished. We are delighted to honor these two men who have thus dramatically recalled Col. Lindbergh's call.

Courage of Mankind.

"This return visit of French aviators is even more than an occasion for national rejoicing and international felicitations. What they have done, what the great American aviators have done, Byrd, Rickenbacker and the rest, both those who sacrificed themselves wholly and those who live, is a glory of the whole human race. It demonstrates again the high courage of mankind. It gives heart to all of us in whatever tasks engage us, for it proves that there are no limits to the courage of men and that there are no limits to what that courage can accomplish.

"Again, gentlemen, I welcome you, on behalf of the American Government and on behalf of the American people."

Response by Coste.

Speaking in French, which was translated, Capt. Coste replied:

"Mr. President:

"Permit me, in the name of my comrade, Bellonte, and myself, to thank you for the words which you have just uttered and which have deeply touched us. There are times when words are powerless to express thoughts. This is one of them.

"Since our arrival on American soil, during the course of our rapid journey over part of the United States, the spontaneous, sincere and warm welcome which has been accorded us has strengthened still more the memory of those unforgettable times when Bellonte and myself have felt ourselves in touch with a whole people.

Lauds Lindbergh, Byrd.

"Three years ago the whole of France had the great honor to receive and acclaim two of the glorious heroes of your country, Lindbergh and Byrd. Their exploits gave to the French people the occasion to prove to the American people the profound affection which they have felt for more than 150 years.

"The welcome which has been given us is a proof of the similar feelings of the American Nation. We appreciate its full worth and we ask you, Mr. President, to be good enough to accept the homage of our deep gratitude."

700 at Banquet.

Vice President Curtis spoke last night in the ballroom of the Willard Hotel, at a banquet tendered Coste and Bellonte by the Washington Board of Trade and attended by 700 local business and professional leaders and their guests. His speech and the reply of Capt. Coste were broadcast over WMAL of the Columbia system.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, who brought down 26 planes in the war, also spoke, and spoke in a fashion that belied Wilbur Wright's remark that "birds fly but do not talk."

During the banquet, Rickenbacker sat next to Gen Pershing, who took him overseas as a chauffeur and then allowed him to transfer to the air corps.

Cheer Mention of Pershing.

In his speech, Rickenbacker paid tribute to "my old commanding general, John J. Pershing," and the guests leaped to their feet shouting and whistling. It was one of the highlights of the evening.

Capt. Coste, resplendent in dinner clothes, and the shy Bellonte, who looks like an Irishman, were cheered upon their arrival and departure by a large crowd that had gathered outside the Willard.

Reaching their table, they found that the entire menu had been printed in French. Then they heard the French anthem sung by Mlle. Suzanne D'Astoria Jackowska, of the Royal Albert Hall, London. They heard Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby welcome them to the city, and then heard Vice President Curtis' glowing tribute to their daring.

Idols of France.

"We well remember," he said, "the splendid reception given by the people of France to the Lone Eagle of the skies, the idol of aviation, our Col. Charles Lindbergh. We want you to know that the people of the United States are as happy over your wonderful feat as were the people of France at the great success of Col. Lindbergh.

"We are sure your hearts beat faster when you read with what wild joy your countrymen in France received the news, by radio, of your successful landing in New York. You are their courageous pair of airmen and are loved and admired by all of France. You will have a wonderful reception every place you go, and the people will linger at the radio to learn of your movements during your stay in this country.

"It is not an easy thing to make a survey of the times. We live in a choice age—it seems that all ages have been fused into this century.

Pursuit of Speed.

"There are many things today to remind us that never have men lived at such a furious pace; which show our people are impatient with space, with time and with obstacles of all kinds, and that it is the master passion of the day to conquer time, reduce space and remove all obstructions to human progress."

"As the years pass by, the minds of our experts and inventors are taxed, indeed, to add another mile to the schedule, to take another hour from the time table. The great railroads of our country are now using airplanes to accomplish this result.

"The radio and aviation are doing much to bring the peoples of the world closer together. Radio knows no distances. State lines are meaningless to it; borders between nations no longer exist; the seas no longer separate continents. Radio is bringing the people of our Nation closer to each other, promoting better understanding between the people of the United States and foreign nations.

Radio and Aviation.

"We marveled at the first Nation-wide hook-ups for radio programs, and now international broadcasting is accomplished. The radio and aviation will continue to be used as the agencies to bring about a more friendly feeling among the peoples of the world.

"You men have again demonstrated the value and importance of the airplane—its use will continue to grow. The mighty movement for greater speed can not be stopped nor can the shadow on the dial of God's plan of human progress be turned back.

"The people of our Nation's Capital are pleased to welcome you to our country, and we know you will continue to have a hearty welcome wherever you go because the people are proud of your wonderful achievement and they wish you a safe return to your family, your home, and your wonderful country—France."

LEAGUE CONSIDERS BRIAND UNION PLAN

27 NATIONS INVOLVED

Geneva, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Aristide Briand's plan for an European federation went into the state of public discussion today following upon the first session of the League of Nations council.

Representatives of 27 European states decided to submit the plan to the League of Nations assembly, bearing their adhesion in principle. Hence they adopted a resolution to that effect and asked M. Briand to place the whole matter before the league.

That means that before the close of the present assembly session the French foreign minister will explain in public the extent of the organization he deems necessary for real collaboration of European powers in both the political and economic field.

The discussion of the Briand plan was in private session, but it was apparent to observers it was not carried on in the perfunctory manner of the preceding meeting.

Great Britain Supports Resolution.

While Great Britain supported a resolution to submit the plan to the league, Mr. Henderson made a careful analysis of the possible dangers and insisted that the league must be given a free hand in the ensuing discussions.

The idea of a separate secretariat and separate political organizations for the proposed "United States of Europe" had already been pretty well abandoned by M. Briand after he received the replies to his "feeler" memorandum of May 17, and observers felt tonight the new organization—if it is established—now is definitely to be included in the mechanism of the league.

The expected procedure is that the assembly, after a discussion that will give an idea of its temper on the subject, will again submit the plan to a commission for study. Another subcommission then may draft the text to appear on the agenda of the next assembly.

In order to avoid too much emphasis on the political aspect, considered dangerous and impracticable by a good many states represented today, some statesmen have suggested that an economic commission—or an economic-political commission—undertake to round up the matter in acceptable form for European cooperation and collaboration.

Preparations Going Ahead.

There probably will be no meeting of the European conference tomorrow and the afternoon will be given over to preparations for the assembly's discussion of the federation plan.

The text of the resolution by which the federation plan was turned over to the assembly is as follows:

"Representatives of the European states which are members of the League of Nations, meeting at Geneva September 8, 1930, in pursuance of a decision taken in Geneva September 9, 1929, after taking note of the results of an inquiry instituted with a view to organization of an European federal union, convinced that close collaboration of the European governments in all international activity is of capital importance for the maintenance of peace throughout the world, unanimous on the other hand in their conviction that this collaboration should be carried out in complete agreement with the League of Nations on the basis of respect for all principles contained in the covenant, decide to place the question on the agenda of the assembly."

REPUBLICAN WOMEN CLAIMING FLORIDA

Revived G. O. P. Division Puts Out Statement Hopeful of Holding Gains.

STAND SURPRISES MEN

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The first activity of the rejuvenated women's division of the Republican national committee came yesterday with the ambitious claim that the Republicans would hold Florida.

In a statement sponsored by Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, the new women's director, and issued by Mrs. Clara C. Grace, Florida national committeewoman, the latter said:

"We are confidently hopeful of conserving the Republican gains made in 1928. The Republican women are actively at work.

"In Florida, where the women cast 45 per cent of the total vote and exert a powerful influence on the votes of the men-folks, I think we have every right to be optimistic about the forthcoming election."

Helped By Tariff.

The tariff has helped Florida women, Mrs. Grace said. Living costs have gone down instead of up, but "first and last," she said, "the women are rallying around our President."

This first effort of the women's division caused some amazement, at least amusement, in political circles, because it was known that the Republicans have not nominated any candidates in Florida in the congressional elections.

It would certainly be a shock to those Florida Democrats who have already been renominated and consider themselves elected.

With the exception of the 1928 campaign, Florida Republicans have never made a serious bid for office, and in 1928 no candidate except President was able to get anywhere in the State.

The statement is believed to presage the breaking of the silence of the Republican women's division. The men rather neglected it after the campaign of 1928 and as a result they found they were sitting on a sizzling furnace here several weeks ago when Mrs. Louise M. Dodson resigned as the director.

How Clash Developed.

At the time it was developed that Mrs. Dodson was not so anxious to retire as she was to call attention to the way the men were neglecting the division. There was a lot of hullabaloo that Mrs. Yost's appointment would not last long.

Apparently Senator Fess, chairman of the committee, quieted the women down but not without telling them frankly that the men had learned a lesson and that thenceforth they would be given something to do.

It looks as if they are to be permitted to issue statements about Florida. Those of the kind issued by Mrs. Grace mean nothing at all and therefore are quite harmless.

Sculptor to Sue Tammany For Bust of Aged Sachem

Chairman of House Committee Refuses Work on Ground It Does Not Look Like 101-Year-Old John R. Voorhis.

New York, Sept. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Tammany may not know about art, but it knows what it doesn't like—especially if the criticism is worth $1,000. Such is the burden of Dr. Thomas Darlington's reply to the suit to be brought against Tammany Hall and John F. Curry as Tammany leader, by John F. iLns, sculptor. The papers will be served on Mr. Curry as soon as he returns from Syracuse, probably tomorrow.

Lins executed a bust of John R. Voorhis, 101-year-old president of the board of elections and grand sachem of Tammany. He did the work, he says, on the written authorization of Mr. Curry for a stipulated price of $1,000, and he avers that he has been trying since 1929 to collect, to be told finally the other day by Dr. Darlington, chairman of the Tammany house committee that "he wouldn't pay a nickel" for the bust.

Lins' story, as told by himself and by his attorney, Julius Reinlieb, is that in February, 1929, when Mr. Voorhis was approaching his 100th birthday, he sent one of his salesmen to Mayor Walker with the suggestion that Lins be commissioned to execute a bust of the venerable sachem. The mayor, he said, took up with the idea enthusiastically, saying, "That's a swell idea. Anybody that's lived a hundred years is entitled to a bust. You see Curry; if he doesn't authorize it, I will."

The Lins emissary saw Mr. Curry, the tsory goes, and the Tammany leader gave Lins written authorization to proceed at the $1,000 price. Mr. Voorhis then posed fo the sculptor in his studio and in about a month the completed bust, cast in bronze, was delvered by the sculptor to Tammany Hall.

Since then, he said, he has several times requested payment and about a year ago sent the Curry written authorization to the Tammany organization as proof of his claim. He has also, he said, requested during the past year that this written authorization be returned him, but without avail.

Dr. Darlington said today that the commission for the bust was conditioned on its acceptance by the sachems of Tammany Hall. The sachems, he said, considered the matter and refused acceptance on artistic grounds. "Personally, I dodn't think it looked very much like Mr. Voorhis," Dr. Darlington added.

HYDE URGES ATTACK ON FARM SURPLUSES

Secretary Among Speakers as Inter-American Session Opens Here.

STORM RELIEF IS ASKED

(Associated Press.)

A simultaneous attack by all of the American nations upon the problem created by farm production surpluses was recommended by Secretary Hyde yesterday at the inaugural ceremonies of the first inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal indutry.

Secretary Hyde asked the delegates to consider seriously international cooperation as a method of curing the twin evils, overproduction and low prices. He stressed the necessity for governments and associations throughout this hemisphere to realize that a program of increasing production efficiency was "not in itself the answer to the farmers' problems."

Secretary Lamont later told the delegates the competitive trade forces between this nation and those to the south were generally overestimated. He said agricultural interests in Latin American countries and those of the United States were largely similar and stressed the importance for developing the Latin American republics for the "economic rehabilitation of the world."

He said the fairness which characterized the trade between North and South America could be shown by the fact that 70 per cent of Latin American goods came into this country duty free in 1929. He added that the flexible provision of the new tariff law was an instrument by which fairness of trade could be maintained.

Following the unanimous selection of Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific work of the United States Department of Agriculture as permanent chairman, and Dr. Leon M. Estabrook, also of the Agriculture Department, as secretary, a resolution was adopted by the conference urging all the governments of this hemisphere to expend every effort in procuring and transmitting financial assistance to the hurricane-stricken Dominican Republic.

Among other speakers were Joseph P. Cotton, Acting Secretary of State; Ambassador Manuel C. Telles, of Mexico; Dr. Ernesto Argueta, Minister of Honduras; Pablo M. Ynsfran, charge d'affaires from Paraguay; Persio Franco, charge d'affaires of the Dominican Republic; Carlos J. Quintero, delegate from Panama, and Dr. Carlos E. Chardon, commissioner of agriculture of Porto Rico.

The delegates were guests last night at a luncheon tendered by the governing board of the Pan-American Union.

NAVY PLANES LOAD SURGICAL SUPPLIES

GANGRENE SPREAD SEEN

(Associated Press.)

Prompt response was given by the Navy yesterday to a call from Santo Domingo for surgical instruments, "especially those used in amputations," for use in treating thousands of gangrenous cases reported spreading over the disease-threatened city in the wake of the hurricane.

The American Red Cross received reports from Capt. Antonio Silva, representing the Red Cross at Santo Domingo, and Charles B. Curtis, American Minister to the Dominican Republic, that 1,000 patients had been examined for gangrenous infections and that medical supplies from adjacent regions had been exhausted.

Conference Held Here.

Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, surgeon general of the Army; Rear Admiral Charles E. Riggs, surgeon general of the Navy, and John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, held a hasty conference, and within five hours a Navy plane had hopped off for Philadelphia for a load of antitetanus serum and antitoxins, and two others had been ordered to depart for the naval station at Norfolk, Va., at dawn today, where they will take on a cargo of bandages and medical supplies.

Present plans were for the planes to meet at Norfolk today, interchange cargoes and take off immediately the first lap of their journey to Santo Domingo. Each plane will carry load of 2,000 pounds of surgical dressings, antitoxin and anesthetic. They will fly to Santo Domingo via Atlanta, Ga.; Miami, Fla.; Camaguey, Cuba, and Port au Prince, Haiti.

Acting under Navy Department orders, Rear Admiral W. R. Sexton, commander of het destroyer squadron scouting fleet, yesterday dispatched the U. S. S. Gilmer, destroyer, from Newport, R. I., to New York Harbor to be held in stand-by status if it should prove necessary to send further medical aid to the Dominican city.

Gravity Increases Hourly.

Meantime, President Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, cabled Rafael Brache, the Dominican Minister to this country, that the magnitude of the devastation caused by the hurricane was being found increased hourly.

"Conditions disastrous and aggravating each minute," he said. "Development of epidemic feared."

His cablegram said 2,000 dead had been buried or burned, more than 5,000 were injured and more than 30,000 homeless.

At the same time Trujillo cabled to L. S. Rowe, director of the Pan-American Union, his appreciation of a suggestion of that organization that all of the governments of America cooperate in relieving the stricken country.

CHASE BANK MERGER RUMORS ARE HEARD

STOCK PRICES ADVANCE

New York, Sept. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Reports of a merger of the Corn Exchange Bank & Trust Co. with the Chase National Bank were widespread in Wall street today. Such a consolidation would result in an institution with aggregate resources exceeding $2,900,000,000. The Chase Bank is already the largest in the world, and the reported merger would increase its leadership in this respect substantially.

Officials of the Corn Exchange denied the report. Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National, declined to comment on it. Corn Exchange stock reflected a lively demand, being quoted at 164½ to 168½, compared with 161 to 165 on Saturday. Chase shares were steady at 146¼ to 149¼.

The Chase attained its position as the largest bank in the world through the merger earlier this year with the Equitable Trust Co. The Corn Exchange Bank & Trust Co. was a subject of frequent discussion following the disapproval of a proposed merger with the National City Bank last fall by the stockholders of the latter institution.

Aggregate resources of the Chase National Bank as of June 30 were $2,648,958,343, including $1,424,572,620 in loans and discounts and $710,978,188 in cash and funds due from banks. Capital and surplus amounted to $148,000,000 each and undivided profits totaled $68,310,480. Deposits totaled $2,065,434,799. Albert H. Wiggin is chairman of the board of director and Charles S. McCain is vice chairman.

The July 1 statement of the Corn Exchange Bank & Trust Co. showed total resources of $293,777,377, including $54,838,311 in demand loans and $48,436,519 in oher loans. Cash amounted to $44,088,237 and United States Government securities owned totaled $42,450,099. Walter E. Frew is chairman of the Corn Exchange, Dunham B. Shearer is vice chairman and Henry A. Patten is president.

ROBBER WHO KILLED POLICEMAN EXPIRES

17-Year-Old Gunman Dead in Alexandria Hospital After Gun Duel.

OTHER SLAYINGS TRACED

With the death of Owen Wroten, 17-year-old colored robber, Alexandria authorities yesterday wrote a closed chapter on the slaying of Patrolman A. Perry Pierce, with whom Wroten early Sunday fought a gun duel to the death.

Meanwhile, authorities from other jurisdictions were striving to connect Wroten with slayings of other policemen and railroad detectives.

Detectives of Richmond, Va., said yesterday that they would investigate the possibility that Wroten was the slayer of L. B. Clements, railroad detective, whose body was found in a railway yard near Petersburg, Va., early last week.

North Carolina police say that the description of Wroten tallies with that of the man wanted in Fayetteville, N. C., for the murder of a policeman.

Wroten died early yesterday in the Alexandria Hospital of three bullet wounds from Patrolman Pierce's gun. A guard was stationed at Wroten's bed before he died. Pierce was slain when he accosted the man who answered the description of a man who had perpetrated five holdups in Alexandria on Saturday night.

Funeral services for Patrolman Pierce will be held at his home, 516 Carroll avenue, Lyon Park, Va., Wednesday afternoon. Alexandria police will form an escort, which will lead the cortege to Arlington, where burial will take place.

PRINCESS ANASTASIA TO REMAIN LONGER

Permission to Stay in D. S. Another Year Granted Russian Woman.

HEIR OF CZAR, IS CLAIM

(Associated Press.)

Permission to remain in the United States for another year was granted yesterday by the Labor Department to Princess Anastasia Tschaikowsky, who claims to be a daughter of the former Russian czar.

The permit of the princess, who came to the United States from Russia, expired last August 8. Shortly afterward, she applied for a year's extension.

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Mme. Anastasia Tschaikowsky, who was granted permission today to remain in the United States for another year, was brought here in 1928 by the then Mrs. William B. Leeds. She said she was the youngest daughter of the late Czar Nicholas II of Russia and had escaped the doom that befell other members of the family.

In America she was entertained and acclaimed by several society leaders as the true Duchess Anastasia Niklovena, heiress to the royal fortunes. In Europe the claim was denied by some surviving members of the Romanoff family.

Mme. Tschaikowsky subsequently engaged Edward H. Fallows, former New York assemblyman, to press her claims to a reputedly fabulous fortune left by the czar.

The vessel was blown to pieces by the blast and its flaming fragments set fire to eighteen other sailing boats and one steamship which burned rapidly.

The crews of the burning ships threw themselves into the water, but it is feared many were fatally burned. The Standard Oil Depots on the shore apparently were safe.

Arbitration Hailed For Business Rows

Will Aid Understanding Between Nations, Speaker Tells Law Groups.

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Commercial arbitration was praised as an aid of better understanding between nations at a luncheon given the International Law Association by the American Arbitration Association today.

"No one expects that commercial arbitration will introduce the millenium," Arthur K. Kuhn, of New York, vice president of the Arbitration Association, said, "but narrow indeed is the mind that can not perceive that a better understanding between financial and commercial interests throughout the world will be promoted by facilitating the settlement of disputes more cheaply, more promptly and without the bitterness that attends a long drawn-out litigation."

The association today approved a report of its aerial naw committee which recommended international codes for air travel, uniform identification marks and uniform civil laws regarding damages and liability.

Aircraft Carrier Bid Not Awarded

$19,000,000 Authorization May Not Be Sufficient, Adams Declares.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Adams yesterday said the contract for construction of a new aircraft carrier had not been awarded because there was no certainty sufficient funds were available.

Bids for construction of the carrier were opened last Wednesday. Of the three submitted, the lowest was from Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., of Newport News, Va., $15,560,000. All bids were for construction of hull and machinery only.

Congress authorized $19,000,000 for the total cost of construction and the Bureau of Ordnance estimated armor and armor plate would cost about $4,400,000. The Newport News bid would thus bring the total cost to almost $1,000,000 more than the amount authorized. The Navy is left the alternative of having scaled down either the bids of the armor estimate, or of asking Congress for more money.

Commission Soon Will Visit Samoa

Senators, House Members Seek Democratic Form of Government.

(Associated Press.)

After 30 years of peace under United States rule, the once warridden islands in the South Seas that form American Samoa are to be studied by a congressional commission with a view to establishing a democratic government for the 10,000 true Polynesians who dwell there.

Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, himself born in Hawaii, as the son of a missionary, who has spent many years studying the problems of America's possessions in the Pacific, instituted the move after he was successful in 1929 in having Congress ratify the cession of the islands in 1900. He is chairman of the group.

The commission, in addition to Senator Bingham, consists of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Representatives Beedy, of Maine, and Williams, of Texas. The group will sail from San Pedro, Calif., aboard the cruiser Omaha next Thursday for Hawaii to hold hearings among a group of Samoans there, before going on to Pago Pago, Samoa, for twelve days of hearings in the islands.

Vapors in Ice Box Detect Stale Meat, Chemist Told

Age Finder Is Atmosphere Exhaled by Refrigerant, Solid Carbon Dioxide, Scientists at Convention in Cincinnati Are Informed.

Cincinnati, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—An ice box of the future which will show up old beef that the housewife has been misled into buying as "fresh meat" was described in a report to the American Chemical Society today.

If the "fresh" beef has been stored a long time, it comes out of this new refrigerant with its color changed from red to brown. Really fresh beef remains red.

This age finder is an atmosphere exhaled by the refrigerant, solid carbon dioxide, or dry ice. It was presented as a preservative promising some definite improvements in the food supply.

It is not a substitute for present refrigeration methods, said the author of the report, D. H. Killeffer, of New York, but something which can further increase the length of time farm and ranch products will retain their original freshness and healthful properties.

Expense at present prevents its use in homes, he said, but in quantity distribution it is doing things which two years ago even scientists consedered an impossible dream.

In temperatures of 40 to 45 degrees placed round steak, soup meat, neck bone, sweebreads, beef kidneys, spareribs, pork trimmings, pork loins, duck, pork sausages, frankfurters, butter, cheese, eggs and lambs chops.

All of them kept fresh for three weeks, Killefer said. A duplicate set of edibles was kept in ordinary air at the same temperature. In two weeks a meat inspector threw out as spoiled the pork, spare ribs, soup meat, lamb chops, kidneys, sweetbreads, frankfurters and pork sausage. In vrey heavy carbon dioxide atmosphere meat and fish kept for several days at 80 degrees.

Fruits and vegetables, he said, are not preserved by carbon dioxide in the same way but experiments under way show that these green things tolerate a not too heavy concentration of the gas.

The "ice" si made by compressing carbon dioxide first into a liquid—the fizz water of soft drinks—and then squeezing the liquid into a solid.

Nature also produces this dry ice, compressing the gas by tremendous pressure deep underground. Last year a Western petroleum well was discovered with an estimated production of a trainload a day of solid carbon dioxide.

Raskob to Begin Radio Blasts of Democrats

(Associated Press.)

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will lead the way to the microphone for the group of radio speakers with which Democrats will close the forthcoming campaigns.

Raskob will speak over a national broadcasting hook-up on the night of September 15 at 7 p. m., Eastern standard time, on "The Tariff From a Business Man's Standpoint." Plans already have been made for Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James Cox to speak later in the campaign.

Better Wheat Prices Predicted by Legge

(Associated Press.)

Better prices for wheat were predicted by Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board, yesterday on the theory that the use of farm stocks for live stock feed and better than normal export demand will convince the trade that wheat is on a domestic basis.

The chairman said that farmers could afford to feed wheat at $1 a bushel and advised that they hold what corn they have for finishing. Stock fed on corn first will not do so well if it is changed later to a substitute feed, he said, but will make good gains on wheat and fatten well on a ration of corn.

More Than 100 Times Around the World

The motor trucks of the American Ice Company would probably take a prize from any travel club in the world—were mileage, alone, considered. During the past year these trucks have traveled 2,842,875 miles—more than 100 times around the earth. And at each of their many stops they have left cool comfort and the promise of deliciously fresh food.

The American Ice Company prides itself upon the service that it is able to render its customers. Its great fleet of motor trucks is only one item of the equipment that makes the prompt daily delivery of ice a certainty, instead of a hope. So regular is this service that many of our friends say they can set their watches by the arrival of the American Ice deliveryman.

ANDREE'S FUNERAL HELD IN TROMSOE

Flags Draped Over Coffins of Him and Strindberg; Later Put in Crypt.

FRANKEL'S BODY ON WAY

Tromsoe, Norway, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Beneath half-staffed flags, a reverent crowd gathered in and around the little Tromsoe church today during funeral services for Salomon Auguste Andree and Nils Strindberg, whose bodies recently were brought from an icy grave on White Island, where they died 33 years ago.

The coffins containing the remains of the two balloonist-explorers were carried into the chancel, which was decorated with Swedish flags. Both the Noregian and Swedish flags were draped over the coffins.

After a hymn by a mixed club, Dean Nissen delivered a moving sermon, in the course of which he recalled that two years ago memorial services were held in the same church for Roald Amundsen.

Relatives Are Present.

The relatives of Andree and Strindberg, representatives of the Swedish-Norwegian commission, the crew of the sealer Bratvaag, which discovered the bodies, and members of Dr. Gunnar Horn's expedition attended the services. Petty officers and sailors from warships in the harbor paraded to the church as a final tribute.

After the services the coffins were carried by Norwegian sailors to the southern corridor of the church, which will be used as a provisional crypt. After arrival of the sealer Isbjoern with the body of Knut Frankel, all three bodies will be taken from the church to the cruiser Svenskund by Swedish sailors.

Stockholm, Sept. 8.—The gunboat Svenskund has been ordered to remain at Tromsoe and take aboard the new Andree relics which the sealing vessel Isbjoern will bring home to Norway. The Isbjoern, which dashed north to White Island when the news of Dr. Horn's discovery became known, was still at White Island today.

New discoveries have resulted in new theories regarding Andree's fate. Prof. J. Gunnar Anderson thinks the Andree party landed on White Island or in the immediate vicinity. The camp was admirably organized, considering the circumstances.

May Have Eaten Bear Liver.

One possible cause of the explorer's death was the eating of bear liver, which is very poisoning. All authorities agree now that Andree lived a long time, perhaps more than a year, on White Island. He probably was alive when the Nathorst expedition visited the island in 1896.

The most probable cause of the death of the men, however was a great snowstorm, combined with intense cold, after the balloonists had been weakened by privations and a single diet.

Premier Ekman declared today that no publication of the Andree records can take place before the legal ownership of the relics and documents had been decided definitely.

REPUBLICANS LEAD IN MAINE ELECTION

Candidates for Governor and Seats in Congress Gain Clear Majorities.

WHITE IS 2-TO-1 LEADER

Portland, Me., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Republican candidates for United States senator, governor and representatives in Congress were sweeping into office tonight with clear majorities over their Democratic opponents as returns from 205 out of 632 precincts were reported.

Walalce H. White, jr., Lewiston, who has represented the Second District in Congres sfor elevn years, had a slightly better than two to one majority over his Democratic foe, Frank H. Haskell, Portland attorney, in the race for senator.

Gov. William Tudor Gardiner was running behind his teammate and apparently was not to have the 82,000 majority which he piled up two years ago against Edward C. Moran, jr., Rockland, who was the Democratic party gubernatorial candidate this year again.

The vote for 205 precincts was:

For senator—White, 1,932; Haskell, 9,680.

For governor—Gardiner, 18,066; Moran, 11,767.

The Republican candidates for the four congressional seats were far ahead of their opponents.

The Second District, where Donald B. Partridge, Norway, Republican, aspired to the seat to be vacated by White, provided teh closest vote. With 52 of the 145 precincts reported, aPrtridge had 5,842, while his Democratic opponent, Albert Beliveau, Rumford, had 3,309.

Representatives Carroll L. Beedy, Portland, First District; John E. Nelson, Augusta, Third Distriet, and Donald F. Snow, Bangor, Fourth, had good leads over Thomas F. Locke, Biddeford; Leon D. Lamond, of Eastport, and Clinton C. Stevens, their Democratic opponents.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

NOW, there should be a law—there should be a law against these ice cream venders who operate on the corners, having more than one flavor of ice cream at a time.

One comes grouchily of a morning from his house to catch the bus, grumbling at the time he will have to wait. Half a block away is one of these venders and a happy thought comes. Running his hand expectantly into his pocket he discovers an extra dime, that is to say, a dime which is open and above board, a dime on the velvet, a dime for which he does not have to account, a dime with which he may plunge into a bit of life's own delight.

"Ah, ha," says he, "I shall buy myself an ice cream stick and eat it while awaiting the bus."

INSTANTLY, the grouchiness passes and a happy, anticipatory smile breaks over his face. Involuntarily his feet quicken in their gait, his mind enters a pleasant reverie, his lips smack as they taste the ice cream 300 feet away.

By the time he reaches the vender he is lost in a perfect ecstasy of it all, the contemplation has completely mastered him. He is at the high pitch of an orgy of expectation, his nostrils distended and his eyes as big as saucers.

"Give me one," he commands merrily, tossing a dime upon the wagon. The very abandon of the thing fascinates him. He throws out his chest, takes a deep draft of the morning air, and like Senator Coley Blease, observes that he is a very happy man, that the world is all right with him.

* * * *

THEN he is shocked out of his reverie, brought rudely back to earth, so to speak, by the very simple question, "What kind do you want?"

Now, in the midst of his happy contemplation, when his mind is reviewing the beauty and poetry of life, here he has the making of a decision thrust upon him. It comes with the sting of a dagger point, it deflates him from the lofty heights of anticipation to the very practical thing of deciding on the moment, of saying just what flavor it is that he wants.

The mind is not ripe for such a task this early in the morning, anyhow, the sleep is hardly out of one's eye, and certainly the mentality can not, in an instant, readjust its mechanism from a high geared, smoothly running dreaminess to a formation for dealing with practical things.

* * * *

IT makes one desperate as he stands there, the vendor looking at him questioningly, and mumbling apparently millions of miles away: "I've got razzberry, vanilla, chocolate, peach and cocoanut," and so until his words fade entirely beyond the ear.

One becomes frantic, beads of perspiration form on his brow.

Which one is he to choose? Why this whole morning's adventure hinges upon this decision he is called upon to make. He inwardly moans at the responsibility of it.

He makes a desperate plunge. "Give me razzberry," he commands.

And then with one bite he realizes that that is not the flavor he wanted at all. Disgustedly he tosses it away.

Now why can't the vendor just hand him an ice cream with the salutation, "Heah," and let it go at that? The chances are nine out of ten it would be just what he wants.

One has neither the time nor the dimes to experiment while waiting for the bus.

BARKLEY'S FEARS VAIN, MILLS HOLDS

Kentuckian Fail to Grasp Huge U. S. Trade, Asserts Undersecretary.

WAR DEBTS TINY ITEM

(Associated Press.)

Under Secretary Mills of the Treasury and Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia, replied yesterday to the statement issued Sunday by Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, that the new Smoot-Hawley tariff bill would lead to a movement for cancellation of the war debt of foreign nations to this country.

Mr. Mills asserted Senator Barkley "fails to take into consideration the magnitude of our cash dealings with foreign countries and of the many individual factors that enter into the balance of international payments."

Debt Payments Small.

"In 1929," he added, "our cash claims due from foreigners are estimated by the Department of Commerce to have aggregated about $7,382,000,000 and cash claims due to foreigners at some $6,898,000,000, or a total eclusive of figures covering long-term investments and straight banking transactions of over $14,000,000,000, of which payments to our Government on account of foreign governmental debts would only be about 1½ per cent.

"As the Department of Commerce has pointed out, in 1929 the favorable trade balance of $734,000,000 could have been financed by the expenditures of American tourists abroad; the net yield of investments could have been financed by our underwkriting of new foreign securities, and the war debt payments could have been financed by immigrant remittances or by payment for ocean freights."

Hears "Dollars Speaking."

Senator Hatfield said in a statement through the Republican national committee that Senator Barkley was being used as a spokesman for American international bankers.

"Republican tariff-built prosperity has increased America's private foreign investments from $2,000,000,000 in 1913 to $15,000,000,000 at this time," he said. "It was not Senator Barkley speaking; it was the fifteen billion American dollars invested overseas.

"These fifteen billion American dollars are on the side of foreign industry employing peasant labor arraigned against the American working man with his high wages and high living standards which are the envy of the rest of the world."

MONTGOMERY VOTE HEAVIEST ON RECORD

Regulars Lead All Districts of County Except One; Fight Squelched.

BALLOTS ARE MENACED

Voters Turn Out Early.

Because of the intense rivalry between the organization and anti-organization factions in Montgomery Conuty, the voters turned out early to cast their ballots. In most of the precincts 60 per cent of the votes were said to have been cast before noon.

In Damascus, one of the reputed strongholds of the progressive group, the Peter precinct leaders conceded the victory to the Lee candidates about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, it was reported.

Only one disturbance was recorded throughout the county. That was a fight at Laytonsville, but it was quickly squelched.

Most of the voters appeared to be in the best of humor as they approached the polls, exchanging jests and making predictions as to the outcome.

Many Women Ballot.

The women, many of them mothers, flocked to the voting places. Policemen and idle men were entrusted with babies as the mothers marked their ballots.

The major issues in Montgomery County, outside the personal feud, were the Cramton park bill and the present system of bonded indebtedness, bsoth of which were upheld by the incumbent organization.

The Crampton measure proposes to lend $3,000,000 to the Maryland Park and Planning Commision for the purchase and development of land for park purposes in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties. The administration planned to accept the money and ask authority of the 1931 Legislature to float a 50-year bond issue to be paid out of the present 7-cen park and planning tax.

Tax Increase Seen.

Antiorganization leaders contended that acceptance of the bill would necessitate the raising of the tax rate from 35 to 30 per cent. They also opposed the bonded indebtedness system by which the county improvements have been financed by the administration and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

Vote Light in Other Counties.

Because of the lack of issues and the fact that the two gubernatorial tickets, headed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat, and William F. Broening, Republican Mayor of Baltimore, were unopposed, the vote throughout the other counties of Maryland was light, according to the Associated Press.

Four of the six members of Congress were without primary opposition, though there were contests in five of the congressional districts. One of the hottest of these fights was in Baltimore, where Representative Vincent L. Palmisano was opposed by four other candidates for the Democratic nomination.

Although local interest was aroused in Baltimore and 800 police were detailed for duty at the election booths, there was no disorder.

This is the first time in the county's history that the Democratic voters in Montgomery County have beer able to base their choice of faction upon an official platform. Some time ago the Progressive Democratic leaders issued their platform in pamphlet form, and about two weeks ago the organization chiefs followed suit.

Both the Republicans and the Democrats cast their primary votes in Prince Georges County yesterday, but only the Democrats went to the polls in Montgomery County. Lacking any such intraparty or factional contests as agitated Montgomery County, the citizens of Prince Georges County did their balloting in rather a matter-of-fact way, being influenced only in their selection by the personalities and records of the individual candidates.

Prince Georges Republicans nominated their candidates for sheriff and county commissioners, with ten contestants for the six positions to be filled. The Democrats had a choice of twenty candidates for fourteen offices, including sheriffs, county commissioners, State's attorney, Congress, and the State House of Delegates. Neither party offered any platform to its constituents in Prince Georges County.

art & Co. and Hotel Securities Management Corporation, present operators of extensive Wardman properties in Washington.

The plaintiff, his attorney said, also demands accounting and alleges fraud and conspiracy on the part of Wardman, Hobbs and firm of Rogers Caldwell & Co. The basis of the action, as explained by Mr. Ellis, is an agreement between Nassauer, Wardman and Rogers Caldwell under which Nassauer was to arrange for refinancing the Wardman interests. Mr. Nassauer interested the Caldwell firm in underwriting a bond issue for the refinancing, Mr. Ellis said, but when he told Messrs. Wardman and Hobbs of arrangement, they declared deal off. Shortly afterward, however, a Washington newspaper carried advertisement offering $11,000,000 bond issue of the Wardman Real Estate Properties through Rogers Caldwell and other brokers, the lawyer said.

Mr. Wardman at his home last night discounted the importance of the suit. He said that Mr. Nassauer had come to his office two years ago and had attempted to interest the firm in a refinancing plan.

Mr. Wardman denied the contention of Mr. Nassauer that an agreement had been signed with Rogers Caldwell & Co through the plaintiff's agency. Mr. Wardman said that Mr. Nassauer had attempted to collect a commission after the firm had been refinanced.

CAPT. W. E. SANFORD SEEKS RETIREMENT

Fifth Police Precinct Head Has 31 Years' Service; to Quit Oct. 1.

IS SECOND WITHIN WEEK

Capt. William E. Sanford, commander of the Fifth Police Precinct, yesterday asked that he be retired effective October 1. He has had more than 31 years' service in the Police Department and is entitled to retirement.

The action of the veteran precinct commander came as something of a surprise, coming as it did four days after the retirement of Capt. Charles T. Peck, commander of the Eleventh Precinct.

There was no connection between the retirement of the two captains and their departure from active service does not presage any further retirements, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, said. No shake-up of the department personnel is contemplated, Maj. Pratt said.

Who will be named to succeed Capt. Sanford will depend somewhat on the Civil Service Commission. Captains are named from a list of eligibles prepared by the commission on the basis of examination.

Lieut. James Beckett, of the First Precinct, stands first on the list of lieutenants eligible for promotion, it is said, but the commission has under preparation a new list to be based on examinations held several weeks ago. If the new list is not completed before October 1 the present list will serve as the basis for selection of the men to be promoted.

Capt. Sanford was appointed a policeman on July 1, 1899, and was assigned to duty in the First Precinct. In 1909 he was made an acting sergeant and was promoted to sergeant in 1910. He was promoted to lieutenant in 1919, and on October 1, 1920, was made a captain and assigned to command of the Fifth Precinct, where he has served since except for a few months in the latter part of 1921 when he commanded the Fourth Precinct.

Born in Virginia, Capt. Sanford is the owner of a farm in that State, and he said that the first thing he expects to do when he is retired is to go hunting. He is married and has three children, and lives on Eleventh street near Clifton street northwest.

"We already know that James Hamilton Lewis is a wet and that Mrs. McCormick had said she will follow the will of the voters in the referendum," a statement from the union said. "We also know that Mrs. O'Neill is a conscientious dry. With these positions clear it has seemed unnecessary and useless to sponsor a particular candidate, for no matter who is elected, if the people declare in unquestionable terms their dry convictions, they can not be ignored.

"All our energies and all our money, therefore, will be spent to get out voters to write 'no' on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act and our own State prohibition law, the three propositions which will be on the ballot."

Mrs. McCullough said that dry voters should have the right of selecting their candidate.

"Then they may State in unmistakable terms by the referendum what they expect their candidate to do," she said.

"Other referendums have shown that Illinois is convinced on the question of prohibition, and only a manipulation in Chicago has caused the answer to be 'wet.'"

RENAMED

Harris & Ewing.

REP. STEPHEN W. GAMBRILL, of the Fifth Congressional District of Maryland, who was chosen by the Democrats yesterday for another term in the House.

MRS. IDA H. GRANT'S ESTATE TO CHILDREN

Lieut. Col. Grant and Princess Cantacuzene Are to Share Income.

HOME HERE GOES TO SON

Mrs. Ida Honore Grant, widow of Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant and daughter-in-law of President Ulysses S. Grant, left the bulk of her estate in trust for the life use of her son, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, Director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, and her daughter, Princess Julia Grant Cantacuzene. No estimate of the value of the estate was disclosed by Attorney Paul E. Lesh, who filed the document. Mrs. Grant died last Friday.

Under the terms of the will Princess Cantacuzene receives $50,000 and half of the bonds held in a safety deposit box at the American Security & Trust Co. Col. Grant is to receive the family home at 1711 Massachusetts avenue northwest, all letters and papers belonging to his father and grandfather and half of the bonds, which were left to Mrs. Grant by her husband.

In dividing the bonds, Mrs. Grant specified that the princess and the colonel must keep them separately from their other possessions and pass them on by their wills to their descendants.

All the remaining estate is to be held in trust by the trust company. The will instructs that one-half of the income is to be paid to Princess Cantacuzene and one-half to Col. Grant during their life or until the youngest grandchild has attained the age of 21 years. Then, and only then, is the trust to be dissolved. Prior to that if her own children die the trust is to be perpetrated for the benefit of the grandchildren.

Mrs. Grant's Body Buried Beside Husband's Grave

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, daughter-in-law of President Grant, was buried beside her husband yesterday in the family plot at West Point, N. Y.

The funeral party arrived from Washington aboard a special train of the Baltimore & Ohio system, and was met by officials of the United States Military Academy. The cortege proceeded immediately to the cemetery, where services were conducted by Chaplain A. B. Kinsolving.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Potter Palmer and Princess Cantacuzene were among the mourners.

In the family plot at the West Point Cemetery are all the dead of the Grant family except the former President and his wife, who are entombed on Riverside drive in New York City.

he desires, but it is believed that Irigoyen will stay in the barracks for some time because of his weakness.

Scattered Disorders Continue.

While the country in general has accepted the revolt, news of scattered disorders continues to reach the capital. A clash in the vicinity of Rodeo resulted in the killing of the chief of police of the department of Iglesias. His wife also was killed and a police sergeant was wounded.

The cabinet which took the oath today is made up as follows:

Enrique Marina, vice president.
Ernesto Bosch, foreign secretary.
Gen. Francisco Medina, war.
Rear Admiral Renard, navy.
Enrique Perez, finance.
M. Sanchez Sorrondo, interior.
Dr. E. Padilla, public instruction.
Horacio Barela, agriculture.
Octavio Pico, public works.

President Uriburo, Gen. Medina, Rear Admiral Renard and the cabinet secretary, Lieut. Col. Emilio Kinkelin, are the only military men in the new government.

Vice Consul Brave At Scene of Revolt

Ralph Miller Goes Under Rifle Fire to Rescue American Youth.

(Associated Press.)

An American vice consul in Buenos Aires was commended by cable yesterday to the State Department for "bravery and devotion" in defying rifle fire during the Argentine revolution to obtain the release of an American citizen.

Informed that Frederik Henry Radel, 22, of Chicago, had been imprisoned by the military police, charged with the possession of a revolver, the cable said, Vice Consul Ralph Miller, of New York City, traversed on three occasions streets swept by sporadic rifle fire before obtaining Mr. Radel's freedom.

Avra M. Warren, American Consul at Buenos Aires in commending Mr. Miller for bravery reported to the State Department that the case of Mr. Radel was the only demand made upon the consulate for protection of American life and property following the proclamation of martial law in the city last Friday.

Baker Murder Gun Tests Are Refused

Campbell Ballistic Expert Will Not Be Allowed to See Weapon.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday informed attorneys for Herbert M. Campbell, now under indictment for the murder of Mary E. Baker, that he would not permit defense ballistics experts to examine the weapon which the Government alleges was used by Campbell in the murder of the girl on April 11.

Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, chief defense counsel for Campbell, had sought to have Albert H. Hamilton, ballistics expert, examine the gun for the defense.

Campbell is now held in the Alexandria Jail while his attorneys conduct a fight against his removal to the District to stand trial for the murder. Federal Judge D. Lawrence Groner will hear arguments for the removal in Alexandria about September 15.

Mr. Smith said last night that he would make no legal move to secure an examination of the gun by Mr. Hamilton until the removal proceedings are heard by Judge Groner. In the event that Judge Groner orders Campbell's removal, Mr. Smith indicated that he would ask a court order to force Mr. Rover to permit gun tests by Hamilton.

Compromise Ends Elkins' Will Fight

Attorney for Mother Says All Litigants Are in Agreement.

The contest over the will of Stephen B. Elkins, who died last October in New York City, came to an end yesterday in District Supreme Court when Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins, mother of the man and resident of Washington, withdrew a caveat filed several months ago. The estate involved is valued at approximately $140,000.

Mrs. Elkins in her caveat charged that her son was not capable of making a valid will because of illness and alleged that Mrs. Evelyn I. Martin, of Long Island, N. Y., had unduly influenced him. The will gave Mrs. Martin an apartment at 381 Park avenue, New York, 4,000 acres of land in Virginia and $1,000 a month for life Davis Elkins, former senator from West Virginia and a brother of the testator, is executor of the will.

In withdrawing Mrs. Elkins' caveat Attorney Robert F. Cogswell, her attorney, announced that a compromise agreement had been reached by all persons named in the will of Mr. Elkins. He declined to make public terms of the compromise.

Belgian Balloon Ace Visits in Washington

Capt. Ernest de Muyter, noted Belgian balloonist, who has several times won the Gordon Bennett International Balloon Trophy, was a visitor in Washington yesterday.

Arriving by train from New York, he went immediately to the Belgian Embassy. He was here to visit friends and discuss credentials and passport arrangements. Last night he returned to New York, whence he intends to sail for Belgium tomorrow.

Boy, 10, Drowned in Channel.

Sterling Henson, a 10-year-old colored youth, was drowned in the Washington Channel yesterday while swimming near Water and O streets southwest. The lad lived at 126 L street southwest. The body was recovered after it had been in the water about 15 minutes, but the Rescue Squad was unable to revive him and he was pronounced dead by doctors from Emergency Hospital.

BALLONIST TO FLY TO RECORD HEIGHT

tion that he might be after the world's altitude record.

"I have but one purpose," he said. "It is to study cosmic rays. In about 90 minutes after leaving earth we expect to reach the stratosphere, where we desire to determine whether the cosmic rays will strike the balloon only vertically, or whether there are lateral components to be taken into account."

Dr. Piccard expects to land somewhere within 300 miles of Augusburg. Should things go wrong he has parachutes for himself and his companion. There is also a huge parachute for the gondola, so that the scientific instruments may descend gently and land unbroken.

Realizing from the fate of other balloonists that the human organism fails above 12,500 meters altitude (more than 37,500 feet), Piccard has built his aluminum gondola air-tight. The air inside will be regenerated on the principle used in submarines. A supply of liquid oxygen also will be taken along.

"Kipfer and I last Sunday locked ourselves up in the gondola for eight hours," said Piccard, in discussing his plans. "Our only discomfort was due to the heat, but of course in the stratosphere we'll have plenty of cold."

Both the scientists intend not only to take the heaviest of clothing, but also will cover their bodies with a thick coating of fat to protect themselves against the cold.

Dr. Piccard wrote his doctor's thesis at Zurich University under Dr. Einstein's direction. His wife, left at home in Brussels, is confident of his success. They have four children.

Cellar Cave-in Hurts Worker.

Buried by dirt which covered him when the sides of a cellar he was digging at 4900 Thirty-sixth street northwest caved in, Albert Tanner, colored, 41 years old, of 443 Six-and-one-half street southwest, is in an undetermined condition. He was taken to his home in the ambulance of the Compensation Clinic.

New Safety Markers Tried at Intersections

New types of street "buttons," used to mark the outlines of safety zones, are being tried out at several intersections here. The new markers are oval and enameled white. The surface is covered with studs of iron, faced with emery to prevent pedestrians from slipping on them.

The present type resembles thumb tacks about five inches in diameter, with a smooth, slightly rounded surface. These, particularly in wet weather, are apt to become slippery.

Alleged Drug Agents Rob Home of $1,700

Seventeen hundred dollars was missing after two men, who are said to have claimed they were Federal narcotic agents, searched the house at 511 S street northwest, according to a report made to police yesterday by Ethel Johnson, of that address.

The woman said that the men came to her house and displayed a badge. They said they were looking for drugs, but left the place after a thorough search. And the money, the woman said, left with them.

REPORTER PUNCHES GOVERNOR ON NOSE

Louisiana's Executive Withdraws Epithet and Then Both Apologize.

MISSING MEN UNFOUND

New Orleans, La., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Gov. Huey P. Long was struck on the nose today by William G. Wiegand, a reporter of the New Orleans Item, after the reporter said, the governor had called him a profane name.

The reporter had gone into the governor's quarters in the Roosevelt Hotel just ahead of a United States deputy marshal, who had a subpena for the governor's appearance in Federal court in connection with the disappearance of Samuel Irby and James Terrell. As Wiegand entered the room he was seized by two bodyguards of the governor.

He said that as he was being held the governor called him a vile name on two occasions. The reporter said he broke loose from the guards and struck the governor. He declared the guards grabbed him again, and the governor hit him twice in the face.

The governor threatened to have the reporter arrested for impersonating an officer, but Robert S. Maestri, commissioner of conservation, dissuaded the governor. Gov. Long then apologized to Mr. Wiegand for calling him the name and Mr. Wiegand apologized for striking the governor.

The New Orleans Item has been waging a campaign against Gov. Long, who seeks nomination as United States senator.

The governor appeared in court with a guard of State highway policemen. After Gov. Long's testimony that he did not at that time know the whereabouts of Irby and Terrell, subpenas were issued for them, ordering that they show cause why they should not appear in open court. Federal officers started forthwith on a search for the men.

Irby and Terrell disappeared from their hotel room early Thursday morning in company with State officers after going to Shreveport with the announced intention of filing a suit against Gov. Long, charging slander.

The sheriff said he had been lured away from the jail by a ruse, someone having told him that Deputy Collins had just died. When he learned of the plan to kill the Negro, he said, it was too late to act. The band acted before the guardsmen could interfere as they had gone away, placing the Negro inside, the sheriff said.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: Yesterday was quite exciting, wasn't it, with the French fliers in our midst and so much going on from morning till night. The reception at the French Embassy was just about the first occasion where one might have seen new autumn fashions, but, as you might expect, they were not much in evidence, as every one, nearly, is still wearing pretty frocks and hats from their summer wardrobes. That will not long be the case, however.

Nancy Carter Shop Has Reopened

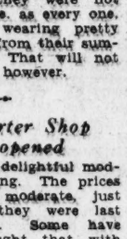
—and, oh, what delightful models she is showing. The prices are moderate, just as they were last year. Some have thought that with her spectacular success, Nancy Carter might increase her prices this season, but you will be charmed to know that she has not done so.

She has a copy of that wonderful Patou model in lightweight wool for only $29.50. Imagine! A Lanvin copy in soft green ostrich cloth is also $29.50. The copies of important models at this small price defy comparison. Stunning suits with the newest fur treatments, developed in marvelous woolens, are $65 to $150. . . . You will not see such suits at this price in many places.

The evening gowns you must see for yourself. My vocabulary is quite inadequate when it comes to describing them. They are priced from $35 to $65. Nancy Carter, 1021 Conn. ave.

The Newest Hat From Agnes

—is the shallow crowned model with the double brim and the sauciest possible quill in a contrasting color at one side. This hat is so utterly different, showing your curls and making you very "pretty," that you will want one instantly. You will find it at Miss Young's, 1143 Connecticut avenue.



At Miss Young's you will also find the Agnes beret in every adorable conception, two shades of velvet, chic little dull felts, in every shade which Paris sponsors.

Off-the-face models for matrons are deftly fashioned to give the proper look and still be flattering to the mature countenance. Hats have never been lovelier than those found at Young's, 1143 Conn. Ave., at this moment.

Even Babies Have Fall Fashions

—as you could readily understand, should you stop in at Baby Mode, 1770 Columbia road. This attractive shop has everything for the baby's wardrobe and little clothes of all kinds up to and including size 6 years.

What seemed to me a perfectly marvelous find was a table full of little dresses, most of them with matching bloomers, for only 05 cents apiece. Just now, with a hard summer over, it is wonderful for mothers to be able to buy little clothes at such a small price. They are in size 1 to 6 years.

J. Rand Has Opened Again

—after being closed for the summer season. This shop is up one short flight at 1702 Connecticut avenue. This is the only firm in America carrying the Mastraknit garments for little people. They are all imported from England, where they are beautifully made on hand looms from the finest pure wools, silks, vegetable silks and cottons. There are several weights in weaves, so children can be dressed in the weight suited to the season. Nothing compares with these little garments for fine modeling. They are chic and trim, which can not be said of most woven outfits. The colors are too delectable. Ask to see the little dresses, too.

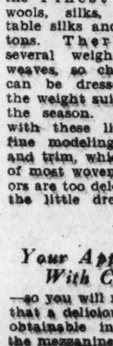
Your Appetite Returns With Cooler Days

—so you will remember instantly that a delicious dinner is always obtainable in the mezzanine restaurant at Avignone Freres. This popular restaurant serves dinner and luncheons and it is possible to have a special French menu by ordering it ahead of time. Dinner every day is $1 and on Sundays is $1.25. If you have never dined here you truly have something in store for you in the matter of savory dishes of all kinds.

The Avignone service includes hors d' ouevres, which will be sent to your home at an appointed time, and of course the ices and frozen desserts are too famous to need mentioning. Call Co. 0333. Avignone Freres, 1777 Columbia road.

Travel Crepes Are Featured

—in the new frocks shown at Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut Avenue. It was nice to find this popular shop open and ready for business yesterday morning when I stepped out on my weekly round.



Schwartz will fulfill your expectations this fall in the great variety of models, the small prices, the splendid stylings. If you had the habit last year of stopping in there for your little inexpensive gowns, for wear any time of day or evening, you will be more than pleased with what they have for you now.

QUIZ INTO BONDING RACKET ASKED OF LAW COMMISSION

Rover Asserts Grand Jury Investigation Begun Last Week Will Continue.

WOMAN'S AFFIDAVIT TO BE SIFTED TOMORROW

Alleges She Was Urged to Drop Lawyer for One Who Would Get Her Freed.

Coincidentally with the announcement yesterday by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover that the District of Columbia grand jury today would continue its investigation of the alleged bonding racket, it was revealed that certain attorneys and others have asked President Hoover's Crime Commission to make a thoroughgoing investigation of the situation.

The grand jury probe of the bonding situation started last week, and Mr. Rover states he is in a receptive mood to receive and investigate any other complaints which may be filed with his office. The investigation, which is to be made tomorrow, centers about an affidavit in which a defendant in a liquor case alleges she was approached by a bondsman and told that if she would discharge the attorney of her choice he would secure for her one who would get her out of "her trouble."

Witneses Are Called.

Mr. Rover has called as witnesses Margaret M. Price, of Sixth street northwest near D street, who is said to have made the affidavit; Roselyn B. Susan, a notary public of the Stewart Building, who witnessed the signature, and Charles Beavers, of Tenth street southeast near G street, who is alleged to have obtained the woman's signature to the document.

Investigation of the alleged bonding racket in the District came to a climax several weeks ago when Assistant United States Attorney David Aiken Hart, chief prosecutor in Police Court, stated he had recommended nominal bonds for liquor law violators. After considerable publicity, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, in the face of refusal of Police Court judges to lower the bond scale in liquor cases, announced that in the future police would book liquor defendants only on one charge.

Dr. Armstrong Volunteers.

At the same time rumors became current that there was possible collusion between bondsmen and policemen and between bondsmen and certain attorneys. In an effort to offset these rumors, Milton S. Kronheim, president of the Professional Bondsmen's Association went to Mr. Rover and demanded an investigation, but it was refused on the grounds that no concrete charges had been made and the grand jury had nothing to investigate.

Immediately afterward Dr. James R. Armstrong, of the Montana Apartments, volunteered to go before the grand jury. He testified last Tuesday, but it was understood his testimony related to conditions existing in 1915. Then Mr. Rover obtained the affidavit and the investigation was started anew.

REAL ESTATE SUIT NAMES DR. ROGERS

Owner Seeks to Restrain Sale of Northwest Property.

USURY IS ALSO ALLEGED

The District Supreme Court yesterday was asked to enjoin Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, of Casualty Hospital; James A. Soper, of the Lincoln National Bank, and Samuel H. Rogers, of 1455 Massachusetts avenue northwest, from selling premises at 1447 Massachusetts avenue northwest under a second deed of trust.

Eugene S. Trussell and Lula B. Trussell, of 1217 N street northwest, are the petitioners and they are represented by Attorney Hewitt Griggs Robertson. The Trussells tell the court that on March 20, 1929, they executed a second deed of trust to cover a $6,000 deed of trust note held by Dr. Rogers.

The petitioners set out that Dr. Rogers paid them $4,000 for the note and trust agreement, and the charge is made that he well knew there was usury in the sum of $2,000. It is explained that while the plaintiffs seem to be behind on the notes, they are not, in fact, since if the $2,000 was deducted, the monthly payments would be correspondingly reduced.

However, the plaintiffs state they were "hounded" for payments to such an extent that they executed a deed in fee simple to the property and turned it over to Soper and Samuel H. Rogers, trustees under the deed of trust. At the same time, however, they entered into an agreemnt whreby they had until December 1 to sell the property. Despite the agreement, the plaintiffs charge that the property has been advertised for sale and this advertisement has kept them from disposing of the property for $27,000.

ill, despite their insistent denials and official statements published in the Osservatore Romano of the many private audiences he has given all during the time he was supposed to be ill. During the past few days he has received over 1,000 children, two Maltese pilgrimages and all the doctors attending the homeopathic congress here. He spoke at great length to each pilgrimage and showed much interest in the congress.

On the last two Sundays he took advantage of the fact that there were no pilgrimages or tourists about Vatican City to inspect the new buildings. He went carefully over the radio station, the telephone central and the railway station. He also inspected the house now being built for the governor of the Vatican and his administration colleagues. He sent word to M. Tisserand, the vice librarian, that he would be down to inspect the collection of books on Alpine climbing that Cardinal Mundelin presented recently. He walked all over the library, going up and down the steps with great alacrity.

revealed that more than 1,200 seriously injured patients are receiving treatment in thirteen hospitals. Many of them suffer from gangreneous infections. Almost all have infections of some kind. Doctors say the number of injured outside of hospitals far exceed the 1,200 shown in the survey.

Water Relief Imminent.

Water, the city's greatest immediate need, probably will be available before morning. An aqueduct has been repaired for bringing water from inland sources, and tonight President Rafael Trujillo and American Minister Charles B. Curtis were informed that the water is flowing toward the city and that a plentiful supply can be expected within fifteen hours.

Thus far no adequately accurate count, or even estimate of the number of dead, is possible. The loss of life has been so great that no effort to report deaths to a central office has been made. De E. Silva, a member of the Porto Rican relief unit, said 80 bodies were taken from one hospital and buried together in an abandoned cistern behind a private home near Columbus Park, which is in the very heart of the city. Silva said the bodies were thrown into the cistern, partly burned, and then covered with earth.

From fires about the city and on the coral shores of the Caribbean there still rose today the odor of burning human flesh—there were the biers of hundreds whose bodies were considerably decomposed before removal from the debris of the city.

New Hospital to Open.

Roosevelt Emergency Hospital—so named by President Trujillo in honor of Gov. Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico—will be open tomorrow, giving greatly needed facilities to the overworked doctors and nurses. It will have 1,000 beds which will be devoted to patients needing emergency treatment or minor surgery.

The work of reconstruction had advanced so far late tonight that the urgently needed water had begun to flow through taps in the low-lying regions.

Many refugees left this afternoon on the steamer Catherine for San Juan, and later will go to the United States.

Pope Sends Donation.

Vatican City, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The Pope today forwarded a contribution to Santo Domingo for the relief of the hurricane victims. The amount was not made known.

Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, sent a message to the Dominican nation expressing the pontiff's sympathy and the apostolic benediction.

Mexico City, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The government today cabled the Mexican Minister at Santo Domingo 50,000 pesos (about $25,000) contribution to the relief fund. President Ortiz Rubio also cabled President General Trujillo his condolences.

President Trujillo today was invested by the legislature with all of the powers of the Dominican government. His first act was to order the streets and other danger spots thoroughly cleaned immediately to forestall an imminent epidemic due to lack of sanitation.

Convicts, lay citizens and uniformed firemen joined together in the herculean job of cleaning up conditions which, if permitted to continue another day, must add heavily to the death toll of the disaster.

Today's survey showed that Santiago, Vega and Boca valleys were unharmed. There is plenty of food in these valleys if it can be transported.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Pan-American Airways said tonight that a chartered plane will leave here shortly after daybreak Wednesday with 500 pounds of serums and antitoxins for relief work in Santo Domingo. The supply is being sent by the American Red Cross.

Haitian Entrance Ban Denied.

Port au Prince, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The government tonight officially denied a report that Haiti had prohibited entrance over the frontier from Santo Domingo because of fear of typhus in the Dominican Republic following last week's hurricane. The government is awaiting the report of a medical officer sent to Santo Domingo before it considers any such action.

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Porto Rico today continued relief work for hurricane-stricken Santo Domingo, sending 100 tons of supplies to the Dominican capital by the steamship San Lorenzo, while an airplane of the Curtiss Co. made two trips with medical supplies.

Students of the University of Porto Rico voted that a part of the library deposit required from each be contributed toward Dominican relief.

TAIL OF HURRICANE BREAKING DROUGHT

Records Established in Many States for Deficiency of Rain This Summer.

SOME HAV TOO MUCH

The Santo Domingo hurricane remnant that was moving inland from the Gulf of Mexico yesterday, bringing general rain and promising more, was breaking what Weather Bureau reports show to be the greatest drought in history.

While Meteorologist C. L. Mitchell was smiling over rain maps which showed his drought-end predictions materializing, Meteorologist J. B. Kincer was compiling drought statistics from December through August of this driest year.

Hhis chart of 32 parched States showed 19 deficiency in precipitation records established. The August reports, just received, combined with those of the preceding eight months, put the 1930 drought on a higher, drier level than the famed droughts of 1881 i nthe Southwest; 1894 in the Northwest, and 1901 in the Corn Belt. In 40 years of weather records, nothing was found to compare with the now apparently ending drought in scope and duration.

Mr. Kincer commented that tables were turned, with supernormal precipitations in the usually dry States of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho, while States usually moist were subnormal.

In August, Wyoming had a 3.30-inch rainfall as against a 1.16-inch normal, whereas Maryland had a 1.04-inch rainfall as against a 4.30-inch normal. Wyoming's August precipitation exceeded by 50 per cent any record previously made, and Colorado had the wettest July and August on record.

But the mountain States had a monopoly on the wet records, and all the rest hung up were ultradry. Mr. Kincer summarized them thus:

Five States had the driest spring on record—West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri.

Seven States had the lowest summer rainfall on record—Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Decree to Former Wife of Taft Kin

Mrs. Helen Siger Granted Divorce in Reno From Boston Magnate.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Draper Taft Ayer, wealthy Massachusetts woman and former wife of a nephew of the late President Taft, was granted a divorce in the district court here today from Nathaniel Farwell Ayer, Boston capitalist.

The papers in the case were filed late this afternoon and the case tried shortly afterward behind closed doors. At the conclusion of the case the papers were ordered sealed. Mrs. Ayer's attorney said he could not discuss the case inasmuch as his client had requested sealing of the papers. The charges, it is understood, were incompatibility. The couple was married in 1924.

Mrs. Ayer obtained a previous decree here in January, 1920, from Walbridge Smith Taft, nephew of the late former President, on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Ayer, who divides her residence between Boston, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Europe, came to Reno last June.

A DOLLAR THAT BUYS MORE THAN THE AVERAGE

THE dollar you invest in fire insurance returns far more than you realize: Of course it buys indemnity from financial loss if misfortune overtakes you, but it provides so much more that it ranks as one of the most effective dollars you spend.

From the viewpoint of indemnity alone, Stock Fire Insurance is one of the cheapest of present-day necessities. Its average cost has consistently declined for the last twenty years.

Research — Engineering — Other Services

However, Stock Fire Insurance as transacted by the more than 250 company members of the National Board of Fire Underwriters offers much more than indemnity.

For good measure it provides a research and engineering service to make life and property safer—with great laboratories to test the fire safety of materials and devices.

It teaches better building practices—furnishes a service for the detection and investigation of arson—another for the improvement of community fire defenses—conducts many general fire prevention activities—and sponsors other voluntary measures, all of which have contributed to the reduction of the fire waste and the lowering of the average cost of fire insurance.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

effectually safeguards the home, factory, store, public institution and other forms of property. It supplies an element of certainty to business.

The more than 150 billion dollars which Stock Fire Insurance companies have at risk in the protection of burnable property in this country is indispensable to the stabilization of our credit structure.

WAR DEBTS AND THE TARIFF.

Rumors are abroad that Great Britain and other debtor nations are contemplating negotiations with a view to further reduction of their debts to the United States. Such reports are being given wide circulation in Democratic circles, accompanied by insinuations that the new tariff has made it impossible for Europe to pay its debts.

Democratic senators who have been visiting Europe seem to have given the debtor countries every encouragement to launch a new campaign for cancellation of their obligations to the United States. Senator Barkley has returned with a tale of how America's tariff legislation has "complicated the problem of Europe's paying the $12,000,000,000 it owed as war debts, while at the same time taking care of the $14,000,000,000 of commercial European debts to the United States." Apparently the Democratic campaigners are anxious to have European countries seek to reopen negotiations on the war debts.

A subtle argument is being put forth to show that the war debts are responsible for the world's economic depression. Let America cancel the debts of the allied nations, which in turn would cancel part of their claims against Germany. Additional capital would be released, increasing the buying power of Europe, and, therefore, expanding the market for American goods. In short, let American taxpayers be robbed in the hope of reviving world commerce.

This argument comes, of course, from foreign sources. The Democratic party could not afford to originate such a damaging argument against tax reduction, but it sees no harm in repeating what foreign officials think, or even in encouraging vain hopes abroad that war debts may be canceled. But what Democratic spokesmen do say is that American industry and agriculture ought to suffer competition from European countries with lower standards of living, so that those countries will be able to pay their debts.

The United States has been generous in dealing with its debtors in Europe, far more generous than were the other allied nations. The war debts have been scaled down as far as they can be without robbing the American public. To argue that the United States must open its ports to foreign goods that would stifle domestic industry is only another way of saying that the American public should be made to assume the war debts of Europe.

PAN-AMERICAN AGRICULTURE.

The first inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal industry, now in session in Washington, was called in accordance with a resolution adopted by the sixth international conference of American States at Havana in February, 1928. This is the first Pan-American gathering to deal exclusively with matters pertaining to agriculture and to consider plans looking to the scientific and economic development of agriculture and its related industries throughout the Western Hemisphere. Delegates representing 21 nations are assembled. Until September 20 they will consider and discuss such matters as surveys and inventories, land, forestry, animal industry, crop production, agricultural education and agricultural economics. These are particularly important questions at this time, when the world finds itself burdened with a grain surplus and agricultural depression.

A volume published for the use of the delegates by the Department of Agriculture details the aims of the conference and some of the problems that are scheduled for discussion. The conference has a three-fold objective; namely, to define the outstanding problems that may be solved by inter-American cooperation; to discuss the policies and methods to be followed in solving these problems, and to consider the establishment and location of research stations or laboratories and means of financing them. "It is of prime importance," says the introduction to the volume, "that the conservation, exploitation and development of natural resources in America should be effected by the most rational method. The value of certain procedures should be made generally known. If this is done, it will be easier to understand, for example, how necessary it is that the American republics, before defining any policy for conserving and utilizing natural resources, should make agricultural surveys, take inventories of natural resources, and classify soils. The conference will discuss the question of public lands, for, in the opinion of many, the solution of this problem will determine the trend of social and economic evolution in the countries affected for many years to come."

Inevitably the discussion during the conference must turn to the problems of surplus production. The countries to the south are only beginning to open up their fertile acres. The prospect is that as time goes on the agricultural output of South and Central America will play an increasingly important part in the world markets, and this will be particularly true if the nations of this hemisphere, working in concert, are able to reduce hazards such as frost, wind, drought, flood, insect pests and plant diseases, which have made agriculture a risky business and periodically limited production. The nations of the Old World do not dare attempt to limit their agricultural production. Their need is for cheap foodstuffs. New World countries, however, have an unparalleled opportunity to experiment with the regulation and control of agriculture. They should be able to work out a wise and intelligent program looking toward the elimination of surpluses and having as its aim the subjugation of nature to the needs of man. It may be hoped that such a plan will be born in the present conference, and that the conference will become a fixture to meet at stated intervals to carry forward the plan.

HONORS TO THE AIRMEN.

America's Capital has showered honors upon Coste and Bellonte, the gallant Frenchmen whose names are resounding throughout the world. These young men doubly deserve the rewards and honors that have come to them, because they are not only skilled and courageous pioneers of the air, but modest and attractive gentlemen. They are meeting with aplomb the acclaim of the United States, however surprised they may be by the warmth of their welcome. Their reaction to public applause seems to be a determination to do everything in their power to reflect credit upon France.

The unfolding drama of aviation is made splendid by the heroic achievements of young men, who by reason of their youth belong to the future as well as to the present. Men like Lindbergh, Byrd, Coste and Bellonte shed luster upon the glorious art of flight. Boys of all lands are inspired to emulate them in modesty and good deportment, as well as in achieving great deeds. Thus the ranks of aviation are receiving additions that have a tendency to keep the glamour of chivalry over all men of the air.

Coste and Bellonte will visit many cities of the United States in their good-will tour. They will be received with enthusiasm everywhere. The spirit of international friendship will be invigorated by their visit.

LABOR WANTS NO DOLE.

Opposition of organized labor to any form of compulsory unemployment insurance was expected. The statement of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, on the subject is consistent with the general policy of American labor. What the working man of this country wants is not a dole or any other form of charity from the state, but a chance to work.

Unemployment insurance is attracting unusual attention since Gov. Roosevelt of New York indicated in a recent address that he would sponsor a study of the subject with a view to legislation. He did not favor a dole system, but suggested that some plan could be worked out under which the State, employers and employes would jointly bear the cost of supporting men out of work. Following this pronouncement the New York State Federation of Labor adopted a resolution favoring compulsory insurance. The issue will be raised at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor at Boston on October 6, but sentiment is expected to be overwhelmingly opposed to compulsory insurance.

"It is only one step," says Mr. Green, "from compulsory insurance to the dole." The federation is justified in being suspicious of any movement that would tend to barter high wages and ample work for a miserable pittance handed out to workmen in idleness and want. Such a system is not only demoralizing, but it offers no hope of building up purchasing power so that unemployment may be relieved by greater demand for commodities and services. The tendency of allowing idle workmen a means of support, even though it is meager, is to increase unemployment and lay a heavier burden on the taxpayers.

There is danger, too, that this fake cure for unemployment would bring to a halt the movements now under way to stabilize work. Compulsory insurance can not take the place of economic adjustment to prevent the recurrence of cycles in business activity. The only real remedy for unemployment is employment on a permanent basis. There may be need for voluntary insurance against idleness in some occupations, but American workmen will resent any attempt to compel them to participate. In the great majority of industries the most practical way of ending unemployment lies in the adjustment of production and wage scales, so that the same number of men will be employed the year round. To abandon hope of stabilized employment in favor of compulsory unemployment insurance would be selling the laborer's birthright for a mess of pottage.

POWER FROM THE SEA.

Prof. Georges Claude's scheme for producing cheap power from the oceans captivates the imagination. Based on the fact that water becomes converted to steam at comparatively low temperatures in a partial vacuum, Prof. Claude proposes to produce power from the difference in temperature of sea water at the surface and at the depths in tropical climes. He will inject water taken from the surface near Havana into a vacuum chamber, where it will be transformed into steam that will be used to operate turbines. From the depths he will draw up water some 50 degrees cooler, which will be used to condense the steam and renew the vacuum. Experimentally he has produced power by this method, but the plant he is building at Havana is a commercial installation designed to produce energy on a large scale.

Last week Prof. Claude succeeded in sinking a mile-long steel tube to the ocean bed, following two previous failures. The tube is the important link in the project. Without it the cold water for condensing the steam could not be obtained. With the tube safely emplaced, practical demonstration of the seapower plant should be possible at an early date.

Whether or not a revolution in the development of useful energy impends remains to be seen. In many aspects the Claude scheme appears highly visionary, but Prof. Claude is an eminent scientist, having a long list of useful discoveries and inventions to his credit. If he can produce energy on a large scale from the difference in surface and subsurface temperature of sea water, and produce it cheaply, it may be that the future will witness the abandonment of many hydroelectric projects and other accepted methods of creating power. The tropics may become the power house of the world, linked to industrial centers north and south through a spider web of high tension electric lines.

WHAT ABOUT IT, MR. SHOUSE?

"My party must offer something better than what we have had if we are to expect the people to turn to us," said Jouett Shouse in a recent radio speech. Mr. Shouse, as the active manager of the Democratic national committee, has been free with his criticism of the Republican administration and the Republican party's record in Congress. Now Senator Watson, Republican leader of the Senate, asks Mr. Shouse to specify just what he means by "something better."

The Democratic party supported the farm debenture plan. Senator Watson asks Mr. Shouse if it is the intention of the Democratic party, if placed in control of Congress, to pass the debenture.

That is a fair question. How does Mr. Shouse or his ghost answer it?

"Mr. Shouse has been prolific in his criticisms of the tariff bill," observes Senator Watson. "Let him state specifically that if a Democratic House and Senate are elected they will at once proceed to revise the tariff."

What about it, Mr. Shouse? If the new tariff law is an abomination, of course it should be superseded. The Democratic party would stultify itself if it should refuse to revise the tariff in case of victory at the polls. The honest and courageous thing for Mr. Shouse to do is to make formal announcement that the Democratic party, if placed in power, will immediately revise the tariff and offer inducements to foreign producers to send their goods to the United States. Senator Barkley, or a ghost writer speaking in his name, asserts that Europeans are agitating for revision of the war debts, on the ground that America's high tariff prevents them from sending goods here. What has Mr. Shouse to say? Does he favor revision of the tariff for the benefit of European nations, so that they may be induced to pay their debts to the United States?

Abuse of a party responsible for conduct of the Government is not constructive. The voters would like to know what to expect from the Democratic party. Mr. Shouse ought to enlighten them, and not spend his time in mere negative criticism, much of which misrepresents the facts.

The name of Coste's plane should be changed from ? to !

GHOSTS IN POLITICS

From the New York Herald Tribune.

Since the conduct of the Democratic congressional campaign was virtually turned over to press agents and ghost writers the defects of that form of artistry in politics have become conspicuous. Press agentry and ghost writing are a phase of literature applied to commercialism. They aim at immediate high-power sales, at a rapid exploitation of public opinion.

But in politics a longer breath and a broader vision are essential. The intelligent politician builds for tomorrow as well as for today. His offerings must wear. He must show personality and be willing to accept responsibility. Under the Democratic national committee's new plan of operation the politicians have become puppets through whom a ghost writer speaks and party responsibility has become more or less masked in anonymity. Faith in the sincerity and authority of party utterances is necessarily weakened.

Canned political discussion of this sort tends also to be unrestrained by the professional politician's caution. Much Democratic national committee propaganda has erred tactically in trying to put on President Hoover responsibility for the country's afflictions under an economic depression which is world-wide in scope and which has recently opened the way to political revolutions in three South American republics. Hard times are recurrent phenomena, following overdone inflation and speculation. When they come they furnish an opportunity to criticize the administration in power, and the temptation to carry that criticism to irrational excess is not easily resisted by amateur politicians. The seasoned statesman has learned to be wary in avoiding overplaying this kind of attack. He at least tries to avoid an appearance of satisfaction that hard times have opportunely arrived.

The public which suffers finds no compensation in the fact that politicians are eagerly seeking to make a profit out of that suffering. No one has done more than President Hoover to mitigate the evil effects of the present economic disturbance, and the country is keenly aware of his efforts. Democratic leaders who understand the psychology of such situations must regret that a good deal of the Democratic national committee literary output has too nearly resembled hurrahing for hard times.

Such hurrahs are wretched in taste and deplorable in strategy. What the voters want is to see hard times vanish. They can not be much impressed by the extravagant unfairness and enthusiastic pessimism of Mr. Raskob's press agents and ghost writers, too evidently hoping to declare political dividends on the misfortunes of the public at large.

JUST FOLKS

WHAT PLATE COLLECTORS TALK ABOUT.

As two by two on Sunday morn the plate collectors pass
And walk the aisle sedately with those silver bowls or brass,
I've often wondered what it is they talk of as they go
To brighten up that solemn march, but now at last I know.

One Sunday I was commandeered to walk that velvet lane
To take the contributions from the fancy folk and plain;
And at the farthest pew we stood as all collectors do
With dignity to tread the aisle, heads high and two by two.

The gentleman upon my left, with eyes still straight ahead,
The plate held firmly waistcoat high, as we paraded said:
"I hear that Readings' out for mayor and Smith is in the race.
And six or seven more have told their friends they'd take the place."

Strange road, strange time, thought I, to get such startling local news.
I've often wondered what they said while marching by the pews,
But now I've found these ushers out, upon that solemn walk—
It is not heaven they discuss, it's politics they talk.

The Great Houses Built by Fairies Are Found Only in Books for Children.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

It isn't in human nature to work hard and save money if there is reasonable hope of inheriting a rich uncle's fortune.

It isn't in human nature to work for a prize if there is a way to get it without working.

And since an unwillingness to exchange honest effort for a fair reward tempts the weak, the unfit and the vicious to devise short cuts not sanctioned by the law, much of America's present disregard of the rules of honesty can be traced to the almost universal hope of getting something for nothing.

We wish to be educated and cultured, but we aren't willing to spend weary years in school or burn midnight oil at home. We want a set of books or easy lessons that will give us culture in ten weeks.

We want important jobs and fame and applause—not at the price of study and hard work and self-denial, but by means of a "lucky break" or a "pull."

We wish to be slender and graceful and full of energy—not by means of tiresome exercise and sensible dieting, but as a result of some miracle that won't interfere with our gluttony and dissipation.

We desire mates that are handsome and charming and aristocratic but we hope to get them as a gift from the gods—not by making ourselves worthy of them.

We want fine cars and great houses, and actually feel mistreated if we haven't got them, but the patient and painful business of earning them doesn't appeal to us. We want them as a result of outguessing Wall Street.

Our youngsters express a willingness to be great surgeons or inventors or bankers or explorers, but the prospect of serving a hard apprenticeship annoys and discourages them. If they can't begin at the top, they prefer waiting for some stroke of luck that will enable them to get rich in a day.

As a people we are developing the state of mind peculiar to gamblers.

We work resentfully and without a goal because we hope to get rich in some other way.

And since the good fortune to get something for nothing is reserved for one in a million, countless thousands doom themselves to resentful poverty because they haven't common sense enough to buckle down and earn the rewards to which their abilities entitle them.

We grow old and bitter waiting for our fruit to fall, and then envy the wiser man who shakes his tree.

THE ONCE OVER

NEW AND FASTER TICKERS.

Wall street has installed the new high speed tickers. The country is unanimous in asking "why?" Even the old ticker is far too fast for it these days.

• • • •

The new machine can record 500 characters a minute, which is more than are appearing just now in a week. Three hundred per minute was par for the old ticker and everything like that today would seem like another Coolidge prosperity market.

• • • •

The old machine couldn't keep up with the trading. But the new one is so far out ahead of the trading that the brokers are lubricating it with sleeping drugs.

• • • •

When the new high speed tickers were ordered the stock market was all in a lather and the old instruments were too slow to record the hysteria in time for the patient to realize his dangerous condition. Those were the five to seven million share days, when trading was being done entirely by ear, and when hearts were breaking everywhere because there was a three-minute delay in getting a price on Federated Horse Blankets Common.

• • • •

The new tickers were contracted for at a cost of $4,500,000, but at that time this looked like a mere overnight profit in National Potato Masher rights. Ever since last October the old tickers have been so unoccupied that a couple of ticks were sufficient to jar brokers out of a sound sleep.

• • • •

Now that they're installed, the snappier tickers look very pretty but it is the general opinion they will have to wait some time for a good stiff workout. No real road test is expected before 1931.

• • • •

There is already talk of rewiring them so they can croon slumber songs between quotations.

In appearance they are much different from the old ones. The old ones had certain aspects of a goldfish bowl or wax-flower container. The new one has snappier lines, an electric cigar lighter and all the gadgets on the dash.

• • • •

But both tickers are alike in one respect: they have no shock absorbers, front or rear.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Loud-Screeching Jazz at Ball Park Befuddles an Ardent Fan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was all enthused when I heard that Clark Griffith was erecting loud speakers at the baseball park, but when I heard the loud speakers themselves at Sunday's game with Philadelphia the enthusiasm was deflated.

For two hours before the game the loud speakers acted like a carbuncle on a fellow's neck, only more so. At its best and under the most favorable circumstances, jazz is tolerable music. But Sunday, with two hours of continuous jazz, I was ready to commit murder about the time the game started.

At all times the jazz was terrifically loud, ununderstandable (excuse the word), and finally became tiresome and irritating to a naturally sweet disposition. Once, I believe, before the game, thec rooner did give us the "Vagabond Lover." Perhaps if we could have heard "Down Upon the Suwanee River," "The Blue Danube," or "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" the Athletics never would have made those five runs in the second inning.

What's more, the jazz drowned the crack of the bat during the most interesting part of the warming-up process. And what is still more, the loud speakers were so busy jazzing a belated announcement of the batteries was made. The speakers jazzed right up to the moment the umpire said play ball.

Gimme my baseball straight. I'm through with loud speakers in the baseball park. Several other fans sitting near me made more pointed complaints than I have here made. This friendly note is a hot tip for the loud speaker operator.

A DYED-IN-THE-WOOL FAN.

Lindbergh's Achievement Greatest of All Because He Flew Alone and Risked Falling Asleep.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The aviator editor of the Kansas City Star informs us that the "French Fliers' Task Is Rated as Much Greater Than Lindy's."

Rated by whom? There may be greater problems in flying west than there are in flying east, but there has been no one since Andree who braved the risk that was Lindy's.

Where there are two men in a plane to alternate in driving, flights are more in the nature of engine tests than they are of human endurance, for there is no risk of a fatal plunge due to loss of sleep. In fact, with the increasing speed of engines and shorter schedules, even a solitary airman is now able to cross in fewer waking hours.

Lindbergh led where others will follow. Once the spray of a wave was all that saved him during his long vigil. If any one has any desire to equal Lindbergh's task it will not only be necessary to follow his route, but fly alone at the same rate of speed in the engine that Lindbergh used in a "stay-awake" contest.

With all due respect to the intrepid Frenchmen, it is absurd to class their daring exploit with that of Lindy. H. D. KISSENGER.

Sergt. Bargagni, Organizer of Firemen's Parade, Should Be Promoted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The friends of Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, grand marshal of the firemen's parade, have started a movement looking toward his promotion in the Fire Department to the rank of lieutenant. They point out the fact that the parade has come to mean a great deal to the city, that it is a municipal advertisement of great value and that it promises to become a truly national pageant. The man who is chiefly responsible should be properly rewarded. Sergt. Bargagni should be promoted, not, however, as a reward, but because in conceiving, promoting, organizing and carrying through the parade until it has become an outstandingly impressive event, he has demonstrated qualities of leadership and ability such as are required to make an efficient lieutenant.

Sergt. Bargagni is an organizer of great ability. He is a leader who commands respect. As a lieutenant his usefulness to the Fire Department and the people of Washington would be magnified. The Commissioners should find a way to promote him to the higher rank.

Duels Are Better Than Use of Spies in Political Feuds, Says Follower of Old Hickory.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an old-fashioned Democrat, I deplore our political decline from the he-man activities of Jackson, Clay and their compatriots to what may be called the McCormick-Nye farce of "Sleuthing the Sleuth."

It would not merely disgrace our Commonwealth, but work disaster in the long run, if the example of Mrs. McCormick or the Senate slush fund committee, or both, should be followed hereafter by the featuring of political espionage in the United States.

The besmirching of character by the spy in politics would bring the blush of shame to good Americans in the face of foreign criticism. In Jackson's day it was an unhealthy expedient.

Better the sunrise tragedy of the code duello at Bladensburg than the degradation of undercover hirelings in the settlement of partisan feuds.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Election Days Stir Interest In Washington

Many Favorites Strive for Various Offices in State Races.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE saying, "As Maine goes, so goes the country," may not always prove true, but at any rate it's a good omen to Washingtonians, whose interest is as much in personalities as in politics, that Maine should be sending us an old favorite in a new role. With the returns from the election yesterday not all in, it seems assured that Representative Wallace H. White is to be Senator White and that Mrs. White will take her place in the group of senatorial hostesses.

In the years of her residence in Washington Mrs. White has made a well-defined place for herself in society. She has been keenly interested in development of the Congressional Club and was an officer of the organization in the red letter days when Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry was president. With former Senator Gerry running again for the Senate in Rhode Island, hopes are strong that Mrs. Gerry may again play her graceful and gracious part on the official stage in the Capital—but that after all is another story. Mrs. White is a woman with many social graces, but with many other interests than society. She has had considerable business experience, having for many years owned and managed successfully a big factory in Maine inherited from her first husband. Mr. White, a nephew of the late Senator Fry, of Maine, was at one time his private secretary.

In several of the State primaries to be held this week Washington has a special interest from the fact that those whom we have come to regard as Washingtonians are involved. In Michigan today, for example, it will be decided whether Senator James Couzens or former Gov. Chase S. Osborn is to have the Republican senatorial nomination, and the Capital has a proprietary interest in Senator and Mrs. Couzens. In South Carolina the senatorial race is betwen Senator Cole Blease and James F. Byrnes, who was long in Congress and whose charming wife is happily remembered here.

In the Colorado primary, also set for today, there are four senatorial candidates, three of whom have formerly been residents of the Capital. The fourth is conceded to have but a slim chance of making the grade. So, no matter who is nominated and elected, there is bound to be a note of rejoicing here. The candidate for the Republican nomination is Mr. William V. Hodges, sometime treasurer of the Republican national committee. It was while he was living in Washington that Mr. Hodges was married to Mrs. Charles Thomas Lowndes, of Howard County, Md., already a favorite in the Capital. Her popularity increased during her residence here and her wit, beauty and charm would make her a definite acquisition to the senatorial group.

Mr. Hodges' opponent will be either Mr. Edward P. Costigan, of Denver, or Mr. Morrison Shaforth. The latter, a son of former Senator John M. Shafroth, lived here during his father's term of office and received his early education in the schools of the Capital.

More recently he has been practicing law in Denver after making a fine record overseas in the World War. Mr. Costigan was formerly a member of the United States Tariff Commission. Appointed by Woodrow Wilson, he retired in a blaze of fireworks, the culmination of two years' fight with his Republican chief, former President Coolidge. Mrs. Costigan was interested in social and club activities and played her part in politics on the Democratic side.

Senator Henry Wilder Keyes and Representative Fletcher Hale, in New Hampshire, and Representative Lewis W. Douglas, in Arizona, are others featured in the primaries. All three, however, are unopposed for nomination. The wife of each has many friends in the Capital. Mrs. Keyes is not only a prominent member of the official group, but its historian, having told the tale of its activities over a long period of years in her popular "Letters of a Senator's Wife."

Ocean Fliers Entertained By M. Henry

White House Luncheon and Trade Board Fete Complete Day.

M. Jules Henry, Charge d'Affaires of France, entertained at a brilliant reception yesterday afternoon at the embassy in honor of Capt. Dieudonne Coste and M. Maurice Bellonte, whose successful westward flight over the Atlantic won for them one of the greatest ovations ever accorded in this country to visiting heroes. For days the embassy had been besieged with requests for invitations, but the guest list was of necessity limited to some 500 or 600. It included chiefs of diplomatic missions, members of the Cabinet and other Government officials, officials of the District of Columbia, groups from the Army and Navy, all with the ladies of their families, and a generous sprinkling of resident society folk.

The reception, with President Hoover's luncheon for the fliers and the Board of Trade's dinner at the Willard last night were the chief social events in connection with the visit of the distinguished Frenchmen. America's most distinguished airmen, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd and Col. Edward Rickenbacker, were in the President's luncheon company with the Charge d'Affaires of France and an important official group headed by Vice President Curtis.

The faint hope that Mme. Coste and Mme. Bellonte might reach this country in time to share honors at the festivities in Washington was early blasted, and word comes now that the two ladies, who had booked passage on the liner Paris for Thursday, have postponed their sailing until some time in October. The fact that the fliers are to tour the country in the Question Mark caused the postponement.

ROVER TO CONTINUE DENISON RUM PROBE

U. S. Attorney Authorized to Appeal From Ruling of Justice Gordon.

INDICTMENT TEXT CITED

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover was authorized yesterday by the Department of Justice to prosecute an appeal from the action of Justice Peyton Gordon, of District Supreme Court, in sustaining a demurrer to an indictment which charged Edward E. Denison, representative of the Twenty-fifth District of Illinois, with possession of liquor in violation of the national prohibition act.

Mr. Rover, in announcing receipt of the department's authorization, stated that the appeal would be perfected immediately in the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

Justice Gordon, in sustaining the demurrer filed by Denison's attorneys, held that the indictment was no good because it did not meet the constitutional requirement to inform a defendant of specific charge against him in order that he might plead acquittal of the charge as a bar to future indictment. The indictment specifically charged the representative with possession of liquor in his office at the House Office Building in January, 1929.

Mr. Rover pointed out that every indictment charging sale of liquor also contains a possession count worded in the identical language as that in the Denison case.

Charges against Denison came as the result of the discovery of a leaking suit case in an express office. Investigators traced a trunk consigned with the suit case to the representative's office and found it loaded with expensive liquors. John Layne, former secretary of the representative, also was indicted, but the charge against him was nolle prossed.

bell charged with having ordered a loosening up of brewery supervision in New York in 1928 to help the Republican campaign chances, issued the following statement:

"I have read Chapter I. I would judge that the story is the greatest romance of the century. Maj. Campbell was a horse doctor in the Army. The horses died. He was a moving picture magnate. The company went bankrupt. As prohibition administrator he failed to dry up of New York. He had a free hand. As an author his imagination beats that of Dante. I have nothing further to say to you now."

Secretary Mellon, who, according to Campbell, was irritated by a raid on the Ritz-Carlton, his stopping place in New York, was out of the city yesterday.

Nine Die in Manila In Cholera Wave

Thirty Cases Reported and Many Others Concealed by Natives.

Manila, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Thirty cases of cholera have been reported in Manila among natives, with nine deaths in the last ten days.

No Americans or Europeans have been stricken. Virtually all of them have been vaccinated.

The disease has been prevalent for some time in the provinces, but is reported diminishing there. Authorities expressed considerable concern because the Filipino public was refusing to cooperate in the cholera suppression campaign. Some of those stricken have been hidden by relatives and officials admit there have been more cases than reported.

A Filipino sanitary inspector was mobbed after causing arrest of three women for violating food vending regulations. He lost an eye and suffered a fractured skull.

Richard Sutro Will Filed in New York

Trustees May Give Sum Up to $5,000,000 to Firm of Late Banker.

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The will of Richard Sutro, banker, filed today, disclosed that the trustees are empowered to contribute a sum not exceeding $5,000,000 to the Wall street firm of Sutro Brothers & Co., of which he was a limited partner.

Mrs. Ella Hunt Sutro, the widow, was left a $500,000 trust fund, a life interest in one-half of the residue and two houses in Connecticut. Two daughters, Mrs. May Sutro Rothschild, of Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. Edith Hunt Ward, of Port Chester, N. Y., were left $250,000 each and life interests in the remaining residue. At their mother's death they will receive the principal of the trust fund.

Five grandchildren also share in the estate, the value of which was stated merely as "more than $20,000."

Bull Hurls Sword, Slaying Spectator

Death Throes of Animal in Madrid Ring Fatal to Man Watching.

Madrid, Sept. 2 (A.P.).—A spectator and a bull were killed by the same sword a few seconds apart at a bull fight today.

After the matador stabbed the bull fatally, the infuriated animal made a desperate thrust with its horns and hurled the sword over a wall. The falling weapon killed a man who had been watching the sport. Manola Martinez, the matador, was arrested by order of the provincial governor, who ordered an immediate trial.

Barcelona, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Fausto Barajas, a bull fighter, was gored while in the bull ring today and suffered serious injury. A bull lifted the matador with its horns, forking him through the chest with one horn and through the thigh with the other.

Woman Cafe Owner And Man Found Dead

Marion, Ark., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Harry Kenan, 30, restaurant proprietor, and a man known here as N. R. Vance, 30, were shot to death today in Mrs. Kenan's restaurant. Authorities believed the man killed the woman and himself because of jealousy.

CAMPBELL WAS CAUTIONED, HE SAYS

ed by Mr. Oftedal and approved by Mr. Lowman ordering me to take my men out of the breweries.

The brewery situation in New York has always been a difficult problem. Before prohibition these plants were called breweries, but since prohibition they are referred to as manufacturers of cereal beverages. However, they are still, properly, breweries.

Operate Under Permits.

Under prohibition these plants are given a permit to manufacture cereal beverages with an alcoholic content of less than one-half of 1 per cent, and there are two methods of manufacture. One is by an arrested process in which the product never reaches an alcoholic content higher than the legal limit. However, there is no cereal beverage manufacturer using this process in the New York district.

The other process, and the one in vogue generally throughout the United States, permits fermentation exactly as before prohibition. In this the alcoholic content reaches 5 or 6 per cent and then it is supposed to be dealcoholized until the content is reduced to the legal limit.

This latter process affords the cereal beverage manufacturer who desires to cheat an excellent opportunity to dispose of real beer without the knowledge of the Government, because he is permitted and must always have in process of fermentation great quantities of high powered beer on hand awaiting dealcoholization.

Of course there are legitimate cereal beverage manufacturers, but the great majority of such plants are operating at a loss and are simply holding on in the hope that some day beer of a high alcoholic content will be legalized.

Constant Vigil Necessary.

Because of the possibility of "shooting" real beer from these premises after business hours it has been necessary for Government agents to watch and inspect these cereal beverage plants almost continually. Besides periodic inside inspections in cases where the Government has reason to believe that a plant is putting out real beer, it is usual to assign undercover agents to watch outside the premises for continuous 24-hour periods.

However, this is not easy. It is quite the custom for a cheating brewery to subsidize an entire neighborhood, and it is consequently sometimes difficult or even impossible to get a Government agent within two or three blocks of such a plant without his presence being disclosed.

In New York it is quite customary for the policeman on a beat to inquire the reason for his presence in the neighborhood of any loitering stranger who might be suspected of being a Government agent, and if his answers are not satisfactory he is forthwith taken to the nearest police station, where, in order to establish his identity to prevent being locked up, he is forced to display his badge and credentials. This has been done many times to my men.

Outside Supervision Difficult.

Then, again, a cheating brewery is usually so geographically placed as to make effective outside supervision almost impossible because of adjoining garages, side streets and various exits. In order to make a case that will stick, high-power beer must be actually caught coming out of the brewery premises or be found in the racking room ready to be put into barrels.

For these reasons I found my supervision of breweries in 1927 ineffective, and in consequence New York that summer was flooded with real beer.

Some of this came from New Jersey, for the New York beer market is a very profitable field and the New Jersey runners have always tried to cut into it.

In New York, and Chicago particularly, the territory is divided by mutual agreement between beer runners into districts, and each beer-running gang in these cities is supposed to have a monopoly of the beer business in their particular district.

This allotment of beer monopolies has resulted in many murders in both New York and Chicago, brought about when an ambitious leader of one gang attempts to transgress and supply the market allotted to another gang. Most of the murders in New York have been the result of an attempt on the part of the New Jersey runners to enter the New York market.

In June, 1928, after many days and nights of patient watching, my men were able early one morning to catch a truckload of beer coming out of the Kips Bay Brewery in First avenue, and this was accomplished only after two of my agents had secreted themselves in a coal truck parked across from the brewery for 24 hours.

No Prosecution Yet.

As a consequence of this raid two years ago only recently was the equipment of this brewery declared forfeited to the Government, and as yet there has been no criminal prosecution.

With the summer of 1928 approaching, and having in mind the ineffectiveness of my brewery campaign the year previous, I decided to adopt a new procedure.

I thereupon organized a brewery police squad, my plan being to place a continuous 24-hour guard inside certain breweries.

In order to insure the honesty of my men and in order to obviate the continuous service of any one agent in the same brewery, with a possible contact between the brewery and the guard which might permit the shipment of real beer for a consideration, I continually shifted the personnel from brewery to brewery, so that no man ever knew beforehand what brewery he would be assigned to or who his coguard was to be.

The first plant in which I installed these inside guards was the Phoenix Cereal Beverage Co., at Twenty-fifth street and Tenth avenue, and the results showed that my plan worked perfectly.

Soon after that I placed similar guards in the plants of the Interborough Beverage Co. in Brooklyn and the State Cereal Beverage Co. in Yonkers.

Shortage Started Murders.

I am positive that this inside supervision was effective at this time. At any rate, I know that during the summer of 1928 there was a scarcity of real beer in New York, and in order to supply the market the New Jersey beer runners attempted to cut in and in consequence several men were murdered in the streets of New York.

So effective was this inside supervision that in a few weeks I received word from Treasury officials in Washington that the breweries in New York were protesting.

Early in August, with my inside supervision most effective, I was summoned to Washington, and on August 10 there occurred the conversation related at the opening of this story.

Dr. Doran, commissioner of prohibition, was absent in Europe at this time and Alf Oftedal was acting commissioner.

On August 9 there was a ring on my private telephone line and it was Mr. Oftedal.

"The Governor (meaning Mr. Lowman) wants you to take all your prohibition agents out of Saratoga," he said.

I was puzzled, because Saratoga was not in my district, and I had no men there. However, I let him continue.

Put Up to Smith.

"I know there have been a lot of complaints about conditions there, but the Governor wants you to take your men out and leave the situation right up to Gov. Smith."

About that time I asked him who he thought he was talking to, and he said McCampbell. Andrew McCampbell was then prohibition administrator in the northern New York district. I told him he had Campbell in New York City, and Mr. Oftedal said the girl had made a mistake in the call and he wanted McCampbell. Then he told me that Mr. Lowman wanted to see me in Washington the next day and I said I would be there.

In Washington the next day Mr. Oftedal and I got together early in the morning and he told me that the situation in New York was very serious and that Mr. Lowman was either going to ask me, or order me, to take my men out of the breweries.

Mr. Oftedal said that Mr. Lowman questioned my right to put agents inside the breweries and I brought one of the permit blanks and showed him the clause in the permit giving me that right.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Oftedal and I went to Mr. Lowman's office in the Treasury Building. Mr. Lowman was quite cordial and talked about unimportant matters for quite a while. Mr. Oftedal and Mr. Lowman discussed the situation in Saratoga and Mr. Oftedal informed Mr. Lowman that he had communicated with McCampbell in Buffalo and that all the agents in Saratoga had been withdrawn.

"That's fine," Mr. Lowman said. "That puts the buck right up to Gov. Smith."

Objects to Withdrawing Men.

After a time Mr. Lowman came to the subject in hand, which was the inside supervision of the breweries. He said he had a lot of complaints about my men being in the breweries, but that the particular complaint came from the Phoenix Cereal Beverage Co. Then he asked me if I would take my men out of the breweries, and I said I did not want to do that.

"Why," Mr. Lowman said, "you even have your men outside of the Twenty-sixth street part of the building."

"Sure," I said, "and from their complaint, I guess I was wise in putting them there."

Then Mr. Lowman asked me if there was not plenty of other work that my agents could do without watching breweries. I said:

"Of course, but I think the breweries are the most important work I have at this time of year, and further it is effective work."

It was at this time that Mr. Lowman made the remarks about "tongues hanging out of parched throats," and added that it might be even a good thing if the prohibition law was amended so as to allow beer of 3½ per cent alcohol.

Spars for Time.

I told Mr. Lowman that I did not see how my men inside the breweries could possibly interfere with business if the business was legitimate, and reminded him that government agents were continually inside distilleries, etc., and that none of these legitimate concerns had ever objected to inside supervision.

When Mr. Lowman remarked that he thought I would get the order in writing to take the men out of the breweries, I asked him, before issuing such an order, to lay the matter before Ogden Mills, the Under Secretary.

I didn't want to take my men out of breweries and I didn't want a written order to that effect, so when Mr. Lowman said, "Well, how about September 1?" I decided it was better to spar for time, and finally agreed to this.

"That's fine, that's fine," chuckled Mr. Lowman, rubbing his hands together. I thought for a moment I had disposed of the matter.

During all this time Mr. Oftedal had never said a word, and after we left he remarked he thought I had gotten out of a very difficult position very splendidly.

That day I had lunch with Howard Jones, now assistant director of prohibition in the Department of Justice, and told him all about what had occurred. Then I came back to New York.

Royal Quiz Looms For Baby Princess

King Has Called Inquiry to Rank Duke of York's Child, Is Report.

London, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The constitutional status of Great Britain's new baby princess, who as yet is unnamed, is causing considerable agitation and it is reported the king has called for a full inquiry.

It generally had been supposed that this child, born to the Duke and Duchess of York at Glamis Castle three weeks ago, would rank fourth in succession to the British throne—or after her uncle, the Prince of Wales; her father, the Duke of York and her elder sister, Princess Elizabeth.

It is pointed out, however, there is no law in Britain which says whether one sister shall outrank another in royal succession or whether they shall be coheirs.

Officials of the home office today refused either to deny or confirm the report that the king had ordered a special inquiry.

THREE RESIGN POSTS IN PANAMA CABINET

Minister Who Is Favorite of President Causes Dissension.

SESSION ENDS QUICKLY

Panama City, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Dissension in the Panama cabinet, which had threatened an upheaval for several days, resulted today in the resignation of three members.

The men who quit—A. Robles, minister of the interior; T. G. Duque, minister of finance, and J. D. Arosemena, minister of foreign affairs—protested the presence in the cabinet of Jeptha B. Duncan, secretary of education, and a favorite of President Florencio Arosemena.

The national assembly recently repudiated Duncan, requesting that the president have some one else read the secretary's report before the body, and also suggested that Duncan resign. Since the latter enjoys the president's favor, however, it was felt there was no likelihood of his getting out.

The government did not admit officially today that the resignations had been offered, but Foreign Minister Arosemena, who is a brother of the president, told the Associated Press they had done so.

The president was apparently gravely disturbed by the day's events. He refused to say what course he would take, but anxiously scanned the extra editions of newspapers which told of political developments.

This afternoon's session of the national assembly ended abruptly when a motion to defer voting on an electoral body was unanimously carried, packed galleries buzzing with speculative comment meanwhile.

The three ministers who had resigned were present, but were not called upon to explain their actions.

Bank Cashier Wounds Robber as Man Flees

Van Wert, Ohio, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Two robbers held up the City Bank at Ohio City, 8 miles south of here, today and escaped in an automobile after M. M. Agler, cashier, shot one of the men.

While one man remained in the banking room, the second climbed over the teller's cage and scooped up $1,000 in cash. As he as climbing out Agler opened fire. The wounded bandit, leaving a trail of blood, staggered outside and with his companion sped away in their auto, taking the money with them.

Many of the jobless men of that town were former employes of the Norfolk & Western Railroad, who were laid off duty when the railroad's recent campaign of retrenchment went into effect.

Ministers in Danville Will Pray for Rain

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 8.—The Danville Ministerial Association, at a meeting here today, adopted a resolution calling for general prayers for rain at the regular midweek services at local churches Wednesday night.

The suggestion was offered by the Rev. Joseph Dunglinson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who emphasized the seriousness of the situation in this section resulting from the prolonged drought.

West Virginia Man Is Held in Killing

Worker in Blairton Quarry Lodged in Jail for Death of Constable's Son.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 8.—A warrant formally charging Dorsey Lamb, 22-year-old quarry worker, in jail here, with the deliberate murder of 17-year-old Lorentz Marino Saturday afternoon at Blairton Quarry settlement near here was formally issued today. No time for a preliminary hearing has been set.

Walter Lamb, his stepfather, and Emery Lamb, a brother, are also held in jail here without bond for further questioning, although no charge has been preferred against them.

Young Marino, tending cattle, was shot down from the rear. Officers said Dorsey Lamb confessed the shooting, but claimed it was accidental, the shot being intended for a bird on a fence. Police discount the declaration of innocent intent, however, and are working on the theory that Lamb thought the youth was spying on hiding places for liquor and might give the information to his father, Constable Louis Marino, who had been asked by quarry officials, according to information given the officers, to prevent the Lambs from selling liquor to quarrymen. Officers said the Lambs had been involved in liquor violations previously. The Lambs did not report the affair to police until other witnesses gave testimony that fixed the firing on Dorsey Lamb.

The cannon were first used by the Federal Army in the Mexican War, were captured by Confederates from an armory in the South and were recaptured in the surprise attack under Gen. B. F. Kelley that ended in the rout of the newly recruited Confederate forces here. After they were placed in an arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., trace of them was lost.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to care for a wisteria and trpmpet vine. Mine were three-year- old plants when purchased and have been planted three years in my garden and so far have only two blossoms. They grow with many frail shoots. Should I prune them or cut them down or do you know another way to make them grow? I want the wisteria to drape a dead tree. E. W. W.

Wisteria does best in a well-drained loam, sunshine and plenty of moisture while in flower, but given all these, often the vines refuse to flower. One authority tells us to "prune the roots and the top growth will be retarded. Prune the top growth back to short branche less severely for young plants, more severely for older specimens. Cut the useless weak wood out as soon as the plant produces it, and aim to have medium vigorous shoots all over the plant.

The trumpet vine does best in a rich moist soil. If you can obtain soil from the woods, it will make an ideal medium in which to grow this vine. It will grow in shade, but bloom more profusely in sun. I would suggest pruning the trumpet vine rather severely, as there will be no danger of harming it. It may interest you to know that the Japanese name for the wisteria is Fuji no hana. It is from this that the mountain Fujiyama was named.

Do sweet williams bloom more than once in a season? Mine seem to be going to seed and I would like to prolong their blooming. M. B.

The sweet william should be treated as a biennial and the seed be sown each year. As a rule they continue to flower all summer, but of course you must keep all dead or dying flowers removed in order to keep them from developing seeds. Better give them a little liquid manure at this time.

Will you please give me some information regarding the growing of a fern. MRS. W. B. L.

If you care to write again inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will send you a circular we have prepared on "The Care of Ferns."

Please tell me the name of the inclosed weed, which is ruining my lawn. MRS. W. P. A.

I am sorry but the specimen was only powder when it reached me, so I can not possibly identify it.

Please tell me whether roses should be cut after they have bloomed. F. A. M.

It all depends on the variety. Climbing roses should be pruned immediately after their season of blooming is over. Hybrid teas, teas and hybrid perpetuals should be pruned in April.

Please tell me the proper time to set out roses. Do they grow successfully indoors? What is a good spray for these plants? When should columbine and Canterbury bells be cut back? Please tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf. What bulbs do you suggest for house culture? MISS E. D.

Roses can be planted in the spring or fall. They are not suitable for house culture unless you have the facilities of a conservatory and even then it takes more skill than the amateur is likely to have to bring them into bloom. The spray you use depends on your purpose of spraying. If your plants are covered with mildew or scale it is better to use Bordeaux mixture or a sulphur dust. If you are spraying for insects use nicotine sulphate. Do not cut back columbines until frost. Cut the flowers of Canterbury bells as they fade and you will prolong their period of blooming. The leaf you inclosed resembled the leaf of a carnation. Tulips, narcissus, sacred Chinese lilies and hyacinths can all be made to bloom in the house.

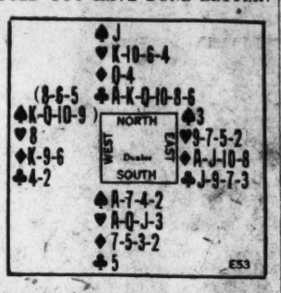
WORK ON BRIDGE

COULD YOU HAVE DONE BETTER?



With the above hand, playing Contract Bridge, South bid one Heart, West two Spades and North four Hearts which obtained the contract. West felt that he could not bid further with so many losing cards, but as a matter of fact if West had bid four Spades he would have been down only one or two.

At Auction South would bid one Heart. West might try to preempt with Spades, but North would bid up to five Hearts and West could not dare to bid five Spades.

Playing at Hearts, an interesting feature developed. West led the King of Spades and South won with the Ace. The Declarer then led two trumps and was seriously disappointed when West refused the second, showing that four had been held by East. However, the Declarer went ahead and drew them all and then attempted to run the Clubs. East again disappointed the Declarer's hopes by holding four Clubs headed by the Jack and therefore retaining command of the suit after North's three top honors were played; so the Declarer made only eight tricks.

Could you have done better?

The Correct Play.

There were several ways that the Declarer might have won his game, but the surest was as follows:

He should have led two trump honors from closed hand and when he found four in one adverse hand, should have led a Club, won it in dummy and continued that suit. The safest way would be to continue it small, trumping the second Club in closed hand; and then to lead another trump, over-taking in dummy, then draw the last adverse trump and making the Clubs. This would give the Declarer five-odd.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

A Man's Rights If Any.

TODAY a man has a few things to say and a few pet grievances to air, and a great many wives, especially young ones, will profit by reading his tale of woe. The man is right, too. And we do not even blame him for staying out with his men friends. What woman would tolerate the tryanny this man describes? Not one who was as free to depart as the average husband. Does the story fit your case? He says the wife reads this column. And he hopes she reads this:

Dear Miss McDonald: Where do women get their conceit? Where do they get the idea that the house is their house, the whole place their particular domain? When I married I expected to enjoy life at least as much as I had when single, if not more, but did I? Let me give you a picture of our happy home.

I took all I had in the world and bought a house of considerable beauty and capable of offering great comfort. My wife has made it an institution. Having remained a bachelor until past 40, my ways of life were fairly well established. Now I have no ways of life. I brought into our home three large and comfortable leather chairs that had meant ease and comfort through many a winter evening. Promptly I was told that they could not be put downstairs, as they would clash with the rest of the furniture. I reluctantly agreed, supposing that a spare room upstairs would be given me as a den. When I saw them on their way to the third floor store room, I protested. I had to make myself very clear in order to get them into a cheerless side room to the north. This room is the one cold room in the house. And my chairs are there and there they stay.

My friends are as welcome as my furniture. It is "Who is he" and 'How can you tolerate these bores you bring here?" I haven't brought any in over a year. Instead I go out the minute dinner is over. I go where I can sit in a large comfortable chair, with my leg over one arm if I wish and smoke and talk and be a bore myself. I never go to any married friend's home simply because I know all women are the same and begrudge the very food they give to any friend of the poor sap that pays for the food.

Her friends are there daily. One club a week meets there to play cards. There are women to luncheon and couples to dinner. Perfectly all right if it works both ways. I am keen to have people about and always show every courtesy to her guests. But she shows contempt for mine—who are all business and professional men of standing and breeding. I notice they, too, do most of their entertaining at clubs. Our homes are just places for these peacocks to show off their friends. I will wager that this is the condition that drives a man to the company of outside women. He knows he has been stung and he wants to forget it in the smile of a woman. It has been that way with me and I hope she reads this—as she reads your column. Have you any explanation of the conceit of your sex? H. L. K.

Seems to be trouble ahead for Mrs. H. L. K. and in her place we would move those chairs into a warm room with all convenient speed and stop this war. A man needs his cronies as he needs food, and no woman has the least right to deprive him.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.
(Bureau of Plant Industry.)

Chrysanthemums are of little value as hardy plants in the extreme North, but can be grown with success over most of the country remaining, and if frost-proof storage space can be given they can be maintained even in the North.

In the amateur's garden chrysanthemums require very simple treatment and yield large displays of flowers. Their range of color and form is wide and permits the gratification of personal taste in their selection.

Although chrysanthemums may be grown from seed, they are usually raised from cuttings or divisions of established plants. These, like the seedlings, come to full maturity and flower profusely in a single season and, in turn, furnish material for propagation the following year.

The plants require for their best development a rich well-drained soil, and abundance of light and air, sufficient room to develop into good bushes, and annual division and replanting in newly fertilized soil.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m., and 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

"Much rainfall and little growth" describes the picture of this date. Keep to well tried paths! An unsettled and discontented mind may cause you to make a profitless change. A cloud hangs over your domestic sphere.

Children born on this September 9 will have a natural refinement, a love of harmony and considerable tact. They will have vivid imaginations, which will not lead them astray because of their logic and common-sense. They will have well-developed emotions, but self-control.

If you be a woman, you have all the feminine qualities and characteristics due one of your sex, and if you have the courage of your womanliness and are content to stay in your own sphere, you will be much happier than if you seek other fields of expression You are not a type that is fitted for the so-called man's world. Some women are born spinsters, but you are not. If you are not mothering children, you are mothering some weak sister or brother, or a devoted cat or dog.

You have an easy-going disposition, and although you may be too untidy or carefree to become a model housekeeper, your smile and understanding heart will feed the affections of your family. You are a natural playmate and pal.

If you be a man, you have never been a teacher's pet or a mama's boy. You have shrieking masculine traits, and you fight for all of man's rights and privileges. You have a great sense of discipline and sportsmanship, and you make a good leader. You win through your grit and industry and you ask for the best the world has to offer. Your promises are sacred, and you are always ready to redress grievances. You must be master in your home, or at least feel that you hold such a position. You feel yourself capable of managing your own affairs and resent interference from others. You are probably a little too self-complacent and independent. You try to hide your affections.

Jane Arlt INTERPRETS the MODE

"Picolo," they call it, this dark red ensemble, with its interesting decoups and gray silk collar on the dress, and its separate jacket with gray astrakhan trimming. (Courtesy of Philippe et Gaston, Paris).

New York, Sept. 8.

"FLOWERS are in the service of art and help to make woman beautiful. The Orientals, who attached such great value to beauty, have understood this from time immemorial. Many of their coiffures are adorned with flowers, those of Indian dancers, for instance. Nothing could be more becoming than flowers falling down close to the face.

"We have had dark, plain materials long enough to make us glad of the vogue of flowered fabrics and thankful to those to whom we owe them. I like big flowers on substantial fabrics, such as cretonne, and small flowers on light materials, not slavishly copied from nature but inspired by her."

This is what a very famous French dancing teacher says anent flowers on or off printed materials.

What does Maeterlinck say in "Ariane et Barbe-Bleue?" "Under our cloudy skies, light loses something of its power, flowers are less brilliant and birds are quieter. Women should always follow the advice of the birds and flowers, which is a feminine translation of the advice of the sun."

Anyhow, you will have to have a long evening wrap for this winter, flowered or velvet. And they look as though they take so-o-o-o-o much materials! But they don't, not our way, so you just send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet telling you how to make one of those new big-sleeved evening coats from 3 yards and a bit more of material. And then there is a simply indescribable cape, which is all bias pieces, which when sewed together, give where they should give, and hold where they should hold . . . if you see what I mean. Better send for the leaflet!

• • • •

Now, if you don't think that was smart . . . and practical! Look, the dress in dark red, with a simple collar of gray crepe . . . and a separate jacket of red wool, trimmed in gray astrakhan. Can't you see the Philippe et Gaston touch in this? You're right!

Silver, bronze and gold metal leaves, joined together by the tip and stem and made to form a choker length necklace, are delicately lovely and unusual in jewelry.

And then there are the wooden pandants with little metal figures, which hang on a silk cord around the neck, and are often matched by a buckle to be worn with the same outfit. And if your gown buttons with wooden buttons of the same wood but minus the little metal figures, who cares!

Vita-Minutes

Only the morning hours have them . . . No other minutes of the day are so productive . . . At no other time are minds so fitted to attack the problems of the day; bodies so capable of carrying out plans made then! . . . Vita-Minutes are those of the early morning hours—the time devoted to reading The Washington Post, "the Capital's greatest NEWSpaper!"

. . . "better hold that over till morning"

Late afternoon of a typical day at the office. Your secretary brings in an important letter . . . or contract . . . something requiring more than casual routine attention.

" . . . better hold that over till morning," you say.

Now that you think about it, can't you recall many times that this has happened? And, of course, you know why!—when it is at all possible—you delay making important decisions until morning.

The reason is that these morning hours are made of Vita-Minutes. You are rested, more fit—you think faster and more clearly—after a night's sleep than after a day's routine. You know that, in the morning, you can make wiser decisions and—once they're made—act upon them more surely.

This is equally true of the man in his world of business . . . and the housewife in her round of daily tasks. And wise merchants know this—realize the value of the time-element in their advertising.

They've discovered that a shopping message read during the Vita-Minutes makes a deeper impression—will get attention and response much more quickly—than the very same message when read at any other time of day.

That's one reason why these merchants place their advertising in The Post . . . the paper that goes into Washington homes during these alert Vita-Minutes!

Another reason is that authoritative surveys show that these Washington families who eagerly turn to The Post for news and shopping news are the very families who do the bigger part of the buying in Washington stores.

Proof of the value of these—and other Post advantages—is found in the history of many advertising campaigns in this territory. These records are open to any advertiser.

NEW YORK WIDOW SLAIN FOR HATRED

POLICE SEEK ROOMER

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The murdered body of Mrs. Delphine Ryan, 70-year-old widow, was found today in the dumbwaiter shaft of her apartment on East 124th street, and in the flat was a note saying she had been slain in "hatred and revenge."

Police immediately began a search for one of three persons who roomed and boarded at the widow's home. Mrs. Ryan had been missing since last Thursday morning.

The note left by the slayer said: "This murder is one of hatred and revenge. She is an old witch who has seen the world for the past 80 years. She has lived in the reign of the Thirteen States. She should have been burnt at the stake."

The body was found today, doubled over, with the head resting on the knees, on top of the dumbwaiter. It had been forced down the shaft. The head was crushed in by a brick wrapped in cloth.

The note was dated September 6, and was addressed apparently to "P. D." which police suggested might mean "police department."

Mrs. Ryan's disappearance was reported last night by a boarder named Smith, who said she had been missing for four days.

Grouped plaits give vertical line and smart flare to a printed shantung in yellowish green tones.

It is a two-piece semisports type. The skirt is attached to a camisole bodice.

The new lines of the wrapped bodice lend to the figure the ever-desirable slim appearance. The vestee, shawl collar and cuffs in blending green shade in plain shantung is very flattering. A bow of sheer velvet marks the natural waistline. It is decorative and useful. It holds the blouse close to the flure.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT WILL be safe to sleep soundly for about ten nights yet, if it is that widely celebrated and remarkably rugged impasse between the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Washington and the Musicians Union, Local No. 161, that is keeping you awake. The present truce will not end—according to the latest advices it is possible to record and still get this in the paper—on September 15, even if an adjustment satisfactory to both sides has not been reached on that date.

As I understand it, on what has always proved to be reliable authority, any negotiations that are to be completed must be successfully consummated on or before next Monday. In the event of failure to arrive at any agreement, however, the musicians have pledge dthemselves not to walk out in the middle of a week that has already been started by the theater orchestra. Thus, the bills inaugurated in the Washington motion picture houses on Friday and Saturday of this week will continue through September 19 with orchestras.

As things stand at present, there is no tangible reason for supposing that the warring factions are any nearer an agreement than they were when the controversy was moved from Washington to New York something over a week ago. If they remain quo through the 15th, the musicians will walk out with close of business September 19.

What the projectionalists and stage hands will do remains to be seen.

Mr. Rodney Collier, erstwhile manager of the Rialto Theater, and soon to be again, dropped in yesterday afternoon to revive the rumor that the Ninth street house is about to throw open its doors for the season—on Monday, September 15, to be perhaps a little more exact about it than past performances have quite jutified.

"Little Accident" will be the initial attraction, when, as and if the opening really comes off—as old Col. Frank P. Morse always said about that bond I bought of him one time and owned until it was almost paid for.

Mr. Collier will resume his post of house manager—in fact, he has already done so—and leaves tonight for New York to perfect final details for Monday's inaugural. Jimmie Carrier will once more take up the duties of managing director of the Washington zone for Universal.

If this one fails to go off, I'll never light another!

A special delivery stamp has just hurried to this desk an interesting communication from a close observer of the theater with whom I have not always found it possible to agree. He says in part:

"Having once written you on the subject, the idiocy of Mr. William Fox and the moving cranes and dime's worth of nonsense he bought in his 'Movietone Follies,' and having stood your printed scorn, you will no doubt be agreeably surprised to hear that I have found, after months of hunt and search, a picture that to me is a picture.....

"The technical features of 'Monte Carlo' are to me a revelation. Not the trick camera shots or the irising in and out—rather the technical novelties employed by the author and director—briefing, snapping off scenes, shifting from full-stage to close-ups that vally peddle ideas.....

"When an intelligent lyric writer and a team of composers take the tempo of a moving train, create a number from it, spot the number with such precision that it moves the story along, expressing the philosophy of the escaping lady with a fine flourish, the movies are growing up and learning stage theory in great fashion.

"Jerome Kern might have been proud to write the six or eight songs in 'Monte Carlo.' Mamoulian might have been delighted to direct it. But neither had a hand in the piece and that is another reason why I sit and stare and wonder why Lubitsch hasn't been entrusted by Paramount with other whimsical stories — permitted, in short, to work them out as his European fancy dictates.

"And yet I'm afraid the movie public is going to wonder what 'Monte Carlo' is all about—it is so different, so much of a vignette (see Austin Dobson, the noted English poet on this point), so much so faery-tale done in a way that intrigues the fantasy (sic) of (Signed) FRANK BAER, who hates the movies."

My dear Francis, don't you know that Mr. Fox and those moving cranes did much to pave the way for Herr Lubitsch? Or that this is not the gifted German's first adventure in this delightful field?

And how do you mean, "movie public?"

Another longer letter received on a slightly earlier mail—four pages instead of two—serves merely to prove that another lily-livered maron has joined the vast army of rebellious cowards who do their vacuous ranting from beneath the convenient shelter of anonymity. "Nemesis," who probably enjoys the self-flattery of so retributive a nom de plume, spews up several hundred words—among them "aesthstics," "faceous" and "perforated screen"—for no other discernible reason than to relieve his colic.

The Warner Brothers' latest shakeup among their local managerial staff moves Joseph King from the downtown Central Theater to the management of the Savoy, at Fourteenth and Irving streets; Ashley Abendschein, formerly assistant manager of the Metropolitan but more recently manager of the Tivoli in Frederick, Md., to the managership of the Central; George Payette, brother of John J. Payette, Warner Brothers' zone manager, formerly assistant manager of the First National Film Exchange, to the managership of the Tivoli in Frederick; Fred Thomas, from the Home Theater here to the managership of the Capitol Theater in Winchester, Va., and Wayne Birdsell, formerly assistant manager of the Tivoli in this city, to the managership of the Home. Motorists, too....

Confirm Conoco's Challenge

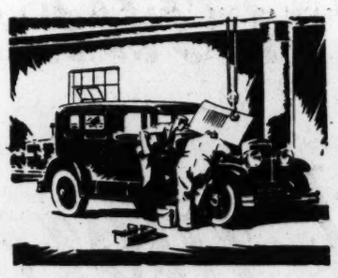
Now Your Fellow Motorists Tell of Their Experiences, and Urge that You Use This Revolutionary

NEW GERM-PROCESSED OIL

..... The Dollars and Cents Value of Penetrative Lubricity is Proved by Car Owners all Over the Country .... Day in and Day Out Users of Motor Oil Verify Every CONOCO Claim

IT ALL BEGAN last November with the vigorous introduction of the new CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil . . . The big news about this oil was its peculiar ability to penetrate metal surfaces. Too, it was positively stated that the greater oiliness of this new oil would increase gasoline mileage, resist dilution, and reduce the 40% to 60% of motor wear which other oils permit during the starting period of your car . . . There were skeptics, of course, but many were the new customers who appeared at Red Triangle stations . . . Soon it seemed as if everyone was talking about this new lubricant. Then came the Pike's Peak Tests, and Germ-Processed oil won first honors on 14 salient points over three other nationally known oils. That started something! More talk, and more new users for CONOCO . . . Then, before the Pike's Peak furore had died down, CONOCO entered the Indianapolis Speedway Race. After 500 miles at 92 miles per hour, CONOCO emerged with another record: The first stock oil to "place" in the money in this famous race. At Altoona, at speeds up to 120 miles per hour, this performance was duplicated, three of the first five cars using Germ-Processed oil. AAA Contest Board officials certified that only regular stock oil was used in both races, identically like the oil sold at CONOCO stations . . . And while all of this was going on, every-day drivers who had read our claims, and tried our oil, were making tests of their own. We told the world that the tenacious film of this new oil would protect motors in emergencies, on the strength of the oily-film in the metal alone! These motorists proved it for themselves. We said: "This oil will make winter starting easier, because it is thoroughly dewaxed." They proved it. We said: "This oil will withstand the withering heat of summer operation because of its oilier character." They proved it . . . It's your fellow-motorists talking to you now. Read their stories, selected at random from the hundreds of voluntary statements which have been sent us.* Compare these impartial accounts of the value of this oil with what you know about other oils you have used . . . Then decide if you will begin using it yourself . . . today!

From MONTANA



From Helena, Montana, comes the story of a mechanic who couldn't remove the Germ-Processed film from the cylinder walls of a motor belonging to Mr. Hirsch of that city. Neither gasoline nor naptha could remove this metal-penetrating film, and now the mechanic recommends CONOCO motor oil to all his patrons.

From VIRGINIA

The speedometer said 3,681 miles when W. W. Winborne, Jr., of La Crosse, Va., had the crankcase of his car filled with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil. It said 5,156 miles before he drained it, and none was added. The motor was in perfect condition after running 1,475 miles on CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil.

From MISSOURI

W. M. Happel, of Palmyra, Mo., double-disked and plowed 50 acres with his tractor in 95 hours running time. Tractors are usually drained daily, but Mr. Happel used just one fill of 8 quarts of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, added only 4 quarts. The tractor ran without heating.

From WYOMING

Frontier, Wyo., coal miners ride 5 miles daily to their work. When the thermometer dropped to 20 below zero January 6, only two of twenty cars would start. Both were filled with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil. The other miners switched to CONOCO, experienced quick starting all winter with this oil.

From TEXAS

The oldest car in Denton County, Texas, belongs to Fred Kelsay, and J. D. Whiteside. On April 2nd, after several months use of Germ-Processed oil, these men removed the drain plug and drove their 1917 Chevrolet 61.4 miles without oil. Affidavits of the owners and witnesses affirm the fact that no damage was done to this motor. Now they're boosters!

From NEW MEXICO

On his daily run of 100 miles between Mogollon and Silver City, N. M., Roy Henry's truck must climb 3,000 feet in 10 miles, mostly in low gear. "Used to change oil every 10 days," he writes, "CONOCO still in crankcase after 25 days . . . still in good shape. Easy starting . . . lasting qualities . . . best ever."

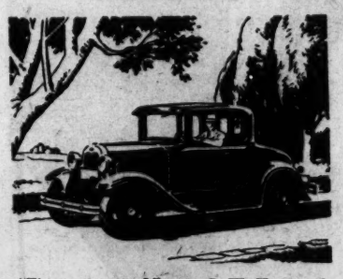
From OKLAHOMA

After he had run 1,000 miles on a fill of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, Alexander Leitch, of Ponca City, Okla., had a sample of it tested by a chemist. He writes, "Viscosity . . . very high considering the service. Dilution . . . low . . . Sediment and cold tests favorable." Only 2 quarts were used by Mr. Leitch.

From UTAH

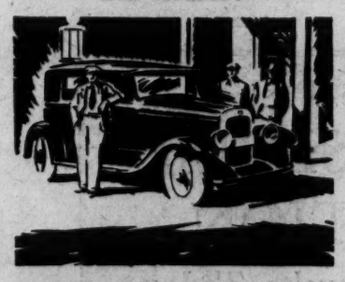
Robert McFadden, of Provo, Utah, examined the CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil in his Model A Ford after running 1,045 miles and found that it "looked and felt almost as good as new." He writes: "Germ-Processed Motor Oil is far ahead of any other oil I have ever used."

From NEBRASKA



"Finest ever used," says C. W. Knott, of Lincoln, Neb. He filled his Ford with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil at 727 miles and did not drain until the speedometer showed 2,618 miles. One quart was added. Mr. Knott praises Germ-Processed oil after running 1,891 miles on one fill. Resists heat in long run.

From COLORADO

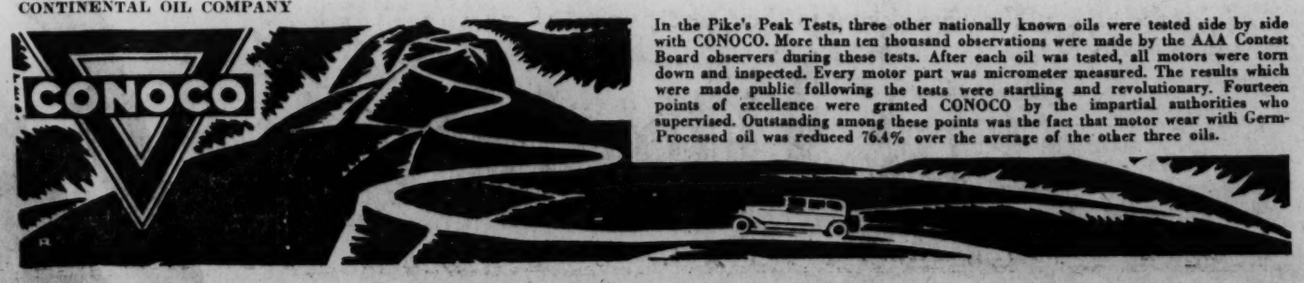


Clyde Frazee, of Denver, Colo., filled his car with CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil, added half a pint at 500 miles, did not drain until 1,238 miles. "The CONOCO oil was still in good condition," he says. "Used during coldest weather—13 below zero . . . does not congeal . . . starts easier . . . body to it after a long, hard drive."

CONTINENTAL OIL

*These voluntary and unpaid for statements and affidavits will be shown to anyone requesting eye-proof. All are on file at the CONOCO offices in Ponca City, Oklahoma.

CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY



In the Pike's Peak Tests, three other nationally known oils were tested side by side with CONOCO. More than ten thousand observations were made by the AAA Contest Board observers during these tests. After each oil was tested, all motors were torn down and inspected. Every motor part was micrometer measured. The results which were made public following the tests were startling and revolutionary. Fourteen points of excellence were granted CONOCO by the impartial authorities who supervised. Outstanding among these points was the fact that motor wear with Germ-Processed oil was reduced 76.4% over the average of the other three oils.

MISS MYSTERIOUS - - - By Larry Lawrence

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A sorority girl, affectionately known as Babe, gets a severe shock from her guardian, Clement Forsyth, who says in a letter that he has lost all her money and therefore is going to commit suicide. He also says that she has been fooled all her life about her parentage and her name is not Thelma Townley. She swears to learn the truth about herself. Soon after getting this shock a young man from the West Coast using the name of Rodney Morgan calls on her, says he knows of her trouble and proposes that she marry him as a way out of her difficulties. He is to see him the next day. That night she goes to a dance with Pete Jones, Milwaukee senior. He knows nothing of her troubles but proposes. Babe admits her fondness for him, but turns him down, determined to make her own way and learn her real identity before marrying anyone. Pete warns her against two men he has seen following her. That night Babe is kidnaped. Pete rescues her and captures the criminals. They take them to his father's summer home. One criminal escapes, and Babe and Pete have to leave the house and hide in a shack, fearing that a gang will return to recapture them. Babe tells Pete her story. They come to Milwaukee and Babe insists that Pete return to school. She goes to a hotel and telephones to her friend, Violet Rimmel, at the sorority house and learns that a sneak thief has taken her metal safety box containing two old brooches. Violet sends Babe's clothes and money to her under the name of Theodora Thomas, the one she has assumed. After days of seeking work Babe is accosted by a man who is rude but forceful. He gives her a mysterious job, explaining nothing. She dresses in evening clothes and is taken to a gambling house. Her employer tells her to call him Mac. He says that he wants her to charm a certain man. The man has just entered the gambling house.

It is Morgan. Mac tells her to learn all she can about him. He takes her to a Milwaukee apartment and says that he has learned that Forseith is not dead. Then he makes love to her and Babe threatens him. In a scuffle her revolver is discharged and he falls to the davenport. There is a loud knock on the door.

CHAPTER X.

Babe leaped to her feet. A spot of blood on Morgan's shirt was slowly growing. It had touched her dress, leaving a dark stain. Frantic, she sought a way of escape. Her only thought was to get away from that repulsive body.

The rapping on the door continued louder, more insistent. She ran to a window, flung it open. A sheer drop of two stories. Her impulse was to leap, but she recoiled as she looked down. The cool air helped steady her nerves and clarify her mind.

"Face the music, face the music." This phrase leaped into her consciousness and repeated itself time and time again. She turned from the window and walked steadily toward the door. The rapping continued. Babe screamed, "Come in!"

"Unlock the door." The voice sounded familiar. It had a sharp command in it. She turned the handle and faced—Mac.

He took in the situation at a glance.

"Got rough, did he?"

Babe nodded. Her mouth seemed filled with powder. It was hard to swallow, but somehow she felt greatly relieved that it was Mac who had found her. She had pictured police ready to snatch her. She had pictured prison bars. Mac, however, was something like an accomplice. He had sent her to this rendezvous. He would understand, help her. A feeling of affection welled up in her being for this brusque person.

Mac strode to the body, jerked the collar open and then put his ear to the heart. He looked up and grinned.

"You just punctured him," he said. "He'll be around in a minute or two yelping like a stuck pig. He's had a few snifters too many or he wouldn't have gone out like that."

Babe felt hope returning to her and was surprised that she felt weaker instead of stronger. She sank down in a chair and Mac came over to her.

A Hurried Search.

"Take it easy," he said. "Nothing to worry about. This bird doesn't dare squeal. While we're here let's have a look around." He took out a card and some powder and rapidly got the fingerprints of the recumbent Morgan. Then he went hurriedly through the drawers of the table in the room, finding nothing that interested him.

Swinging out the in-a-door bed, he found a heavy pigskin bag in the closet behind it. Getting the keys from Morgan's pocket, he opened this and searched carefully. One or two letters he put in his own pocket and then found something that excited his curiosity.

"Has our lady killer gone in for antiques?" he asked, and brought two old brooches out to show Babe. Her eyes bulged as she looked at them.

"Why, those are mine!" she exclaimed.

"What?"

"I say they're mine. They belong to me."

"Speak right up, Thomas," Mac said. "Let's have it all at once. What do you mean?"

"I mean that some one stole them from my room at Madison a week ago."

"What's the rest of it?"

"That's all."

"Don't try to fool an old-timer. You're holding back."

"Yes, I am. But, Mac, I don't know you. I don't even know what you are. You may be a burglar or a cheat for all I really know."

"That's right, girl. I may be, but I'm not. I'll tell you all you need to know in good time. If you want to keep a tight mouth now, that's O. K. I admire you for it. The next thing to do is to take care of the carcass. He's drunk as a goat or he would have come to a long time ago."

Mac took the coat, waistcoat and shirt off Morgan and as he worked he said, "Get me a pan of hot water, a clean towel and search the bathroom for some iodine."

Babe found no iodine, but she did find an antiseptic that would serve. "Just a flesh wound. Parted the hide for an inch," Mac remarked as he bathed the spot. That finished, he pulled down the bed and lifted Morgan onto it.

"We might as well get out now. I didn't think we would be this lucky. He'll never know that I was with you. Come on. I'm taking you to your room."

Babe Ready to Face World.

Mac left Babe in the lobby of her hotel, saying, "I'll see you about 10 tomorrow. Get a good rest if you can. We may have labor. Turn in."

Babe was a little sorry that he hadn't offered to come up the elevator with her and talk some more. She felt his strength helping her to be strong when he was near. Still he hadn't told her anything about himself.

She went to sleep thinking of Pete and Mac, Mac and Pete, weighing them and wondering why it was that each seemed to have a faculty for appearing just when he was needed. She had not asked how Mac came to appear so miraculously at Morgan's apartment and now she realized that he had not bothered to explain.

"Well, I'm trying to face the world and fight for myself," she said to herself. "I don't know whether I like it or not, but at any rate I'm glad I got out of that despondent fog and had the courage to fight." Then her thoughts went back to Pete, Mac, Mac, Pete.

And so sleep found her and with its healing powers cured the fatigue of mind and body that had come with the adventures of the day and night.

The sun was streaming in her window when she awakened and the feeling that something important was soon to happen hastened her into her clothes. What was that feeling? What brought it on? She reviewed the events of the night before and wondered how Morgan was—wondered what he would do. She got out the two old brooches and looked at them for a few minutes. What had they to do with her strange case?

Babe remembered that she had owned them for years. She was not quite clear in her own mind where they came from or how she happened to have them, but she did recall that as a little girl she had liked to play with them, but had always been careful to put them away with her other valued possessions. It had been years since she had played with them or worn them.

They were unique, she admitted, as she looked at the queerly carved, heavy golden set. Probably they are worth quite a little money, she thought, but certainly not enough to bring a crook like Morgan from the coast to steal them. They had a deeper significance she was now sure. If she knew why Morgan stole the brooches she might be on the right track. She might hope then to learn who she was, where she came from.

A Difficult Problem.

But no matter how hard she tried to figure it out, no solution that was tenable came to mind. And she had to admit that now and then her mind strayed from the problem of her identity to the two men, Mac, the inscrutable, hard, mysterious acquaintance of only a day, and Peter, the good friend who had said he loved her and had showed it so thoroughly in saving her from the kidnapers. Peter. She tried to put both men out of her mind. She recalled that only a little more than a week ago men had been no problem to her at all. She liked this one and that one, several, in fact, enjoyed their company, liked to dance with them.

And now when she felt she had no right to think of any man as a suitor, no right to let thoughts of love enter her head, men seemed to be taking all her thoughts. Men were either enemies or suitors, sometimes both, as in the case of Morgan. They could no longer be taken casually as dancing partners.

Mac. Was she in love with Mac? Could such a thing happen? Why, she did not even know his name. He had not said or done a thing to make her think he liked her especially. Yes, he had, he had asked for a kiss and when she refused praised her for the refusal. For a minute she was a little sorry that she had refused.

And Pete had wanted to kiss her and had not done it. Was she sorry about that, too?

"Well, for heaven's sake, come to, Babe. You are in love and you know it and you don't know which man you are in love with." She spoke aloud to relieve the pressure and she might have had quite an argument with herself if the phone had not broken in. Mac was calling.

"I'm coming up," he said. "Must talk."

Babe hastily used a powder puff. Mac knocked once and stepped in when she called "come."

"Let me look at you," he commanded. She faced him.

"You look O. K."

The compliment was paid in too matter of fact way to be very pleasing.

Then Mac shot a question at her. "How are your nerves?"

"All right, I guess. Why the third degree?"

"Didn't I tell you not to ask questions. I tell only what I want told. But you look to me like you came through last night's little affair without a break. I believe you've got the stuff, but I have to be sure. If you want this job you've already started on you'll be in plenty of danger. You may have to do things that you don't like. You are exactly proper now. You may have to kill or you may be killed. You came through last night. Can you keep it up?"

"I think I can. I've made up my mind to fear nothing and chance everything."

"That's the stuff," Mac praised. "The job is yours if you want it. And I think I'll let you in on the play. I am looking for a murderer, a desperate man, a man with a price on his head. You probably thought I was a detective. Well, I am in a way, but I have no authority to be one. I'm not even a private detective connected with an agency. I have plenty of money. I have plenty of time. I want to find this man myself and when I find him I want to strangle him with my own hands."

Babe's eyes widened. She shrank back. Hate was written all over Mac's face as he spoke. He seemed sane enough. But was he? Would a sane man talk that way? She wavered. Perhaps she had better get out of this as fast as possible. But she let him go on talking.

"There is no reason for me to tell you why I hate this man. But there is good reason—good reason for my hate. I have an idea that the man I want is in Milwaukee now. If he is I'll get him. If not I'll find him somewhere. And I want a beautiful girl like you to be with me when I find him. I have my own reasons for that, too. I won't tell them to you now but I may some time.

"Do you still want the job? Oh I neglected to say that I will pay $20 a day and expenses."

"No," Babe almost shouted. "No, I do not want that sort of a job. I would be a murderer myself if I helped you find this man. That's too much."

"I talked too violently Thomas. You misunderstood me. There will be no murder. That would be too easy for him. I want to torture him a little with the law. I want to make him suffer as he made others—well, me—suffer."

"You said strangle."

"Yes, strangle, perhaps, but not to death. I want to squeeze his neck several times, making him think that each will be the last one, but then I want to hand him over to the authorities as my last bit of mental torture. I want him to face that due process of law that he has escaped for so many years. Will you help me?"

Babe looked at him intently. His voice had lost some of its bitterness. Now he was pleading. He seemed more like a boy who needed help than a crazed fiend who was seeking vengeance. But he had meant all that he had said. Babe could feel that. She also felt that he might need her to protect him, check him, see that he did not let passion run away with him if he should find the man he was hunting down.

"I'll help," she answered, after a long pause.

"Good! Good!" Mac burst out. "And no backing out now. You're in this with me, through blood or water. Shake." He stuck out his hand. Babe solemnly took it. It was like boys shaking on an oath of fidelity, she thought, only this seemed much more ominous.

"It is only fair to tell you, Thomas, that I believe the man I want knows that I am on his trail. He is probably tracking me down just as ruthlessly as I am tracking him."

As fine gold refined—
THE NEW PACKARD EIGHT

WE MOST cordially invite you to come in and look over the new Packard cars now on display at our showrooms.

You will find them as fine gold refined—as one of the world's finest cars made still finer.

A Wide Choice of Beautiful New Models

The new Packard Eight includes more notable improvements and refinements than any Packard of recent years. It is available in thirty-two beautiful models ranging in price from $2385 for the ever-popular Standard Eight Five-Passenger Sedan to $6075 for the finest Individual Custom creation. (At the factory.)

Improved carburetion and manifolding have increased the power. With added power, performance, especially in traffic and at the "red light", has been bettered. The advantages which only a four-speed transmission can give have been retained, with the transmission converted to the "short-shift" type. Longer and softer springs and new shock absorbers provide more riding comfort. An entirely automatic lubrication system now takes the human element out of daily chassis care and protects the long life resulting from fine engineering and precision manufacture.

Bodies made in Packard's own factories are the finest in every way that Packard has ever offered. Traditional appearance has been retained and beauty of line refined. Interiors have been beautified and made more luxurious. New color combinations have been provided.

Thirty years of building for the most discriminating clientele has taught the Packard Motor Car Company what such a clientele demands. And year by year—and again this year—new luxuries, new refinements and new improvements have been added.

An Investment in Luxurious Transportation

Today when nearly everyone is thinking in terms of investment instead of speculation, and buying more carefully, we ask you to view refined and improved cars—cars without a single speculative or untried feature. With Packard the car has always been greater than any one feature. You could not buy, expecting to keep your car four or five years if it were otherwise.

We shall be delighted to have you visit our showrooms and, as our guest, you will not be urged to buy. You will be extended every courtesy and desired attention in return for your own kindness in calling.

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1930. 15

WILLIAMS, AT 39, UPSETS LOTT IN U. S. SINGLES

BROWNS FACE HADLEY TODAY AS NATS OPEN LAST STAND IN WEST

Pitcher Seeks Bonus by Victory; Macks 6½ Ahead.

West Returns to Old Post; Club Clings to Title Hopes.

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8.—Manager Walter Johnson led his Nationals into town here late this afternoon, all enthused over his team's thrilling victory over the Philadelphia Mackmen Sunday and still hoping that something will happen to give his team a chance to cop the flag.

Unfortunately for him, the season is so near over that the world's champions' 6½-game lead is almost insurmountable, irrespective of what the Washington Club does on the Western invasion, which opens here tomorrow, for the Mackmen must slump more than reasonably may be expected of them in order to give the Nationals a look-in.

Johnson stated, however, that he is determined to play out the string and not give up hope until all mathematical chances have been wiped out. The Browns, although only two steps removed from the cellar, have done the Nationals more harm this season than any other club in the circuit; in fact, Killefer's team is the only one which holds an edge over the Washington team in series play, having won 10 of the 19 meetings to date.

Irving Hadley will draw the pitching assignment against the St. Louis team tomorrow and he has an added incentive to turn in victory, for he is seeking his fifteenth victory of the season and this will net him a second bonus in his contract.

In the two decisions in which Hadley has figured against the Browns he has broken even and is after the odd one tomorrow. He likely will have plenty of trouble getting it, for George Blaeholder, who, with Walter Stewart, form the bulk of the Brownie mound staff, likely will be on the hill opposing him.

Manager Johnson stated tonight that he will have his best team available for this three-game series, for Outfielder Sam West, who has been missing because of water in the elbow of his throwing arm, is expected to be doing business again at his old stand in center.

"Runs Batted In" Mark Is Set by Hack Wilson

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Hack Wilson, clubbing outfielder for the Cubs, has established a new National League record for runs batted in for one season.

Wilson now has driven in 163 runs, compared to the league record of 159 he set last season. With eighteen games yet to go, Wilson has a chance to eclipse the major league record of 175 established by Lou Gehrig, of the New York Yankees, in 1927.

Hauser's 60th Homer Ties Ruth's '27 Record

Baltimore, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Joe Hauser, first baseman of the Baltimore Orioles, of the International League, has tied Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs, but one phase of the Babe's record, made in 1927, is safe.

Ruth's mark was set in 154 scheduled games and Hauser's circuit swat, in the second game of a double-header with Jersey City, was in the 154th game of the Oriole's season, so that part of the Yankee slugger's record can not be broken.

The Orioles have thirteen more games to play and information here is that Hauser needs three more to break the minor league record of Moose Blabaugh, made in 1926, when the latter was with the Tyler Club in the East Texas League.

Four Games Separate First 4 National Clubs

(Associated Press.)

Only two games were scheduled in the National League yesterday but the Brooklyn Robins made the most of the opportunity to draw the senior circuit pennant race a little tighter as the final East-West series get under way today. Defeating the Phillies twice, the Robins moved into third place, three and one-half games back of the pace-setting Cubs and one game to the rear of the Cardinals, who hold down the runner-up position. Although idle the Giants fell to fourth place, four games out of first.

Here is the race at glance, giving games won, lost, percentage, games behind the leader and games to play:

Detroit Ships Hargrave Back To Washington

ASSOCIATED PRESS dispatches from Detroit yesterday to the effect that the Nationals had been awarded William McKinley (Pinky) Hargrave by the Detroit Tigers at the waiver price came as a pleasant surprise to Clark Griffith, Washington Club president, who had not yet been officially advised that he had landed the player.

"We only have two catchers available and need another," said the Nat owner last night, "and I think that Hargrave will fill the bill. Scout Joe Engel reports a dearth of good backstoppers in the minors, and I put in claims for several receivers on whom other big league clubs have asked waivers. I'm glad to get Hargrave, for he is a pretty fair hitter and not a bad man behind the plate."

Hargrave Started Here as Major.

Hargrave started his major league career here, being drafted from the New Haven Club, of the Eastern League, after the close of the 1922 season. He remained with the Nats until June of 1925, when he was traded to the St. Louis Browns for Catcher Hank Severeid. The following year he was released to the Toronto Internationals, being purchased by the Tigers in 1927 and has been with them ever since.

Hargrave batted well over .300 during the early part of this season, but then was injured and has not done so well since his return to the lineup. His present average is .286, the result of 40 hits in 140 times at bat. He will join the Nationals in St. Louis today or tomorrow.

Rain Prevents Play-Off For Sally Loop Flag

Greenville, S. C., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The first of the games to decide the winner of the South Atlantic League pennant was postponed here today on account of rain.

Greenville copped the first half of the season and Macon the last half, and the series is to pick the winner.

Wichita Wins Western Pennant by 11½ Games

Bannockburn Golf Event Draws 274

18-Hole Medal Play Listed Tomorrow and Thursday.

Barnett Leads M. A. Seniors; Other Golf Results.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH a list of 274 entries, the largest in the history of the club, the annual fall invitation tournament of the Bannockburn Golf Club will begin tomorrow morning with the field divided into a qualifying round of eighteen holes for tomorrow and Thursday. With the exception of Miller B. Stevinson, all of the leading golfers of the city will compete, including Harry G. Pitt, Manor, and John C. Shorey, Bannockburn. There are also a large number of out-of-town contestants.

W. Fred. Byrne, chairman of the golf committee, last night issued the following statement in connection with the tournament:

"After careful consideration the tournament committee has decided that Bannockburn does not wish a break in its long series of annual invitation tournaments even though the protracted drought has made it impossible to put the course in the condition that is due to the guests of the club.

Club Hopes to Make Up for Course Deficiencies.

"But the committee wishes it understood that the Bannockburn Golf Club and all its members are ready to extend a cordial greeting to all entrants, and hopes that the renewed acquaintance with old friends and the spirit of good fellowship will in some measure make up for deficiencies in the golf game."

The times of play and the pairings for the qualification round will be found on page 16.

A senior professional golf tournament as staged yesterday on the course of the Chevy Chase Club, under the auspices of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association, the seniors being members of the home club. Cy Young Winning Pitcher For Boston "Old Timers"

"Home Run" Baker's Drive Pulled Down by Duffy Lewis.

BOSTON, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Back from the farm and fireside came almost two score of baseball's heroes to engage in an "old-timers'" game here today, which a team composed of old Boston players won, 8 to 4. The opponents of the Boston immortals were an aggregation of some of the outstanding stars of baseball history playing under the name of "The All Stars."

Cy Young, one of the greatest of pitchers, got credit for the victory after holding the Stars hitless during the one inning he pitched. The loss of the game was checked up to Ed Walsh, former White Sox star, who now has two sons in the national pastime, although Walsh was but one of five pitchers who hurled for the All Stars.

The activity on the playing field brought back memories to 30,000 fans who saw Tris Speaker, Harry Hooper and Duffy Lewis pulling down flies in the outfield for Boston and it seemed like old times when, in the opening innings, Lewis galloped to the left field wall to pull down "Home Run" Baker's drive. One incident carried back further than the memories of many of the fans as Patsy Donovan, an outelder in 1890, singled when he batted for Bill Dineen.

The old Athletic infield was there, Stuffy McInnis, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Baker. Even Candy Lachance, whose moustache was the envy of the other big leaguers back in 1903, was back at first base for Boston.

Ty Cobb played for both teams, holding center field for the "All Stars" for seven innings, and then switching sides to bat for the genial Hank Gowdy in the eighth. The once demon hitter either grounded or flied out on his four trips to the plate.

OCT. 1 START FOR WORLD SERIES

No Change in Prices; Macks Get Break If Cubs Play.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The National League Pennant race was drawn a little tighter today as the Brooklyn Robins won a doubleheader from the Phillies, moving into third place, only three and one-half games back of the pace-setting Chicago Cubs. The Brooklyn-Philadelphia games were the only contests scheduled in either of the major leagues.

Two big innings in each game and a brilliant hurling exhibition by Ray Moss in the opener gave the Robins the first encounter, 8 to 2, and the nightcap, 11 to 4. Moss was the whole show for the Robins in the first fuss, holding the Phillies to four hits while his mates hammered Hansen and Phillips to all corners of the ball park, scoring five runs in the fifth to take the lead and eventually the game.

The second contest was a close battle until the seventh frame, when the Dodgers smashed six runs across the plate, driving Willoughby from the mound. J. Elliott had held the Phillies in check until their half of the seventh, when he weakened and Thurston was rushed to the rescue. The veteran blanked the home team for the remainder of the battle, while H. Elliott followed Sweetland on the mound for the Phillies.

ROBINS TAKE TWO; BACK IN RACE

Beat Phils, 8-2, 11-4; Only 3½ Games Behind Cubs.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The first act in the 1930 world series will be staged Wednesday, October 1, in the park of the team winning the American League championship, undoubtedly the Philadelphia Athletics.

This was decided today at the annual preworld series conference in the office of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

The second game likewise will be played at the home of the American League pennant winner with games three, four and five at the park of the National League champion. If two more games are necessary, they will be played in the American League champion's park.

Applications Received Next Monday.

Prices will be the same as last year and ticket applications will be accepted effective next Monday, September 15. The price scale, including tax, will be: Boxes, $6.60; grand stand reserved, $5.50; general admission, $3.00, and bleachers $1.00. Tickets will be sold only in blocks of three as last year.

If the Chicago Cubs or St. Louis Cardinals win the National League pennant, one day will intervene between the second and third games. If Brooklyn or New York win, the series will be played on consecutive days, barring rain.

All tie games will be replayed in the park where they occurred unless they do not affect the outcome. As usual, the team winning four games will win the series.

All games will start, as usual, at 1:30 p. m., eastern standard time, at Philadelphia, and central standard time at Chicago.

Only once in the history of modern baseball has the world series opening been slated earlier than this year. The exception came in the war year, 1918, when the series opened September 5. In 1903 and 1919, the autumnal baseball classic opened October 1. The latest opening was October 17 in 1910.

Nats Not Represented at Meeting.

Representatives of all clubs with mathematical pennant chances were invited to the meeting today, but the Washington Nats and the New York Giants did not accept. The Nats were all but out of the running in the American League, trailing the world championship Athletics by 6½ games. The Giants still retained a chance, trailing the leading Cubs by four games.

The Athletics were represented at the conference by President Thomas Shibe and Secretary R. J. Schroeder, while the championship Cubs were represented by President William Veeck. Other representatives were President Frank B. York, Brooklyn, and Treasurer Will O. De Witt, St. Louis. President John Heydler and E. S. Barnard represented the National and American Leagues, respectively.

A day for traveling in event of a St. Louis or Chicago victory in the National League pennant race was regarded as a break for the Athletic pitching staff, as it would give them a chance to rest their pitchers and give their two stars, "Lefty" Grove and George Earnshaw an extra fling in the classic.

Names of eligible players will be released next week by the respective leagues.

Stella Walsh Wins Two Sprint Races at Prague

Prague, Germany, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—concluded here today, but individual concluded here today, but individaul honors went to Stella Walsh, great sprinter from Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Walsh, who had won the 60-meters championship on Sunday, added the 100 and 200 meters titles to her string today. She ran the 100 meters in 12 5-10 seconds and the 200 meters in 25 7-10 seconds. In each race Fraulein Schurrmann, of Holland, was runner-up.

Germany's team scored 57 points to 26 for Poland and 19 for Great Britain, former title holders.

Farrell, Smith Top Pros in Qualifying

Pair Shoot 145s in Opening of P. G. A. Tournament.

Diegel Escapes Elimination by Shooting Remarkable 69.

By BRIAN BELL.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Thirty-two professional golfers from every section of the country won their first battle over the hard Fresh Meadow golf course today to qualify for the P. G. A. championship which continues to the match play stage tomorrow. Thirty-one crack pros failed to qualify in the 36-hole test which continued from early morning until darkness was settling over the scores of traps dotting the landscape.

Johnny Farrell and Horton Smith, with 36-hole totals of 145, led the field, a distinction carrying honor but no prize money, and Leo Diegel, the defending champion, furnished the excitement.

First Round of 81 Fails to Worry Diegel.

Farrell played good, sound golf with scores of 72-72, and Horton Smith had 73-72, but Leo uncorked a typical Diegel round. He staggered on after the morning round with a score of 81. Only the title holder was unworried as his friends were in a mild panic.

Diegel then went out in the afternoon and returned a score of 69, equaling the course record, and qualifying with seven strokes to spare.

"Nothing to worry about," said Diegel at luncheon. "I'll qualify all right." Evidently the best professional golfer in Mexico knew his game.

As a matter of fact, every one, including Diegel, expected his score to be 67 instead of 69 as he stood on the eighteenth tee. He came to the hole a fairly easy four, needing only one more par to break the record, but he took a six here, after a visit to a trap and a weak putt.

Guest Shows Way in First Round.

Charlie Guest led the morning round with 71. Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Chicago, had 71 in the afternoon. Guest and Cooper tied for third with scores of 146 and Charley Lacey, Philadelphia, and Mark Fry, Oakland, Calif., tied for fifth with counts of 147.

The California Frys made a brave showing in the qualifying play. Earl followed his brother Mark into the select 32 with a 36-hole score of 152.

Gene Sarazen, Fresh Meadow pro, playing over his home course, may have had too many of his friends in the gallery, for he combined rounds of 77 and 76 for a score of 153, well in the qualifying limit, but far from sensational.

None of the leading players was eliminated, although Billy Burke, a consistent low scorer in first-class competition, had to play off with five others for the final place in the match play class.

Burke scored a par four at the extra hole, while the others took five. The players who were so near and yet so far were Walter Beamish, Genesco, N. Y.; Charley Hall, Birmingham, Ala.; Ed McElligott, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Jimmy Hines, New York, and Walter Murray, Gary, Ind.

Scorers of 158 Play Off for Qualification.

The players in the playoff had totals of 158 for the day, all players registering 157 or better qualified without the extra effort.

Hall, the long-driving Southerner, was too long today, and had four balls out of bounds, accounting for eight strokes. This streak of wildness cost him a place in the match play.

Charley Lacey, the young British pro from Pine Valley, had to borrow clubs from one of his playing companions, as he broke two in the course of his morning round. However, the lack of his No. 3 and No. 4 irons did not keep him from scoring among the leaders.

Camp Pery, Ohio, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Gunnery Sergt. H. M. Bailey, United States Marines, Waterboro, S. C., scored 282 out of a possible 300 today to win the national individual pistol match here and the title of champion pistol shot in the United States.

There were 549 entries in the match. Lieut. G. A. Rehn, United States Cavalry, Fort Myer, Va., was a close second, with 260. Sergt. Melvin T. Huff, United States Marines, San Diego, Calif., made 259 for third.

MARLBORO'S 5-DAY RACE MEETING OPENS TODAY

5,000 Crowd Expected at Opening

Scenes of Turf Come Back to Southern Maryland.

300 Horses in tSalls at Historic Half-Mile Track.

THE Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's five-day racing meet oens today at the Marlboro track, thus once more bringing racing near to Washington turf fans. The opening marks the third lap of the half-mile meets before the fall racing season begins on the major tracks of the State of Maryland, and is exected to draw over 5,000 fans.

Seven races daily starting at 2 o'clock have been booked by Secretary John P. Turner, who asserts that the coming Marlboro session should surpass any previous meetings of that track. The $1,000 Finale Handicap on Saturday will climax the week, being the outstanding feature of the card.

Local fans will see a completely renovated lant when they arrive at the scene of the races today, as General Manager Joseph A. Farrell and Track Superintendent Dick Pending have made many improvements. A 3,000-gallon water tank has been installed and new rest rooms have been built and freshly painted.

With practically al lthe horses that competed at Timonium and Cumberland on hand, close to 300 horses are available for the session, including several new ones. Each race will be limited to eight horses, and all will be started out of stationary stall gates similar to those at Bowie.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland will be the guest of honor today at the track, after being a guest at luncheon in the home of J. Hampton Macgruder, president of the host organization.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

FIVE fleet sprinters are scheduled to race 6 furlongs in the Lincoln Fields feature, which has been labeled the Olympia Fields Country Club Handicap. Indications are that the going will be fast. For this reason, the Reichert Bros.' BROWN WISDOM is preferred over CLUB HOUSE. CLUB HOUSE finished a head in advance of BROWN WISDOM in the Crete Handicap, run on the last day of August, but with Better racing luck Brown Prince's son might have won the rich stake.

PANSY WALKER and PRINCETON both beat CLUB HOUSE and BROWN WISDOM. Cowboy Charlie Irwin has named NUSAKAN for the day's feature. On most recent races, NUSAKAN doesn't figure to beat BROWN WISDOM or CLUB HOUSE, but we recall the son of Sun Briar upsetting the dope a couple of times earlyl this summer in Illinois. Others in the day's feature are CAYUGA, a superior mudder, and TANTIVY.

FIRST RACE—A large field of cheap platers will sprint 6 furlongs in the day's opener. FAVORITE II, fast away from the gate, appears to have regained his best form. He may be hard to catch. CHARM has been working in a manner that would indicate she is up to a good effort. ESIN should give a good account of himself in a race like this.

SECOND RACE — FLYING PLUM, which will run coupled with SCOTCH-MADE as the Bacon & Pratt entry, may be graduated here. The race is for 2-year-old maiden fillies. FLYING PLUM'S recent efforts have been impressive. ROSEVOLT has made many starts, but she is still a maiden. She has been close up, however. ALL GIRLS has onlyl to run to her good morning trials to be dangerous.

THIRD RACE—JEANNE WACHS' most recent races have been fair. Just a chance she may upset calculations and step home in advance of her feminine rivals in this 6-furlong dash. Walter J. Salmon's PIOUS has been showing fair speed in her morning trials. LADY FINGERS, the probable favorite, will e hard to keep out of the picture.

FIFTH RACE—In this rather open contest we prefer COG AIR, a handy winner of his most recent start. COG AIR can step along at top speed for seven-eighths of a mile. That's about as far as he cares to go with good horses. Seven furlongs may be an eighth of a mile farther than HONEY LOCUST will care to go. She'll be with the leaders most of the way, however. CALF ROPER is rounding to his best form. He would be better suited over a longer route.

SIXTH RACE—Running his race, the Valley Lake Stable's HERENDEEN can outstep the platers he meets in this mile and a furlong gallop. HERENDEEN showed a return to his best form ast out. JACK CRAIN is the one to fear. This fellow has been showing nice peed in the mornings. BUTTERED TOAST has little to beat to earn the short award.

SEVENTH RACE—COCKRILL has beaten the kind he meets in the nightcap on many occasions this year. PAT FIELD figures slightly better than GOTHAM. The latter would be better suited were the going muddy or heavy.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOUTH SEAS, $10.42, $7.30, $4.44; ROYAL ROCK, $10.78, $5.86; BLACK BULL, $2.96.

SOUTH SEAS had speed from the start, raced into the lead on the inside and, after drawing away on the far turn, continued well and held ROYAL ROCK safe. ROYAL ROCK began slowly, was in close quarters for three-eighths, went to extreme outside on the turn and swerved while closing resolutely. BLACK BULL worked his way up gradually and suffered mild interference in the stretch. FLAGG PORTER dropped a good distance out of it, but saved much ground and closed fast. TORCH FIRE had a mediocre race. BROOMSTREET began slowly. TRYCOBEL and HOGAN'S OUTLOOK had early speed.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:50½. Winner, H. P. Headley's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOT SHOT, $13.52, $6.16, $3.88; CHIMNEY SWEEP, $38.70, $13.58. BEAMING OVER, $3.88.

HOT SHOT displayed speed from the start, saved ground during the opening half mile, swerved sharply to the inside after heading T. S. JORDAN and held the lead safe thereafter. CHIMNEY SWEEP saved ground to the stretch where he worked his way up to the inside and finished strongly. BEAMING OVER began slowly, suffered mild blocking in the stretch and closed fast when clear on the inside in final eighth. SUPREME SWEET, up close from the start, saved much ground, but suffered when the winner crossed over in the stretch and, taken back, never recovered. T. S. JORDAN was done after showing speed to the stretch. BEST MAN broke up in very close quarters three-eighths, appeared forced back and quit under pressure. DOUBLE HEART, kept up close with a big loss of ground, to the stretch, then weakened.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:36. Winner, Nevada Stock Farm's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VOLTAGREEN, $3.42, $2.90, $2.24; COUSIN JO, $9.36, $3.10; DORIS JEAN, $2.34.

VOLTAGREEN quickly went to the front and, shaking off KAMALII when the stretch was reached, drew out in the run home to score a handy victory. COUSIN JO came nearest to challenging in the stretch but was no threat to the winner. DORIS JEAN was in the closing strides. DORIS JEAN was off rather slowly, but made up ground and raced fairly well to the finish PLUCKY LADY acted badly at the barrier, dropped back after breaking well and made up ground on the inside in the last quarter. KAMALII stopped badly in the stretch. IN HASTE was outrun all the way.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:06. Winner, C. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL SON, $12.00, $6.20, $4.44; GOTOIT, $14.18, $9.12; PRETTY POSE, $7.66

ROYAL SON was placed close up under restraint in the early running and, coming to the outside of PRETTY POSE in the stretch run, wore the latter down and won easily. GOTOIT followed the pace of PRETTY POSE closely throughout and caught the latter in the last stride. PRETTY POSE set the pace under restraint, but did not have enough left. GOLD MINT was always prominent. DON FERNANDO made up ground. BANSET and GREY GULL interfered with each other leaving the gate and the latter stumbled soon after the start. SPECTACULAR could never get to the leaders.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,600; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, handily. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:36½. Winner, W. J. Wolf's gr. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLECHE D'ARGENT, $63.80, $12.86, $5.20; SUITOR, $5.70, $3.66; WHO WIN, $3.64.

FLECHE D'ARGENT, never far from the pace, came fast after entering the stretch and, wearing down SUITOR, got to the front in the last stride. SUITOR set the pace and held on in courageous style when challenged in the stretch-turn and just missed. WHO WIN went to the front on the first turn, was taken back during the run down the back stretch and, although making a bid at the stretch turn, could not reach the leaders. ANNAPOLIS, under a very weak ride, was carried wide by SUITOR on the first turn, lost much ground thereafter and, after swinging wide at the stretch turn, was permitted to continue to race on the outside in the run home and can do better.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:06. Winner, P. L. Lycan's blk. g. H. SMITH raced in close pursuit of LEFLORE to the stretch, then wore the latter down and, taking command at mid-stretch, scored easily. LEFLORE opened up a good lead in the early running, but could not resist the winner. JODHPUR closed much ground after going half the distance, but did not threaten first two. FAIR ARGUMENT also made up ground. JAMES M. was shut off going to the first turn and had a rough trip. MY NO stumbled and almost fell on the first turn.

BUMPSIE RAY made up ground. TIGER FLOWERS broke into GRAYDALE and knocked the latter off his stride at the start,

PULLMAN NINE ANNEXES WEEK-DAY LEAGUES TITLE

Calvary Nine Defeated by 13-1 Score

Colliflower Allows Georgetown Church Leaguers 4 Hits.

Pitcher Also Leads in Batting With Single, Double, Triple.

THE championship of the week-day league baseball series went to the Pullman Co. Nine for the third successive year yesterday afternoon, when a 13-1 defeat of the Calvary M. E. Church Team, sole survivor in this year's elimination tournament, clinched for it the 1930 title on the Plaza diamond.

By its victory, Pullman completed the tournament without the loss of a game, having conquered four straight opponents in its unhampered path to the crown.

To Pitcher Ed Colliflower must go the laurels for yesterday's pennant-clinching triumph, the Pullman hurler twirling a masterful game and lending a helping hand with his big bat. Although weakened by the loss of several stars who had left for college Calvary was able to get but four hits, all singles, off the Pullman ace, and did not score until the ninth, when it bunched two of its blows for its only run.

Colliflower Is Invincible; Leads Attack.

Although Colliflower was rather free with his passes, walking five, he was never in danger throughout the first eight frames. Besides holding the foe at bay, Colliflower cracked out a single, double and triple to lead both teams at bat, the latter smash coming with the bases crowded in the fifth inning.

For the first two innings, not a run crossed the plate, but in the third, the Pullman attack began and before the inning was over enough runners had crossed the plate to have settled the game then and there. Hall started the assault by doubling over the fence and the bases were filled when Collier walked and Smithson received life on Harwood's fumble. The first run then came across as Stahl was being tossed out at first, and run number two was scored a moment later when Chaconas lifted a sacrifice fly to center.

Four Runs in Fifth Clinch Game.

Pullman duplicated its two-run stanza in the fourth frame, when three hits, an error and a sacrifice fly accounted for a pair of tallies. The real blow-off came in the following inning, however, when four runs crossed the plate, to give Pullman an 8-to-0 lead. With the bases full as a result of Stahl being hit by a pitched ball, Harwood's error on Chaconas' roller, and Booker's speed in beating out a swinwing bunt, Tripp walked, forcing in Stahl, and then came Colliflower's smack, a three-base hit which cleaned the bases.

Four doubles, two walks, a single, two walks and a balk gave the champions a superfluous five runs in the ninth before Collier mercifully ended the game with a strike-out.

LOTT BEATEN IN SINGLES UPSET

Williams Wins From Youth; Tilden and Bell Victors.

at the hands of mediocre New York players.

The dramatic high spot of the day was the Lott-Williams match. Lott started out like a winner, taking the first set after a hard fight. But in the second and third Williams broke his service in the eleventh game for the margin that enabled him to run out the set, and in the fourth Lott went all to pieces and could take only one game, the third, on his own service. Williams finished off the match decisively with two love games.

An incident that appeared to disturb Lott was the calling of a foot-fault against him in the first set by S. Wallis Merrihew, of New York, the same judge who called Lott for foot-faulting in the East-West series last week. Lott protested today and Merrihew subsequently left the court voluntarily. Lott's service thereafter was less formidable. He scored five aces in the first seet and only two in the remaining three.

The national veterans singles championship got under way today with C. M. Charest, one-armed Washington, D. C., player, beginning defense of his title with a 6—2, 6—0 victory over Morris Gossett, New York. Arthur Atwood, Washington, also won his first round match, defeating J. S Francis, Orange, N. J., 6—0, 6—2.

FIVE INJURED IN G. U. GRID PRACTICE

Banzuel Injures His Knee; Others Suffer Minor Hurts.

Special to The Washington Post.

POINT LOOKOUT, Md., Sept. 8.—Coach Tom Mills, of Georgetown University Football Team, staged the initial line scrimmage of the training season here this morning, and it proved to be a costly one, for five players suffered leg injuries.

The most seriously hurt was Banzuel, center, who was hobbling around on crutches tonight as a result of a badly wrenched knee. Dubossky and Slezak, linemen, and Scalzi and Gillis, backs, were the other casuals, their injuries being more or less minor.

Capt. Morris Only Center Now on Hand.

The loss of Banzuel, coupled with the fact that McManus, another snapper back, was called away from camp because of a death in his family, leaves only Capt. Morris to do the center duties and forces Coach Mills to groom others to help out.

Two practice sessions were held today, with the first offensive one of the season staged this afternoon, despite light showers. A skull drill was held tonight and this program will be followed from now on with no signs of a let-up in sight.

At the conclusion of today's sessions Coach Mills was by no means encouraged by the showing of his men. His Notre Dame style of play differs materially from other systems and the candidates did not seem to grasp it or to give indications of knowing what it was all about. Judging from the little or no progress made today, much hard work is to be done before the Blue and Gray candidates complete their work here.

ARMY officers will compete today in a qualification round at the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club for entry to play in the Army championship golf tournament to be played at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

While the epidemic of low scoring that has visited the District during the dry spell may upset expectations, previous records would indicate that Majs. Sutherland, Naiden, Hughes and Noyes, of the Regular Army, and Lieut. Belshe, of the Reserve Corps, should fight it out for the championship now held by Maj. Naiden. Others who are regarded highly are Cols. Parrott, Glass and Fulton, Majs. Peterson, Kilner, Barr and Mountford, and Capts. Luscomb, Clear and Stoner, the local club champion.

Laurel, Md., Sept. 7.—Hitting hard and timely, the Laurel Nine buried the Howard A. French Team, of Washington, D. C., beneath a 14-to-4 score twelve runs, Lyons, visiting southpaw gave up the task in the eighth inning but Mattingly, relief pitcher, was greeted by successive home runs by the first two men to face him. I Kaiser hit three home runs and single to lead the attack, while Haslup smacked a single, triple and homer.

Capital City League Title Series Will Start Sunday

Takoma Tigers Play Dixie Pigs; Bausermans Meet Anacostia Eagles in Champion Games.

THE intersectional playoff for the championship of the Capital City League will start Sunday with two battles between the four section winners. This was settled at a meeting of the representatives of the four group champions in meeting at The Washington Post.

The games for Sunday are:

Takoma Tigers, Montgomery County champions, vs. Dixie Pigs, Prince Georges County champions, at Byrd Stadium, University of Maryland, 3 o'clock.

Bauserman Motor Co., Virginia section champions, vs. Anacostia Eagles, District section champions, Congress Heights field, 3 o'clock.

The team representatives decided on the "double-knockout" series, the same plan used by the week-day leagues in their playoff. A team losing two games will be eliminated. They also voted to use District Association umpires in all games.

This series is expected to provide some of the best sandlot baseball seen in this section. Every team was forced to fight it out to the end of the schedule before gaining the title, the Dixie Pigs having to defeat Mount Rainier in a playoff to win the Prince Georges County laurels.

28 Davis-Elkins Grid Players at First Drill

Special to The Washington Post.

Elkins, W. Va., Sept. 8.—Davis and Elkins College football players reported to Coach Cam Henderson here today for the first official grid practice. Twenty-eight men were in uniform for the initial workout at Davis Field. Rengle, Warren, Wagner and Close, four-year stars in the back field, were graduated in June and their loss will be felt keenly. Mitchell, star end and candidate for all-American honors, "flunked" by failure to pass sufficient work, and Miller, regular tackle, was graduated, and Marstiller, lineman, is gone, while Pigott, star guard, may not play on account of a bad back injury.

A stiff eleven-game schedule faces the Senators, who open against North Dakota State College at Fargo, N. Dak., on September 27.

Alpha Delta Omega Frat Gridmen Working

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 8.—Two practice sessions during the wek and a third on Sunday morning have been ordered for the football team of Alpha Delta Omega Fraternity by Coach "Mike" Goldman, former George Washington University grid star. The squad will practice Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7 o'clock on Haydon Field and 11 a. m. on Sundays at Hunton Field. All candidates are to report at these drills.

The team is to be hustled along for its opening game of the season on Sunday, September 28, on Hunton Field with some team yet to be named.

TAKOMA TIGERS—NOTE.

The Takoma Tigers will meet on the Silver Spring field today at 5:30 o'clock. A photograph of the team will be made at this time.

C. U. COACHES FACE BIG TASK

Lack of Reserve Talent Is Biggest Handicap.

AN inventory of Catholic University's football stock shows nothing over which Head Coach Dutch Bergman and his assistants should rave gleefully. A gigantic task confronts the Cardinal coaches and players in trying to produce a football team capable of winning most of its games.

This is an observer's viewpoint—not that of Bergman and company. The Brookland grid chieftain is tackling his work with enthusiasm and he doesn't display the slightest drooping of the mouth. He and his aids are fighters. So are the players.

But the fact remains that plenty must be accomplished by the Cardinals in preseason training if they are going to send a winning team on the field this fall. Dame Fortune left them very little from last year's eleven in the way of experienced heavy material, which is something that nearly always must be present when hopes for a winning team are formed.

Catholic U. Lacks Reserves.

Catholic U. is suffering chiefly from a lack of reserves. There are now 35 players in the squad and with the arrival of three or four more the squad will have reached full strength as far as numbers are concerned.

There is a scarcity of talent on the ends, at the tackles and center, and at the full back post. Eleven fairly capable men could be grouped as a team right now, but if anything happened to one or two, Bergman would be up against it for replacements. And since practically all of the squad that will see service during the season are now on hand, the prospects of securing additional reserves seem extremely slim.

Another thing darkening the Cardinal outlook is the fact that the entire squad must undergo a complete change in its methods of play. The Bergman system is different from that employed by Jack McAuliffe last year. Less than three weeks remain before the opening game with Boston College and this is much too short a period to suit Bergman's purposes in the transformation.

Cardinals Have High Spirits.

As previously indicated, there is nothing lacking in the spirit of the Cardinals. Their cup of confidence is overflowing. The players have utmost faith in the coaches and the latter find this attitude very helpful in solving their problems.

In order to strengthen the tackle positions, Bergman may shift Capt. George Menke from guard. Comparatively, there is an abundance of guards in the squad and Menke, being quick to learn, might ably replace one of the 1929 tackles now missing—Armand Raiche and Bob O'Connor.

Both of the 1929 ends, Dutch Gerth and Ross Zeno, have graduated. Rocco Blasi and Johnny Lyons, reserves last year, are prominent in the fight for the vacant berths. Waging battle with this pair are several others who have never experienced varsity competition.

For snapper-backs, Catholic has but two candidates, Johnny Ambrose, regular last fall, and Paul Billinger, up from the freshmen.

At full back, the Cards haven't a single experienced man, and Bus Sheary, a sophomore, is a possibility as the successor to Jack Malevich, who performed brilliantly in the position the last two seasons. It is indeed a task for Sheary or any other full back candidate to fill Malevich's shoes.

G. O. P. PLANS LEAGUE.

A basket-ball league is being planned by the employes of the Government Printing Office, for which purpose a meeting has been called for tomorrow night at 7 o'clock at the home of Eddie Roberts, 1220 N street northwest, apartment 103. A representative of each division is asked to attend.

STOCK PRICES CLIMB THEN LOSE AT CLOSE

Sales Prove Active on Rise But Drop on Decline in 2,241,000-Share Day.

COMMODITIES AGAIN SAG

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The stock market strove valiantly today to extend last week's rally. Prices did move higher until the final hour, when realizing and some short selling, inspired by the weakness of the commodities and the absence of any constructive news caused the earlier gains to dwindle or disappear. The close was irregular, although net changes in the leaders were small.

Perhaps the most encouraging development, from the viewpoint of the bulls, was the increase in activity on the rise and the dullness of trading on the late decline. Sales for the day totaled 2,241,000 shares, the first time since August 27 that the 2,000,000 mark had been exceeded and the largest aggregate since August 13. In the last 50 minutes only about 350,000 shares changed hands.

Nevertheless, the public's participation remained negligible. Some brokers reported a creeping demand for high grade stocks, suggesting that the flow of investment funds into bonds and preferred issues was beginning to run over into common equity securities, but the inquiry was small, at best. Bonds, on the other hand, remained strong, featured by the rails.

U. S. Steel Hits New Peak.

The firm opening was followed by a professional buying movement in which short covering and bull pool operations were the dominant factors. A handful of the prominent shares squeezed to new highs for the movement, among them U. S. Steel which touched 173¾, and the advance brought in numerous fair-sized buying orders. General Motors was a strong favorite; others included General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, American Telephone, American Can and Allied Chemical, in addition to several of the more erratic shares.

The presence of an average profit of 5 or 6 points on the movement of the past few sessions proved too tempting, however, and many operators sold out rather than attempt to carry the rise beyond moderate limits. Expectations that U. S. Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage figures, to appear on Wednesday, would show a decline for August, a poor month, gave the diminished short interest renewed courage and the late break started in the steel group.

The utilities showed some firmness, although prices shared in the general unsettlement at the close. American Waterworks held 2 points of a 3-point rise. Pacific Can, United Gas Improvement, North American, Brooklyn Union Gas and Electric Power & Light finished unchanged to fractionally higher, while United Corporation, heavily traded, gained half a point net. Buying was accompanied by rumors of a prospective offering of rights. Peoples Gas advanced 11 points.

Diamond Match Retains Gain.

Thermoid was taken in hand by the bulls for a rise of nearly 2. Diamond Match retained all but a fraction of a 5-point spurt, making another new high. New Haven, Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, in the rail section, together with General Motors and American Tobacco B closed 1 to 2 higher. Selling of Parmelee Transportation followed rumors of objections to a merger with Checker Cab, details of which are expected soon.

Favorite stocks like Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Radio and Standard Oil of New Jersey ended the day fractionally lower, while American Telephone yielded all but a shadow of an extreme rise of about 1½ points. Vanadium, Sears-Roebuck and Gillette closed 2 to 3 lower. The last named stock was under pressure all day on reports of a prospective bond issue.

Wheat declined more than a cent, reflecting hedge selling and a large increase in the visible supply. Corn eased on limited cash demand and large country offerings, while cotton, after breaking about $2 to $2.85 a bale at the appearance of the Government crop estimate, closed $1.90 to $2.25 lower.

The September crude rubber A contract sagged below 9 cents to another new low.

European exchanges recovered, led by sterling. The German mark and Spanish peseta also improved. Latin Americans were slightly firmer.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The Government crop report placing the indicated yield as of September 1 at 14,340,000 bales was followed by a decline of about $2.50 to $2.85 per bale in the cotton market here today. These figures were about 300,000 bales above the average of recent private indications, and the market, which had been rather nervous and irregular preceding their publication, broke under more or less general Southern, local and Wall street selling.

New December contracts sold down to 10.90, or within a point of the low record established on the decline of last month, but the break was checked by trade buying and covering at this figure, and that delivery closed at 11.03, or 13 points up from the lowest. The general market closed steady at net declines of 38 to 45 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 5 points under prebureau liquidation and some local selling, but after showing net losses of 5 to 7 points during the first few minutes, prices rallied on covering and some trade buying. The new October sold up to 11.40 and March to 11.76 on this demand, but the advance was lost before trading was suspended for the usual 20 minutes to receive the Government crop report at midday.

When business was resumed, selling was active, and appeared to be coming from practically all directions. It included Southern selling, but this was said to be generally in small lots and the bulk of the pressure was attributed to liquidation of long accounts that had been carried over the bureau and pressure from local and foreign selling. The new October broke to 10.75 and March to 11.17, making net losses of 50 to 75 points on the more active months, but the buying increased at these figures and the close showed rallies of 7 to 13 points from the lowest.

The report of the Census Bureau showing ginnings of 1,878,253 bales prior to September 1 was slightly above expectations, but came in for very little comment in connection with the selling. Trade interests were reported good buyers on scale down, while covering became more active as prices approached the previous low records for the season. Exports today were 48,359 bales, making 521,476 so far this season. Port receipts 55,711. United States port stocks 1,988,727.

LOWER-PRICED LIST AIDED BY BOND RISE

LATIN-AMERICANS SINK

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The bond market gave another good account of itself today. Demand showed further extension into the lower priced groups, resulting in scattered selling of highest grade issues, but the latter, on the whole, remained firm and the average price of 30 obligations pushed to the highest level in about three years.

The political troubles in Argentina led to scattered selling of the Latin-Americans. Argentine 6s were offered in small blocks at concessions of 1 to 2 points, while there was sympathetic weakness in Buenos Aires 6s, Chile 6s, Peru 6s and 7s and a few others. European loans were steady.

As the bond market swings steadily upward, the trend toward secondary issues is becoming more noticeable, for the recent gains in first grade bonds are sending investors in search of larger returns.

Western Maryland Rises.

The cheaper rails are profiting most, and among today's leaders were Chicago Great Western 4s, St. Paul general 5s, Hudson & Manhattan income 5s, International Great Northern 5s and Western Maryland 4s, all of which gained around half a point. Their advice was at the expense of a few stronger bonds, including Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s and New York Central 4½s.

Reports that the St. Paul directors were uncertain as to whether the full 2½ per cent semiannual payment on the adjustment mortgage bonds should be declared at this week's meeting, in view of the estimated earnings of 3 per cent for the year on the issue, were accompanied by a large turnover in the 5s, which gained half a point net.

Specialties Are Favored.

Specialty obligations found considerable favor, particularly Bush Terminal first 4s, National Dairy 5½s, McKesson & Robbins 5½s, and Schulco 6½s. The latter gained 3 to 5 points. Oil bonds were active and firm. Phillips Petroleum 5½s made a new high at 97¼.

A feature of the generally firm utilities was the Postal Telegraph 5s, which converted a ½ point advance into a net loss of 2½, sagging to 90, a new low. Niagara Falls Power 5s eased.

Convertibles were higher during most of the day. American Telephone 4½s and Atchison 4½s rallied more than a point, but turnovers were small.

United States Governments continued apathetic, fluctuating irregularly. Only one issue of the Treasuries traded.

RIGGS BANK TO PAY LARGEST DIVIDEND

Distribution to Amount for 1930 to 17 Per Cent of Capital, Is Report.

FEDERAL RESERVE DATA

The largest dividends ever received by shareholders of the Riggs National Bank will be paid on October 15 of this year, it was announced yesterday by Robert V. Fleming, president of the institution, following the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors.

This record distribution will come in the form of an additional dividend of 2 per cent over the regular semi-annual dividend of 7½ per cent. Shareholders will receive a total of $510,000 for the year 1930. This sum amounts to 17 per cent on the bank's capital of $3,000,000. These dividends are $60,000 greater than those paid in 1929.

Mr. Fleming stated that the board felt that this increase was justifiable in view of the fact that the estimated earnings of the bank for 1930 would be approximately the same as for the year 1929, and would warrant the payment of the extra dividend after setting aside liberal allowances for additions to capital accounts.

At the time of the consolidation of the Riggs National Bank with the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank on December 15 1928, a special dividend of 2½ per cent was paid, covering the period October 15 to December 15, 1928, in order to adjust dividend requirements to changes in capital structure.

Fifteen Per Cent Rate in 1929.

On April 15, 1929, a 5 per cent dividend was paid for the four months' period, December, 1928, to April 15, 1929. On October 15, 1929, in addition to the regular semiannual dividend of 7½ per cent, an extra dividend of 2½ per cent was paid, thereby making total dividends of $450,000 paid in 1929, or at the rate of 15 per cent per annum.

An increase of $46,000,000 in loans and investments by banks in leading cities for the week ended September 3 was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board. The report reveals that there were also increases of $30,000,000 in net demand deposits, $32,000,000 in time deposits and $39,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks. A decrease of $30,000,000 in Government deposits was reported.

Loans and investments in the Fifth District, embracing Washington, were $648,000,000. Borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank were $5,000,000. Loans totaled $462,000,000, while investments were $186,000,000.

Dinner of Women Bankers.

The women's committee, Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, held a dinner last night at the Roosevelt Hotel. The affair was the first of three functions of the institute to take place in Washington in the next two weeks. The educational committee will met Thursday night at the Raleigh Hotel, and an open meeting of the institute is being planned for Tuesday of next week.

At last night's dinner and meeting, Miss Mildred C. Woodcock, chairman, presided. The principal speaker was Mrs. M. Tillery Renshaw. She spoke on the course she will teach next year at the institute. Other speakers were Miss Janet Johnson, national head of the institute; Raymond B. Dickey, one of the law instructors at the institute; Frank M. Perley, president of the local chapter, and Aubrey O. Dooley, first vice president of the local chapter and chairman of the education committee.

Plans are being completed for the annual convention of the American Association of Personal Finance Companies, to be held at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building from September 23 to 26. Delegates are expected from 24 States, in which the uniform small loan law has been enacted. Consumer credit is one of the chief subjects scheduled for discussion.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership for $350,000, a decrease of $50,000 from the last previous sale.

Directors of the Ludlum Steel Co. today omitted the quarterly dividend of 50 cents due on the common stock at this time. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.62½ on the preferred was authorized. President Corning said omission of the common dividend was decided on to conserve resources and to maintain the present cash position, which August 31 showed a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of approximately 10 to 1.

Print cloths sold in fair volume prior to the cotton crop estimate today. Afterward prices were firmly maintained on gray goods, with quiet conditions ruling. Fine goods were in moderate demand. Burlap markets experienced moderate inquiry, with spots firmly held. Spot raw silks were dull and weaker here and in Japan.

Raw silk futures closed steady. Sales, 110 bales. September, 275; December, 268; March, 268. Open market quotations (100-day basis), Shanghai steam extra B, 325; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, 195; Japanese crack double extra, 320.

The Republic Steel Corporation will place its new electric welding pipe mill in operation this week, completing a $10,000,000 pipe development started in 1929. The electric welding mill is booked with sufficient tonnage to provide capacity operations for several months.

Directors of the St. Paul Railroad will decide next Thursday whether to pay the October 1 coupon its adjustment mortgage bonds. A considerable difference of opinion is said to exist among members of the board as to what action should be taken, some favoring payment of the full 2½ per cent due and others feeling that no payment should be made in view of reduced earnings reported so far this year.

Leo S. Federman, president of Interstate Department Stores, reports that the company's gross business for August, exclusive of rented departments, which also showed an increase, amounted to $1,646,058, an increase of nearly 8 per cent over gross of $1,525,423 for July. He said that this was the first time in the company's history that August business has exceeded July. "There is generally a marked falling off in all retail business during August," he added. "Ordinarily July business is from 10 to 20 per cent ahead of August. The improvement started about the middle of August, as a result of increased payrolls in practically all of the 33 cities in which we own stores. Retail stores are always the first to feel an improvement. The cool weather is also helping business and I expect our record for September will show a good increase over August."

Steel ingot production for the 26 working days in August is estimated by the American Iron & Steel Institute at 3,095,293 gross tons, with operations for the month at 59.46 per cent of rated capacity, compared with production of 2,933,399 tons, with operations at 56.35 per cent of capacity for the 26 working days in July and 4,939,086 tons for 27 working days in August of last year, with operations at 93.28 per cent of capacity. The figures are based on reports from companies which made 94.27 per cent of the open-hearth and Bessemer Steel ingots last year.

For the eight months ended August 30, production was estimated at 29,821,891 gross tons, with operations at 71.96 per cent of capacity, compared with production of 38,825,943 gross tons, with operations at 95.18 per cent of capacity in the corresponding period last year.

August sales of the Walgreen Co. totaled $4,336,065, an increase of 3.9 per cent over August of last year. Sales for the first eight months this year were $34,604,140, an increase of 18.5 per cent over $29,193,232 for the corresponding period of 1929.

Safeway Stores August sales totaled $18,642,526, a decrease of 5.2 per cent from $19,670,307 for August, 1929. Sales for the eight months ended August 30 totaled $147,473,369, an increase of 5 per cent over sales of $140,431,857 for the first eight months last year.

Common stock of the Philadelphia Co., of Pittsburgh, which supplies electric power and light to Pittsburgh and the greater part of Beaver and Allegheny Counties, Pa., will be split five-for-one beginning September 10, after which new stock will be issued for old. The new stock will not be listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Electrical World reports that telegraphic query of public utility executives in all parts of the country has brought replies showing an almost unanimous opinion that the worst of the business depression is over and that most factors point to a slow but "rather painful" upward trend. The reports show that most companies have increased their domestic sales, some as much as 25 per cent, and appliance sales, by making no curtailments in sales activities. Only two reported reductions in transmission expenditures as result of the depression, and only one a reduction in expansion program.

The Reading Co. today announced the award of contracts for 30,000 tons of 130-pound steel rails to the Bethlehem Steel Co. and Carnegie Steel Co. The rails, to cost more than a million dollars, will be used generally over the entire railroad.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SOME UNITED FRUIT COMPANY METHODS.

RAIN water.—This is a very satisfactory source of drinking water, but it is difficult to keep mosquitoes from breeding in it. Rain water barrels and tanks must be well screened and the screens must be kept in good repair. These people do not seem to have used minnows in such barrels and tanks, the method which Drs. Gorgas and Connor used so effectively in Ecuador. A water tank should have only one faucet and one overflow tube, and the drip from both should fall at the same place. In the area of ground where this drip falls they dig a hole four feet wide and two feet deep and fill it with rocks—coarse rocks at the bottom, finer rocks in the middle, gravel on top. In some locations it is necessary to dig a hole fourteen inches in diameter down to the gravel or sand or seep water level and to fill this hole with rocks.

The company rarely uses rain water. It either puts in a water system or digs bored wells. Driven wells properly placed, properly drilled, and properly protected, furnish safe water for small camps.

Mosquitoes—To keep down mosquitoes this company sees that no unsmashed cans are allowed to lie around and allows no uncut, untrimmed grass in or near a camp. Moist spots of ground are dusted with diluted paris green or oiled. If the camp is near water, the vegetation in the water near the banks is kept cut below the water level and minnows are stocked; diluted paris green and oils are used.

Mosquitoes breed in horse and cow tracks in a country where the rainfall is heavy. Therefore animals are kept out of camp. Horses and mules are kept in corrals located on ridges. The corrals should have a cement floor unless it is on gravelly, sandy soil or on the top of a hill. Sometimes corrals are drained by means of holes fourteen inches in diameter, dug down to the gravel, sand or seep water, and filled with rock; in some instances they are drained by tile deeply placed or by cement lined ditches.

Sanitation—The best type of latrine is a hole 12 to 14 inches in diameter and 18 to 20 feet deep. This can be dug with a post hole digger. It is well to line such a hole with cement or old cans or something, and then to cover the surface of the ground around it for, say, 1 foot with cement. This method was worked out in the Dutch tropical possessions, and there they use bamboo for lining the holes. The use of fine screens against mosquitoes is advocated. The screen must be kept in order; otherwise a screened house accumulates an overload of hungry mosquitoes. If wire gauze is not available, they advocate the use of mosquito bars.

Whitewashing—The fruit company believes in using whitewash freely. Mosquitoes do not like whitewashed houses. As a rule a whitewashed house will be kept clean or effort in that direction will be made.

WHEN DOCTOR REFUSES TO COME

F. G. S. writes: Can a physician's license be revoked because of his refusing to answer a call?

In the case I have in mind the man had appendicitis. A physician was called. He did not respond. The man died.

REPLY.

A physician's license can not be revoked because he did not answer a call. A physician has the same right to refuse to answer a call that a merchant has to refuse to sell a piece of goods. If the physician was in attendance on this case, had seen him once or oftener in this attack, and then refused to respond to a call and the refusal resulted in the man's death, he would be liable for damages. Under other circumstances, I doubt if there would be any liability.

CHINS BORN, NOT MADE.

Cyrano writes: I would like to know why some people have receding chins and the cause. Is there any way in which such a chin could be developed or cured? Would massage or ray treatment help?

REPLY.

The human animal inherits a certain chin pattern. Some people depart from type by overdevelopment; some by underdevelopment. In childhood and adolescence wearing appliances may modify the chin development somewhat. Certain diseases of the mouth and jaws are certain constitutional conditions operating in that age period affect the size and shape of the chin somewhat, sometimes. After adolescence but little can be done. Possibly surgery or dentistry may help—massage will not.

Curb Review

New York, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The most ambitious bull drive in several weeks encountered stiff opposition in today's Curb Market, but the list closed irregularly higher. Total transactions were 465,000 shares, the largest since August 15.

The move centered in the utility shares, which made substantial progress for a time, but with late unsettlement on the big board, profit taking and bear selling appeared, canceling most of the advances. Net gains at the close were most numerous among the industrial and specialties.

American Superpower was sent up ¾ in a large turnover, but lost half its gain. Electric Bond and Share was lifted above 85 for the first time in weeks, but closed at 83½, off ⅝. Electric Power Associates gained more than a point, and Electric Power and Light warrants mounted 2¾, and American & Foreign Power warrants, however, lost 1¾, and American Gas & Electric 1.

The New Diamond Match shares were admitted to unlisted trading privileges, and turned over in fair volume. The common closed at 24⅞, and the preferred at 26⅞. Deere, a recent soft spot, closed up 3¾. Cord Corporation rallied a point to 8⅞, in sympathy with strength of Auburn on the stock exchange. Mead Johnson advanced ½, and Novadel Agene nearly 2, on favorable dividend actions. In the merchandising group, Great Atlantic & Pacific advanced 12½ in a few odd lot transactions, and Russeks jumped more than 4 points to a price of 10.

In the investment trust group, Intercoast Trading jumped more than 2 points, in sympathy with the recent strength of Transamerica on the big board. U. S. and Overseas gained 2 points, on announcement of a plan of merger with Public Utility Holding, but the latter closed off ¼. United Founders, which controls U. S. and Overseas and Public Utility Holding, was firm, closing up a fraction. Prudential was active and firm, closing up ¾.

In the oils, Standard of Indiana, normally a narrow mover, sold up 3/8. Imperial Oil was active and firm, gaining a point. Humble sold up a point, then lost its gain. Gulf, however, closed off a fraction, and Cities Service held barely steady. Union Oil Associates, holding company for Union Oil of California, made one of its infrequent appearances in the active list with a transaction at 38, a new low, off 7 from the previous transaction.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 8 (A.P.).—Unloading of wheat by owners collecting profits and persistent hedging pressure proved more than the Chicago wheat market could stand today and prices eased downgrade. Scattered selling by tired owners and by commission houses placed more wheat on sale than there was buying power to absorb it. Trade was not large and the market was nervous and easily influenced. Chicago wheat was firm at the start because of strength in Liverpool, but this influence proved transient. Corn ranged downward along with wheat. An overbought condition showed in the trade when owners started to unload on weak spots. A sensationally bullish estimate of the 1930 corn crop by an unofficial crop expert resulted in only sporadic buying and had little market influence.

Wheat closed nervous and unsettled, 1½ to 1½ cents net lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed weak, ⅜ cent to 1⅛ cents down, oats ½ to ⅞ cent off, and provisions declined 10 to 22 cents.

After the opening flurry of buying, the wheat trade settled into the rut of indifference which has characterized trading here of late. The visible supply increased 3,583,000 bushels for the week and is now 191,088,000 bushels, as compared with 184,408,000 bushels at this time a year ago. Canadian country deliveries Saturday were 6,908,000 bushels, against 2,690,000 bushels last year. Only a moderate export business was done the week and was reported, and this was mostly in Canadian wheat.

Traders said that it looked as if recent developments in Argentina had checked the aggressiveness of professional sellers, many of whom were caught flat-footed by the swift response the market made to news from Buenos Aires Saturday. Liverpool cables said that the new Russian wheat had decreased in size and increased in price. Merchants' stocks in the United Kingdom were said to be almost exhausted, and the quantity of wheat in the holds of freighters en route to England have decreased nearly 800,000 bushels. Milling demand for wheat was only fair.

Corn was also nervous, with liquidation of the September delivery in evidence. Some buying was noticed after an unofficial crop estimate saying that the total 1930 yield would be only 1,750,000,000 bushels was released. This estimate was approximately 175,000,000 bushels less than the previous low unofficial estimate. The visible supply total increased 643,000 bushels for the week and is now 4,583,000 bushels, compared with 5,021,000 bushels a year ago. Eastern shipping demand was slow and country points showed little disposition to sell, with offerings generally held higher than buyers were willing to pay. Some selling developed in oats and rye on the early bulge, and both reacted with other grains.

Provisions weakened because of scattered commission house selling, and because the recent buying was absent demand was much less aggressive.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—September, 82¾; May, 86; December, 88; March, 92, 94⅜; May, 94⅝, 97¾@94⅞. Corn—September, 96, 98½; December, 90¾@90⅞, 92¼@92⅜; March, 92⅜@92½, 94¾; May, 94⅜, 96¾@96⅞.

Cash grain:

WHEAT—No. 1 red, 86 (gmutty); No. 1 hard, 88@89¾; No. 2 Northern spring, 88½; No. 2 mixed, 87½.

CORN—No. 1 mixed, 99½; No. 1 yellow, 99½@1 00; No. 1 white, 1.02¾@1.03¼; sample grade, 88@95.

OATS—No. 2 red, 38; No. 1 white, 41; No. 2 white, 40½@41¼.

$791,696 EXPENDID ON DISTRICT SEWERS

Sanitary Engineer Gordon Submits Annual Report to Commissioners.

OTHER ITEMS RECORDED

Sewers constructed under contract in the last fiscal year cost $791,696.09, while the highway department spent $109,852.65 additional for resurfacing of streets cut to lay sewers, J. B. Gordon, sanitary engineer of the District, reported yesterday in his annual report to the District Commissioners.

Supplies, tools and equipment cost $109,941.02 and construction material used by the department cost $245,077.65, the report showed.

The total length of the District sewer and sewage-disposal system at the end of the fiscal year was 990.57 miles, Mr. Gordon reported. This length was divided as follows: Main sewers, 189.90 miles; pipe sewers, 759.81 miles; sewage-disposal system, 40.86 miles.

Cost of Systems Cited.

Cost of the sewerage system was $22,495,898.87, while the sewage-disposal system cost $6,411,051.14, making a total cost of the city's system of $28,907,050.01.

Mr. Gordon outlined in his report measures which have been taken to bring about closer cooperation between the sewer department and the other branches of the municipal government having to do with highways and underground construction.

D. W. Holton, superintendent of the water department, reported that the daily average consumption of water in the last fiscal year was 82,081,380 gallons, which was an increase of 8,500,000 gallons over the average daily consumption the preceding year. The per capita consumption was 167.5 gallons.

The greatest consumption in any one day was on June 30, 1930, when 102,500,000 gallons were consumed. The smallest daily consumption was 68,500,000 gallons on December 29, 1929, Mr. Holton's report showed.

Total Water Consumption.

Total consumption of water for the fiscal year was 29,960,705,000 gallons, an increase of 3,108,518,440 gallons over consumption during the year before. An idea of the extent of the jump was given by the statement that the increase last year over the year before was equal to the increase during the four years, 1925 to 1929, combined.

Raising of restrictions on sprinkling of laws and sidewalks was advanced by Mr. Holton as responsible for most of the increase in consumption. Restrictions were lifted on completion of the Dalecarlia plant.

There were 95,811 water services in use at the close of the fiscal year, of which 81,381 were metered. There were 1,476 water meters installed on new services and 5,041 defective meters were replaced. It is estimated that it will require five years to complete the replacement of all the defective meters.

The net operating cost of the department was given as $1,046,569.21, of which maintenance and operation required 51 per cent and extensions 49 per cent. The total cost of the system was given as $7,714,888.25.

United Brethren Find Year Good

Conference Reports Will Show Steady Gains, Is Prediction.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 8.—While the long drought has hit farmers and many others a severe blow in Virginia and nearby States and numerous lines of industry also feel its effects, the Virginia Conference of the United Brethren Church in Christ has completed a satisfactory year, it was learned here today on the eve of the meeting of the conference. Reports, it was said, will show steady gains in membership, spirituality, loyalty to the church and in collections and offerings for virtually all agencies sponsored by the denomination.

The conference will begin its one hundred and thirty-first annual session in the First United Brethren Church at Staunton at 9 a. m. Thursday, and will remain in session about four days. Bishop G. T. Batdorf, of Harrisburg, Pa., will preside. The Rev. Dr. J. H. Brunk, of Martinsburg, W. Va., is conference superintendent. The conference territory extends from the vicinity of Cumberland, Md., and portions of West Virginia down through the Shenandoah Valley to Roanoke.

According to last year's statistical report, the conference had a membership of 18,948. In addition, there were 3,312 in Christian Endeavor Societies, 15,817 members of Sunday schools, and 1,090 belonging to the Woman's Missionary Society.

Summersville Mayor Resigns From Office

Special to The Washington Post.

Summersville, W. Va., Sept. 8.—Howard Campbell has the office of mayor here but he doesn't want it and for the time being, at least, he can't get rid of it. Because of pressure of private business affairs he does not have the requisite time to give to the position and he presented his resignation to the municipal council but it refused to accept it.

The resignation will be pressed again, however, at the next council meeting. Campbell was elected to the office in June.

Locust Tree Mystifies By Second Blooming

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 8.—Residents of Summit Park are wondering what has made a large locust tree on the Watson property on Fleming street bloom a second time this year. It is in full bloom and as white as is usually is in spring.

Residents say there is no record of a second blooming by a locust tree, though fruit trees frequently do. Drought conditions have added to the mystery.

Lack of Water Closes Schools in Lumberport

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 8.—On account of the lack of water caused by six months of continued drought, school pupils were sent back home today at Lumberport when they reported for the start of the fall term.

Work has been started on the drilling of an additional deep well on property near the town filteration plant and it is hoped to obtain a sufficient supply from it for the schools.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

FALLS CHURCH GETS THREE WATER TANKS

Town, Hard Hit by Drought, Is Sent Receptacles to Haul Water.

TO CHARGE SMALL FEES

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The citizens of Falls Church can now rest assured that they will have an adequate supply of water. Through the efforts of Mayor Leonard P. Daniel and the town council, three 300-gallon water tanks have been lent the town by the Federal Government. These tanks will be used for the distribution of water from the Arlington County water mains. The supply is being obtained from the private tap of B. F. Elliotts in East Falls Church.

The request of the town council to Maj. Gen. Sladen, commanding general of the Third Corps Area, had been for tanks with trucks and drivers, but it was found that the War Department could furnish only the tanks. The town council has to furnish the trucks and drivers. These tanks arrived yesterday and were immediately placed in service.

A report made last week by the council's special water committee showd the citizens to be in more desperate circumstances than was first believed. Their canvass showed that approximately 40 per cent of the domestic wells in the town had failed because of the long drought this summer and there was no relief in sight. This committee was composed of Mayor Daniel and Councilmen J. V. Turner, Milton Roberts and Frank Birch. Most of the wells in the town are shallow wells of about 30 feet in depeth and if the owners were to deepen them it would mean a large expense of buying deep-well equipment.

The service of distributing water to the homes will last as long as an emergency exists under the direction of Councilman Turner. While no set rules and schedule of distribution have been worked out, the council expects to be able to serve each family its water needs every day. The householders are required to furnish their own receptacles.

A small charge to take care of the running expenses of the distribution will be made as soon as the actual cost of the operations can be determined. The first deliveries were made yesterday, the largest being to the committee in charge of the carnival of the St. James Catholic Church at West Falls Church, which opened last night. The house to house service is being made according to the replies received last week during the survey. Further requests should be made to Councilman Turner at East Falls Church.

There will be a mass meeting of the citizens of the town of Vienna tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the town hall to discuss the water shortage situation. Most of the wells have been dry for some time and the citizens had to carry their water supply. The town council has had Salsbury Spring on Windover Heights cleaned and inclosed in concrete; a pipe has been run from the spring to Lawyers road. The flow of water from this spring has been estimated to be about five gallons per minute.

The meeting tomorrow night will consider whether it is advisable to use the town water wagon to make house to house deliveries of water. The final plans will be worked out at the meeting and if house to house delivery is to be made it is believed a small fee will be charged for the service.

The Fairfax County board of supervisors will hold a special meeting today at which time plans will be decided as to the best method of improving Woodyards Ford over Bull Run. This ford is between Fairfax and Prince Williams Counties, and any improvement will have to be made jointly between the two counties.

The supervisors will also enter into a formal contract with the Federal Government in regard to the use of the county owned land at the entrance to the Mount Vernon estate. The Federal Government will be allowed to use the land and roads for park development and parking space under a perpetual easement.

The Fairfax County police have been busily engaged during the last two days with violators of the State prohibition law. R. H. Seely, of Manassas, was arested for drunken driving on the Little River turnpike between Alexandria and Fairfax, by Capt. Haywood J. Durrer. Justice of the Peace Thomas Chapman, of Fairfax, held him for the action of the grand jury, which meets next week.

R. A. Mills, of Washington, was arrested by Sergt. E. J. McDermott, of the State road police for driving a truck on the Washington-Richmond highway near Accotink while under the influence of liquor. He was held for the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Harry Shephard of Accotink.

A raid led by State Prohibition Inspector Virgil Williams upon the home of Joe King at Gum Spring resulted in the arrest of King and John Riggins, also of Gum Spring, for the violation of the State prohibition law. The two men were held for the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Harry Shephard at Accotink.

L. S. Harrison, of Weldon, N. C., was arrested by Traffic Policeman A. W. Mills for destroying evidence when he broke a jar of alleged liquor upon the Washington-Richmond highway. He was fined $50 and costs by Justice Shephard at Accotink.

A. A. Huff, of Manassas, was fined $15 and costs by Justice Chapman, at Fairfax, after he had been arrested on the Lee Jackson highy by Capt. Durrer, of the road police. A. J. Borges, of Route 1, Alexandria, was fined $5 and costs on a similar charge by Justice Shephard. The arrest was made by Traffic Policeman Louis L. Finks.

R. H. Paige, of Salisbury, N. C., was found guilty of reckless driving, at a hearing before Justice Shephard, at Accotink. It was stated that the car he was driving had collided with one operated by E. B. Whitmore, of 1073 Wisconsin avenue, Washington, on the Washington-Richmond highway. He was fined $15 and costs on the charge.

Other persons arrested by Traffic Policeman Mills and fined $10 and costs by Justice Shephard on charges of reckless driving on the Washington-Richmond highway were R. W. Dismer, of Norfolk, Va.; Joel Resnek, of Fifteenth near B street northeast, Washington; E. H. Russell, of C street near First southeast, Washington, was fined $10 and costs when the policeman caught him driving with his arm around his girl companion.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening in the Andrew Chapel Schoolhouse. The Andrew Chapel School and Civic League will act as hosts at the meeting. The legaue is substituting tonight's meeting for its regular meeting and has made plans to make the reception after the meeting a welcome for the new teachers.

The Women's Mission Union of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will hold its meeting today in the church parlors. Mrs. Walter H. Wrenn will be the leader and Mrs. Borgstadt will be in charge of the mission study.

The Acacia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, at Clifton Station will hold its meeting this evening in the Masonic Hall there.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Arnon Church, at Forestville, will meet this evening in the church house.

There will be a meeting of the McLean Community Library Association this afternoon in the library at McLean to elect a new president to succeed Mrs. J. Hunter Mack, who resigned the office. Following the library meeting the garden department will have a talk by Mrs. A. C. Gibbs on the interesting and attractive gardens she visited this summer while in Europe.

HELD IN DEATH OF KELIHER

William McKeever (upper left, in doorway) with Policeman A. E. Bellfield, and William Shea (on steps) with Policeman Lafons Starkweather, as they left police headquarters yesterday afternoon to return to their cells at the Third Precinct, where they are being held in connection with the fatal accident early Sunday morning near Alexandria in which Maurice ("Mickey") Keliher, well-known baseball player, was killed.

HOPE HELD FOR MAN AFTER SHOT IN NIGHT

FIRST STORY IS CHANGED

Shot in the stomach during a scuffle Sunday night in the apartment of Louis Behrens on S street near Sixteenth street northwest, Russell Prince, of that address, has a fair chance of recovery. Barbara Walker, 25 years old, a dancing teacher, of Fourteenth street near H street, who was alone in the apartment with Prince, is still being held at the House of Detention.

The woman made strenuous efforts to cover up the shooting, as did the man himself. Private E. L. McHale, of the Third Precinct, heard the single shot as he was walking his beat. He went to the apartment to investigate and Miss Walker told him that there was nothing to the man's injuries. He insisted on seeing the hurt man, and found Prince lying on the floor, with the bullet in his stomach. Both persons said the shooting was accidental.

The woman at first said that Prince had shot himself while cleaning the gun, but later admitted that there had been a scuffle. She changed her story after police found a taxi driver and neighbors, who told of hearing an argument in the apartment. It is said that Miss Walker wanted to leave, while the man wanted her to stay. The gun was produced and the argument went on, ending in the shooting.

Prince is said to be a brother-in-law of Behrens, with whom he lives. Behrens and his wife, Annabelle, were not at home at the time of the shooting, but returned to the apartment later. They were taken to the Third Precinct for questioning, but were later released.

Acting Coroner Joseph D. Rogers permitted the body to be removed to the undertaking parlors of W. W. Chambers, at Fourteenth and Chapin streets northwest. The remains will be shipped today to Elizabeth. Mrs. Morley was 38 years old.

Virginia Historical Spots Are Boosted

Kiwanis Speaker Stresses Their Conservation in Williamsburg Talk.

Conservation of Virginia's historical spots as a practical means of enhancing the State's wealth was stressed by William E. Carson, of Riverton, Va., in an address delivered yesterday before the interclub meeting of Kiwanis units at Williamsburg, Va. More than 300 delegates from the eleven clubs in the Richmond-Ashland-Norfolk-Petersburg area were welcomed by Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, president of William and Mary College. David Nelson Smith, of West Point, Va., lieutenant governor of the Fourth Kiwanis Division, presided.

In urging capitalization of the State's beauty spots and historic wealth, Mr. Carson said that during the present year tourists had brought from $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 into Virginia.

Edwin F. Hill, of Washington, lieutenant governor of the First Kiwanis District, invited the delegates to attend an interclub meeting to be held in this city September 17. Other speakers included J. COMPANIONS DENY KELIHER KIDNAPED

Two of Three Men Held in Auto Death Say There Was No Fight.

STORY WITNESS TELLS

Two of the three men who are held in the District on technical murder charges in connection with the death of Maurice "Micky" Keliher, deny that the ball player was abducted by them before the automobile crash early Sunday which is believed to have caused his death.

Lieut. Edward J. Kelly yesterday questioned William Shea and William McKeever, who gave him the names of three witnesses, who, they said, saw Keliher leave Fourteenth and V streets with them early Sunday morning.

Lieut. Kelly's examination of the two prisoners was occasioned by a report that an acquaintance of Keliher had seen him beaten and thrown into the machine by four men some time before the fatal accident at Four Mile Run in Alexandria.

Story Told By Prisoners.

McKeever and Shea told Lieut. Kelly that they met Keliher at Fourteenth and V streets about midnight Saturday. Earl Garrison, who is in Gallinger Hospital suffering of concussion of the brain as a result of the crash with McKeever, Shea and Ignatius Tartella, drove from the corner with Keliher.

They said that Keliher got in the rumble seat with Tartella. Tartella was taken to his home on Sixteenth street and Keliher remained alone in the rumble seat. Shea, who is alleged to have been operating the machine, remained in the front seat of the automobile with Garrison and McKeever.

Both McKeever and Shea emphatically denied that there had been any disturbance before Keliher joined them. They had known Keliher for years, they said, and had always been friendly with him.

They did say, however, that earlier in the evening there had been an altercation at Fourteenth and V streets and that the participants had been arrested by police. They advanced the suggestion to Lieut. Kelly that possibly the witness who told of the fight might have seen the earlier disturbance and mistaken one of those involved for Keliher.

Witness Tells of Fight.

Lieut. Kelly detailed Detective Sergt. John J. Flaherty to investigate the stories of the three witnesses who, the men claim, saw Keliher leave with the group.

Michael F. Mangan, attorney for Shea, interviewed his client in the Third Precinct yesterday and the prisoner reiterated his denials of any altercation. Mr. Mangan had not decided last night whether his client would waive extradition to Alexandria.

Investigation of the manner in which Keliher joined the group was begun after a resident of V street near Fourteenth street reported that he had witnessed a fight near the place and watched four men force the ball player into the rumble seat of the car.

The witness told police that the scuffle lasted about 10 minutes. Then the men picked up Keliher, he said, and threw him into the rumble seat of the car. Keliher resisted their attempts to take him in the car, he said.

Garrison lives on Tenth near C street southeast; McKeever makes his home on Farragut street near Sixth northwest, and Shea lives on Fairmount street near Thirteenth northwest.

Funeral services for Keliher will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock from his home, 3455 Fourteenth street northwest. A requiem mass will be sung at 9 o'clock at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

West River Postoffice Safe With $150 Stolen

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 8.—Postoffice inspectors from Washington and Sheriff Michael F. Carter and his deputies today started an investigation of the robbery of the postoffice at West River, which occurred early Sunday morning. The postoffice was operated in connection with the country store of which Samuel Chew is proprietor.

The thieves made away with a safe containing over $150 of Government funds. The safe was found late yesterday afternoon, 4 miles from the scene. It had been opened apparently by a drill. The thieves are believed to have carted the strong box away in an automobile truck. The Federal inspectors and county officials have not thus far been able to pick up a clew.

GARBER IS INELIGIBL FOR BALLOT, RULING

Incumbent and Putnam Filed Too Late, Holds Virginia Attorney General.

PROTEST LWRIT OOMS

Richmond, Va., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The opinion of Peter Saunders, secretary of the Commonweal, that the names of Jacob A. Garber and M. J. Putnam are ineligible to appear on the November general election ballots as congressional nominees of the Republican party was upheld today by Attorney General John R. Saunders.

In a ruling issued at the request of the secretary of the Commonwealth, Attorney General Saunders held that Garber and Putnam, who neglected to file notice before midnight, September 5, of their intention to run, failed to give the 60 days' notice required by law.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Saunders had asked the attorney general if the day on which the election is held should be counted in the 60-day period. Attorney General Saunders said it should not.

Garber, who is the congressional incumbent in the Seventh District, when advised shortly after midnight Saturday morning, September5, that Secretary of the Commonwealth Saunders regarded him as ineligible to place his name on the eletcion ballot, said he had "overlooked" the matter. The same explanation was given by Putnam. The belated notice was given Saturday.

Associates of Garber said that in the event of an adverse ruling from the attorney general, such as was given today, steps would be taken in court to secure a mandamus compelling the secretary of the Commonwealth to place Garber's name on the ballot.

Garber is opposed by John W. Fishburne, Charlottesville, the Democratic nominee. Putnams opponents are H. St. George Tucker, Lexington, Democratic incumbent, and C. K. Rosser, Staunton, an independent Republican.

Representative Garber early tonight was returning to Harrisonburg, his home, from Washington, where he had been in conference with administration officials regarding the drought.

Leghorns Leaders In Egglaying Test

Few Changes in Standing of Race at Maryland Experimental Station.

Special to The Washington Post.

College Park, Md., Sept. 8.—With production slipping back only a fraction of a point, most of the leaders continued to hold their places in the fifth annual egg laying contest being conducted by the University of Maryland Experiment Station.

First and second honors for the week were shared by the Leghorn pens belonging to L. H. Hiscock, Skaneateles, N. Y., and Dr. L. E. Heasley, Grand Rapids, Mich., both entries producing 55 counters. Three other Leghorn pens, with a production of 55 eggs, were ina tie for next places.

A slight change occurred in the Maryland group. The pen of Lauterbach's Hillside Poultry Farm raised its total to 1,882 eggs to displace the Frank Herman pen from fourth place. The entry of F. B. Bolton and A. W. Scruggs, Pomonkey, leads this group with 2,155 eggs; Fairview Farm, Sykesville, is second with 2,047 eggs, and Wye Poultry Farm, Easton, is third with 1,910 eggs. By laying 2,300 eggs to date, the Leghorn pen of Mount Hope Farm, Williamstown, Mass., holds the lead for best pen production.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

IN all her born days, Luella had never seen so many celebrities parked in the same space—the rose garden back of the White House. There, President Hoover received the French fliers, Coste and Bellonte.

All the White House correspondents were present, the motion picture men, and the radio broadcasters.

"Who is that tall, distinguished man, standing beside Gen. Pershing?" she asked.

"That," I informed her, "is Eddie Rickenbacker, America's war ace."

"Oh," she exclaimed, "isn't he handsome? And there's Admiral Byrd—another of our fliers—and Lindy."

Sure enough, there they were, with Vice President Curtis, and Secretary of Labor Davis, and George Akerson, secretary to the President, and Jules Henri, of the French Embassy.

• • • •

"WHAT I'd like to get is a picture of all these people," said Luella—and as there were only about a hundred photographers present, all clicking away with their cameras, it looked to me as if Luella might get her wish.

As Coste walked to the microphone, to broadcast his speech to the American people and the people of France, he smiled at Luella.

She was thrilled beyond words. "Did you see him smile?" she asked, "and directly at me!"

That's the trouble with these Frenchmen, as I see it, they're all flirts.

"We'd better be leaving here, Luella——"

"Leaving? What are you talking about? We can't leave during the ceremonies. What would the President think?"

• • • •

OF course, the President would break down and cry if he saw Luella leave; so we stayed, right to the end of the speech-making; most of it in French.

On the way out of the garden she stopped and plucked a rose.

"Luella, what are you doing?"

"Getting a souvenir——"

"A souvenir? If you want a souvenir, why don't you snip a button off Coste's coat, or something like that?" Before I could stop her she had disappeared in the crowd surrounding the notables.

• • • •

"WHERE'VE you been?" I asked her, when she came back, breathless.

"To get the souvenir from Coste."

"Did you get it?"

"Did I?" she boasted, "I got a badge—out of his lapel."

By George, she'd landed his decoration—the red rosette of the Legion of Honor.

LEGIONNAIRES TOLD OF RACKETEER EVIL

Gen. Lejeune in Speech at Harrisonburg Flays Corrupt Bands.

MITCHELL ALSO SPEAKS

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 8.—Organized criminal bands and alliances between racketeers and politicians, who extract tribute from the honest business men, are a greater menace to America today than the much-talked of "Red" radical and communistic influences, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, superintendent of Virginia Military Institute and former commandant of the United States Marine Corps, told the Virginia department of the American Legion, assembled here in twelfth annual convention.

The retired Marine Corps commander pointed out that he refers to "organized crime" as it operates in larger cities, where, he said, "an honest business man can not exist without paying tribute to racketeers and politicians allied with them."

He is fearful lest this wave of crime spread to the smaller cities, and ultimately do more harm than "insidious red propagenda which we have been fighting for some years."

Lejeune and Mitchell Speak.

Both Genfi LeJeune and Gen. William A. Mitchell, former head of the United States Army Air Corps, made a plea for a strong national defense. They cited that America can not take it for granted that present tendencies looking toward world peace would become effective. Gen. Lejeune described military training for the youth of the land as admirable training for peace time work. He also cited that the generations to come may fogret the horrors of ar, just as "we, the sons and grandsons of the warriors of the Civil War, forgot the horrors of that conflict when we answered the call of the colors in the World War."

Gen. Mitchell told the assembled legionnaires that America "faces more problems today than ever before." He attributed these to the fact that "the world constantly is getting smaller," the cause of rapid development of modern transportation. America's depression, he added, is based largely on the fact that foreign nations, stirred by internal unrest, are unable to buy our goods as they did in the past.

He mentioned, particularly, China and India. America is overproduced, he said, and must settle down.

Red Propaganda Cited.

The former Air Corps head referred to "red" propaganda which, he said, is flooding the country and predicted that "changes now taking place in Russia may have a vast influence on the world at large."

He also condemned concentration of power, politics and wealth in America, citing that the American Government has become so complex that it is impossible for "one man" to direct it. He criticized President Hoover for adding to this complicity by creating various commissions, which he described as "pure bunk."

The erstwhile stormy petrel of the Nation's air forces insisted that America must "push its foreign commerce as never before" to overcome the present depression. He referred to the fact America annually spends $1,000,000,000 for use of British ships and insisted that the United States should have its own ships.

Roszel Is Nominated.

Gen. Mitchell nominated Col. R. M. Roszel, of Winchester, for national commander of the American Legion at the convention at Boston next month. Convention rules were suspended to permit indorsement of Col. Roszel, retiring Virginia department commander. Col. George T. Ijams, director of the new Veterans' Bureau, told legionnaires of the workings of his department in behalf of needy and disabled soldiers. He explained liberal provisions in the revised relief measure passed by the last session of Congress.

His remarks were supplemented by Watson B. Miller, chairman, and Robert Tolson, vice chairman of the rehabilitation committee of the National American Legion.

More than 2,000 legionnaires and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary are here for the convention, which is to last through Wednesday. Leaders predict that the gathering will be the most productive in the history of the organization. Business sessions of the convention are devoting much time to the reorganization proposed by Commander Roszel This includes naming five vice commanders, each of whom will have charge of some branch of the legion activity. Reports given today show that the Virginia Legion now has the largest membership in its history, 8,403, and predictions were made that the 10,000 mark will be passed next year.
